NO. 1.

ESSEX COUNTY IN THE ABOLITION OF SLAVERY.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

Notwithstanding the fact that our forefathers left their native land and suffered in the wilderness of a new world for the sake of freedom, they would not permit others to enjoy liberty in divine worship, and after a few years, if not immediately, introduced physical slavery.*

The first code of laws, established in New England, in 1641, by Rev. Nathaniel Ward, of Ipswich, and entitled "The Body of Liberties," declared, that "There shall never be any bond slavery, villinage or captivitie amongst us unles it be lawfull captives taken in just warres, and such strangers as willingly selle themselves, or are sold to us."

Their laws were severe, even to death, for man-stealing, yet they could conscientiously buy slaves of those who had stolen them, in their native land. Many of the early negro slaves came from Guinea and Madagascar, they being imported into Salem as early as 1638. The ship Desire, built at Marblehead two years previously, and commanded by Capt. William Peirce, arrived at Salem, from the West Indies, February 26, after a seven months' voyage, bringing a cargo of cotton, tobacco and negroes. A number of Scots taken in Scottish wars, at the middle of the seventeenth century, were bought in Essex county, they having been brought to America and sold as other slaves were. Indian slaves, more generally girls, were in considerable numbers in the county. The Scotch slaves were men of civilization, being reduced to slavery by the vicissitudes of war, and probably all of them soon regained their freedom. But the Negro and the Indian were of quite a different stamp. Ignorant and superstitious, still more or less savage, their influence was degrading to a then unrealized degree. To the folklore and demoniac ideas that the early settlers brought with them were added all the demoralizing influences of savage Africa and the weird tales and evil imaginings that untold generations of the American Indians had heaped together. The witchcraft delusion was due in a considerable degree to the free association of several young girls of good families of Salem Village with

*During the time of the persecution of the Quakers at Salem, in 1659, Daniel and Provided Southwick were found guilty of offence to the church and were ordered to be sold as slaves to any of the English living in Virginia or Barbadoes. The order was not carried out however.

Tituba, the slave of Rev. Mr. Parris, and others of her ilk.

Nearly every clergyman had one or more slaves, as also many of the more wealthy families, and they were treated in much the same manner as the negro slaves of the South were in later times.

The title to these human chattels was passed similarly to that of cattle or other articles of personal property. They were often kept in families by inheritance, or were conveyed by will, but were more often the subject of a bill of sale or deed. The following is a copy of such a bill of sale:—

"In consideration of ye q^rter vessel yt ye s^d George Carr have made over unto William Hilton, as is in writing expressed, I have delivered unto ye s^d George Carr James my Indian and all ye interest I have in him, to him or to his assigns forever, & I ye s^d William Hilton doe binde myselfe, heirs & assigns to George Carr & his assigns to make good ye sale of James the Indian wch I have sold unto ye said George Carr his servant forever or to whom ye said George Carr shall assigne.

"Witness this 29 December, 1649.
WILLIAM HILTON,
JAMES ye Indian.
his X mark doth manifest his consent.

"Signed and delivered in ye presence of Abraham Tappan,
John Bonde, Edmond Greenlief."

In 1698, Richard Dole of Newbury, in his will, gave to one of his children, "my great bible, fowling piece, musket, and also my negro boy Tom"; to son William, my "negro boy Mingo"; to daughter Hannah, "my negro maid named Lucy," etc. Many wills of Essex-county people in the early days contain similar legacies.

The cash value of adult male negro slaves in the seventeenth century was about thirty pounds, and, in 1692, a law was passed compelling all males above the age of sixteen years to be assessed for taxation at twenty pounds apiece. Three years later the law was amended, and from and after that time healthy slaves above the age of fourteen years were assessed, males at twenty pounds, and females at fourteen.

In 1690, two men from New Jersey named Isaac Morrill and George Major, came into this section and endeavored to persuade the slaves to take up arms against their masters and fight for their own freedom. The men received a slight following, but the scheme came to be known before it had gained much headway, and Morrill was arrested May 29, 1690, and taken to Ipswich for examination, the result of which is unknown to the writer. The plan that these men had was this: to go by water from the mouth of the Merrimac to Canada, join the French, and then make a descent overland upon the English settlers.

Toward the close of the seventeenth century probably most of the slaves were Indians, and we find but slight importations of negroes, a few coming from Barbadoes. After that time, many of the imported negroes, perhaps all, came from the Carolinas. In 1708, the Province placed a duty on the importation of Indian slaves; and, four years later, another law was passed against bringing in Indians for servitude. They were so cruel, treacherous, surly and revengeful, that all who brought in such slaves were compelled to give bond to carry them out of the country again within a month, otherwise the slaves should be forfeited to the Crown, the act applying to those Indians "who were brought to be sold, disposed of and left within the Province."

Until some time in the eighteenth century it is probable that their marriage obligations to each other were by mutual consent, and of no legal binding force. In 1705, a law was passed forbidding English and Scotch people, and those of other Christian nations to marry negroes or mulattoes, allowing, however, such colored people to marry with those of their own nation. Soon after that date they were legally married, subject, however, to their respective owner's rights to sell them or cause a separation between them by other means.

In New York at that period, it was said "that they grew worse by being taught, and made Christians; no notice was given of their being sick, that they might be visited; but, on the contrary, frequent discourses were made in conversation, that they had no souls, and perished as the beasts; and they were buried by those of their own country and complexion, in the common field, without any Christian office; and perhaps some ridiculous heathen rites were performed at the grave by some of their own people." It is reasonable to believe from what we learn from the records in this county that the same ideas and practices prevailed here.

Although negroes were imported under a duty of four pounds per head, in 1706 the law of the Province provided that Indian captives, women and children, should be sold and transported.

Although slavery was generally esteemed to be an institution, some of the early settlers of the county desired that their slaves should enjoy the freedom which they themselves prized so highly in the new world. Several instances are on record where men gave liberty to their bondmen. One of these was Henry Jaques of Newbury, who, in his will, dated 1687, says: "Whereas Jasper, my Indian, hath been a good servant to me, my will is that he shall serve my executor faithfully after my decease six years, and then he shall be free." In the will of Richard Dole of that town, which has already been mentioned, made in 1698, he says: "My negro Grace shall have her freedom, if she will accept of it"; and "My negro servant Betty shall serve two years, and then she shall be free." But it is not known that they did so because they believed in the slave's natural right to be free; it was probably for other reasons, else they would have let them all go, and immediately.

The general court had already begun to encourage white labor, seeking indirectly probably to overthrow the disagreeable system of slavery in this region. In 1703 an act was passed whereby slaves were not permitted to be abroad after nine o'clock in the evening, unless they were upon some errand for their owners, because of the disorder that had been repeatedly raised by their night-time association. Insurrections had risen in many places against the masters, resulting sometimes in serious consequences. It was already felt that the system was dangerous to the community.

At first thought, the master who freed his slave is deemed to have done a meritorious act. In some cases, it was undoubtedly such, but in many instances, generally we presume, the object of such an act was, by reason of age or other infirmity, beyond the period of his usefulness; and as no one wished to buy a slave in such a condition, the only way to rid the owner of the burden of his support was to give him his freedom. This we conclude to be the case from the action of the General Court in 1703, when it passed a law, that no mulatto or negro slave should thereafter be manumitted, discharged or set free, until sufficient security was given to the treasurer of the town or place where such person dwelt, to indemnify the town or place in case such freed person, by sickness, lameness, or otherwise, was rendered incapable of supporting himself; and no person could be made free unless such bond was given; the penalty for breach thereof being not less than fifty pounds. Several freed their slaves after this law was passed, giving the necessary bond.

Slaves in the eighteenth century were of the same market value, as they had been in the preceding century. The following are some quotations: an Indian slave was valued at twenty pounds in 1716; a negro slave at fifty pounds in 1731; another at thirty-five in 1739; and another at one hundred pounds in 1728; a negro boy was quoted at forty pounds in 1738; a negro girl at ninety pounds in 1771; a Spanish Indian boy, under fourteen years of age, at thirty-eight pounds in 1718. The following copies of advertisements, that appeared in the Essex Gazette, in 1768 and 1770, respectively, serve as illustrations of the chattel nature of slavery in Essex county at that time:—

CHOATE BRIDGE, IPSWICH.

THE ORIGINAL STRUCTURE.

This was a famous structure in its day. It is the first stone-arch bridge built in America. Antiquarians and summer visitors pause to examine it and delight to carry away pictures of it. Making it the frontispiece of this number will gratify many a lover of the antique.

The bridge was a very important structure. It was a part of the great highway between Boston and Salem on the south and Newburyport, Portsmouth and the East on the north. It passed along the heavy baggage-wagons of local freight, and the rapid wheels of the mails. Over it marched Gen. Arnold's army and ordnance in 1775 on his way, by the woods of Maine, to join Montgomery in the assault upon Quebec. Over it was raised a beautiful arch, resplendent with flowers and mottoes, under which passed Gen. Lafayette when he visited the town.

An attendant circumstance of the construction of the bridge reminds one of the building of the Ark. The multitude cried: What folly! The first team that attempts to pass will break it through! Tradition says that the chairman of the building committee had his horse at hand at the opening of the bridge to the public, in order to escape the jeers of the crowds if it should fall.

It stood, however, and stands today, as substantial and serviceable as when it was built, one hundred and thirty years ago.

It was built by the County and Town, each bearing an equal share of the expense, which was 996 pounds 10 shillings 6 pence 3 farthings. The material was gathered from the pastures in the vicinity; it was then shaped and set in solid masonry. The contract called for a width of not less than twenty feet, a length between the abutments of sixty-eight feet, one pier twenty by eight feet, a water passage beneath each arch of thirty feet, and guards three feet high, fifteen inches thick at bottom and nine at top. The building committee were Hon. John Choate, Aaron Potter, Esq. and Joseph Appleton, Esq. It was completed in 1764, and named as above as a compliment to the chairmen of the building committee.

THE ADDITION.

In the thirties of the present century Ipswich was an important town. She was central in the County, and the home of men of wealth and learning; the courts were held upon her "Acropolis," and the Probate records were her faithful keeping; the business of the place demanded ampler highways.

In 1835, the County Commissioners entertained a petition for widening the bridge. Then began a series of town meetings, covering a period of three years. The Legislature was petitioned, and pleadings and remonstrances were rife. These things made the bridge still more noted.

July 30, 1835, Joseph Farley, Samuel N. Baker and Timothy Souther were chosen a committee to meet the County Commissioners, according to their notice, at the Court House, Aug. 10, with full power and authority in behalf of the Town to confer and co-operate with the said Commissioners in relation to the widening of Choate's Bridge and to paying the expense thereof.

Aug. 14, 1835, the committee reported and was instructed to confer further with the Commissioners and report at an adjourned meeting.

Sept. 14, 1835, the committee again made a report as on file. It had reference to widening the bridge and also to rebuilding the road leading from the bridge up the hill to Treadwell's Hotel.

The bridge committee, it is understood, was to continue, but a new committee was chosen to have the building of the road in charge. Josiah Caldwell, Joseph Farley and Ebenezer Burnham were chosen. They were instructed to petition the Commissioners for relief in making the road, to make inquiry as to the expense, and if deemed expedient, to ask for a new location of the road.

March 7, 1836, the committee chosen the 14th of the last, September was excused upon their request.

March 8, 1836, the committee was instructed to press the Commissioners for an alteration of the location of the road.

HENRY WHEATLAND, M. D.

COMMUNICATED.

The subject of this sketch stood at the head of original historical and genealogical research in Essex County. His wealth of knowledge, urbanity and readiness to aid had endeared him to a large corps of co-workers; and every person in the county who would honor the source of present life, who would justly prize this public patrimony, whose sympathies are touched by the trials, sorrows, labors, hopes, down the vista of years, and who is encouraged by the view of the glorious fruition of those labors and hopes, will cherish all efforts, however few or feeble, which may serve to perpetuate the memory of Dr. Henry Wheatland.

Henry Wheatland was born in Salem, January 11, 1812, to Richard and Martha-Goodhue Wheatland. He graduated at Harvard College in 1832, and at the Harvard Medical School in 1837. He never enjoyed robust health; it may be said, his health was never good. Early in life he sojourned in Europe and South America for recuperation. He had a natural taste for Natural History, and his travels were well adapted to develop and culture that taste. While abroad he made extensive collections, which enrich the cabinets of the scientific institutions of his native city.

He never actively engaged in the practice of medicine. In 1837 he was chosen superintendent of the museum of the East India Marine Society, and admirably conducted the office till 1848, when chiefly through his efforts the Essex County Natural History Society and the Essex Historical Society, of both which he was a member, were united in one and called "The Essex Institute."

For the good name and ability of the Institute, Dr. Wheatland labored half a century. He was its organizer and guide. He was a man of excellent natural ability, of extensive learning and highly esteemed as a citizen; he, therefore, drew around him men of wealth and learning, men who love to aid in works that culture, refine, instruct. Every aid he utilized, and he gave of his own exertion, till the object of his love occupied a position among the strongest and most useful in the land.

It is Dr. Wheatland's monument, more enduring than brass and so lofty as to be sighted across the world. The wealth of its archives is immense. Hardly a history can be written but some facts from the Institute are needed to make the work complete. How the monument will grow as the years perish! Who can measure the extent of historic and scientific research this institution has inspired? Who can measure the work and inspiration the students who have been graduated from its halls will inspire in others?

To these young men, a few years ago, the Doctor left the field of scientific research to give his time to local history and genealogy; and he was admitted to be one of the leading antiquarians of the country.

At his death, Dr. Wheatland was one of the original trustees of the Peabody Academy of Science and its vice-president, was a trustee of the Peabody Museum of American Archæology and Ethnology of Cambridge, and a member of the principal scientific and historical societies in the country.

The Doctor married in middle life, but by the death of his wife the union was soon severed. His death occurred at his home, in Salem, February 27, 1893, at the age of eighty-one, after an illness of more than a year.

A memorial service was held in Academy Hall in his honor. Reference was made to his unique character, his breadth of thought, his cultured habits of observation, his original methods of study and teaching, his natural aptitude in leading youth into habits of investigation, his gentle manners, his purity of motive, and his unselfishness,—all which and more united to make the excellent man.

ANCIENT CEMETERIES OF ESSEX COUNTY.

AMESBURY.

Golgotha.

Before 1663, the only cemetery in Amesbury was the ancient burial ground on the western side of the Powow river at its junction with the Merrimac. Every trace of its use is gone, it being now a field. In it the first settlers of the town found their final resting place.

Union Cemetery.

In 1663, the town of Amesbury bought an acre of land of Edmund Elliot for a burying-ground, it being what is now the eastern end of the ancient cemetery at Bartlett's corner. In the early days the church stood by its side or in it, and a few rods to the west was the Friends' cemetery, in which the poet Whittier's remains lie by the side of his family in their evergreen enclosure. In recent times the old cemetery has been enlarged so as to include the Friends' acre, and the latter is not to be distinguished from the rest of the yard except by the presence of some inconspicuous granite posts which mark the dividing line. The inscriptions in this old cemetery, still remaining, and bearing dates prior to 1800, are as follows:—

NOTED AND QUOTED.

In 1817, a bell, weighing 938½ pounds, was bought of Paul Revere & Sons, for four hundred dollars, and suspended in the tower of the Congregational church in Topsfield, "to be rung on all public days and tolled for funerals." The bell was transferred to the belfry of the present church when it was built in 1842, and is still in use there.

Nathan Peabody was post-rider between Haverhill and Salem in 1785, going from Haverhill to Salem Mondays and returning the next day.

Ipswich, May 23, 1775, "voted that Dummer Jewett, Esq., Capt. John Patch, Mr. Daniel Noyes, Dea. Stephen Choate, and Mr. Nathaniel Farley be a committee to confer with the other commietees of the several towns from Newburyport to Danvers, now met at Ipswich, respecting establishing a regular post from Newburyport to Cambridge, and what the sd. committees agree upon shall be binding."—Ipswich town-records.

Before the 24th of that May a post-office was established at Ipswich, and Dea. James Foster was the post-master.

THE REGISTER.

The object of this publication is to assist the historians and genealogist, and any who may have occasion to use the ancient records,—such as the State archives (muster-rolls of Revolutionary soldiers and others), the County records proper (deeds, wills, settlements of estates, court cases), the records of Towns (civic station, births, marriages, deaths), of Parishes and Churches (official service, baptisms), of gravestones (ages, epitaphs), and records contained in old Bibles and account-books, old letters and commissions, old almanacs, diaries and journals, and a variety of other parchments and papers.

Family histories and genealogies; histories of old cellars and homesteads; biographical sketches; antiquarian notes; dates of births, marriages, deaths; queries and replies; and kindred topics, will fill its pages.

The work will be illustrated with engravings of houses, churches, portraits, autographs, ancient handiwork in furniture and other articles, coat-armors, maps, gravestones, etc.

The REGISTER will assist in preserving many interesting and valuable papers and records that are perishing. To illustrate: the Second Parish and Church of Methuen are now extinct, the remnant of the membership having been absorbed by the First Parish and Church. All that can be found to tell the story of their "labor of love", is one small volume of parish records, covering only a part of the period of its life. This book was in private hands, and destined in another generation to "return to dust."

There are many families in the county who have old deeds, wills, letters, receipts, commissions, almanac memoranda, account-books, and a variety of papers, curious and ancient, that are likewise on the high-road to decay. These papers are oftentimes very valuable, holding the key to important queries. They ought to be published and doing good. Upon notice, the editor will examine them for the REGISTER.

Subscribers will not, of course, expect to find the full expression of our purpose in this number. New lines of research will be begun at once. The Revolutionary and shipping interests are important. Current obituaries of Essex-County natives, non-ogenarian and professional, will occupy but little space each month, and prove to be an admirable feature.

The Query column should perform a valuable mutual service. The large circulation of the Register in the county will make it the best medium of inquiry.

To his numerous subscribers the publisher extends his cordial thanks and "the compliments of the season" for their prompt response to his circular and for their kindly greetings, a few of which are here quoted:—

PROF. B. A. GOULD, Mass.: "I am glad to contribute my mite to your good undertaking."

REV. JACOB CHAPMAN, N. H.: "I wish you could have commenced seven years ago, upon the work you propose. I am 83 years old, and completing the fifth volume of 'Family History: Edward Chapman, of Ipswich, and his Descendants.' I cannot expect much aid from your researches; and yet I am ready to pay one dollar, if it will aid you in commencing such a work as may aid many in learning more about their ancestors."

P. N. SPOFFORD, Esq., N. Y.: "You have a fine field in which to work. I hope that your labors will be rewarded."

MRS. MARY S. P. GUILD, Mass.: "I shall be pleased to have my name enrolled as a subscriber to your magazine."

N. D. ADAMS, Esq., D. C.: "I trust you will meet with satisfactory encouragement."

REV. T. FRANK WATERS, Mass.: "* hoping you will meet with large and quick success."

REV. HORACE E. HAYDEN, Penn.: "I hope you will be able to establish your REGISTER, on ancient records, and exclude 1800 articles. Your grand old commonwealth is full of old history yet to be printed. I wish you success."

W. A. PERLEY, Esq., Mass.: "I gladly send you an order, as per circular, and wish you success in the undertaking."

REV. RUFUS EMERY, N. Y.: "I am glad that you intend publishing the items you have mentioned. It will fill a want long felt by every one who has been interested in genealogical work."

MISS ANNAH COLBY, Mass.: "Your circular gave me much satisfaction. I have long thought that there ought to be such a publication as you propose."

ADDISON H. FOSTER, M. D., Ill., enclosed two dollars for two subscriptions, "with my best wishes for the enterprise."

E. D. HARRIS, Esq., N. Y.: "I wish you all possible success in your enterprise."

OBITUARIES.

WILLIAM BAILEY died in Malden Nov. 21, 1893, aged 92 years, 9 months, 8 days. He was a native of Newburyport. At the age of twelve, he went to Malden, apprenticed himself to a blacksmith and learned to make nails by hand. That was the business of his life; he was largely interested in the manufacture of nails and iron, at the time of his death. Of his ten children only two survive him, two daughters who reside in Malden.

FRANKLIN HAVEN died at Beverly Farms, 31 Oct., 1893, at the age of 90 years. He was one of the pioneer summer residents, having bought a large estate, at West Beach, in 1846, upon which he built in 1848. His was the most extensive property on the North Shore. John O. King, C. O. Loring, P. T. Jackson and C. C. Paine were the only summer residents at the Farms, when Mr. Haven went there. His name has become historic in the famous Haven tax-cases.

REV. CHARLES T. JOHNSON died, at Winthrop, 26 Oct., 1893. He was born in Lynn—now Nahant—16 Oct., 1833. His father was a grocer there nearly fifty years, and postmaster thirty-two years. He studied in Wesleyan Academy, Wilbraham; he graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Ct., in 1863, and entered the ministry the same year. He was pastor at Ipswich, 1883-84.

REV. EDWARD A. LAWRENCE, D. D., pastor of the First Congregational Church, of Baltimore, Md., died in Johns Hopkins Hospital, of peritonitis, 10 Nov., 1893, aged 36 years.

He was born in Marblehead, graduated at Yale College, and received his doctorate from Beloit College, Wisconsin. He held pastorates at Sing Sing and Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and was called to Baltimore upon the resignation of Dr. Wm. F. Slocum, who had been elected president of Colorado College.

He was a close student of social problems, and rented a tenement and lived among those whose life he would study and improve. His congregation supported an industrial school in the neighborhood.

At his dying bed were his betrothed, Miss Laura Munn of Baltimore, his mother, of Boston, and his sister, wife of Dr. Wallace Nims, of Syracuse, N. Y.

EBEN H. REDDING, born in Gloucester, 24 Sept., 1880, died 9 Nov., 1893, at his home in New York, aged 93 years.

He was a tinsmith in early life; joined the Gloucester artillery 17 June, 1817, became fireman in 1830, and member of the Independent Parish committe in 1835. About 1840, he removed to Boston; thence to New York: in both places he was weigher and gauger. His last days were spent with his grandchildren.

He married Mary Frances, daughter of Col. Joseph Foster. She died at Spring Valley, 25 March, 1885. He had several children, among whom was a daughter Frances who was a physician in New York.

NATHANEL FOSTER, the oldest citizen of Newburyport, died there 21 Oct., 1893, aged 96 years, 7 months. He was born in Rowley, and was a citizen of Newburyport 83 years, and in active business 70 years. He was marshal of procession to receive Lafayette in 1824; he held many offices of trust.

NATHANIEL GAGE of Bradford, died 12 Dec., 1893, aged 92 years. He was the oldest man in Bradford, and was a son of Capt. Nathaniel Gage, an officer in the Revolutionary army. He had held all the offices within the gift of the town. He leaves one daughter.

JAMES ROBINSON NEWHALL died, in Lynn, 24 Oct., 1893, at the age of 83 years, 10 months. He was born there 25 Dec., 1809, a lineal descendant of Thomas, the reputed first-born white child of Lynn. The cause of his death was his great age, delicate health and a hard cold. In 1824, he was apprenticed to the printer's trade in the Salem Gazette office, and became an editor and publisher. In 1844, he began the practice of law; in 1849 was appointed special justice of the Lynn police court, and in 1866 judge, which office he held thirteen years. In 1836 he published the "Essex Memorial"; in 1862, "Lin, or Jewells of the Third Plantation"; in 1865, "History of Lynn", embracing and continuing Alonzo Lewis' History; in 1883, a second volume of the "History of Lynn". He prepared for the city council, a "Centennial Memorial of Lynn" and the "Proceedings of the 250th Anniversary of the Settlement of Lynn, 17 June, 1879." He was a member of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

His first wife was Dorcas B. Brown, only daughter of Capt. W. B. Brown of Salem. She had one child, and died soon after its birth; the child died at the age of ten. His second wife, Widow Elizabeth Campbell, daughter of Hon. Josiah Newhall and sister of Harrison Newhall, survives him.

MRS. MARY B. GOULD, widow of the late Abraham J. Gould, died in Andover, Nov., 30, 1893, at the age of 94 years and 9 months.

Notices of A. K. Ober, T. B. Newhall, James Carey, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Downes, and Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley will appear in the next number.

ANDREW FOSTER AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

The name of Andrew Foster of Andover appears in the list of first settlers who came about 1640. There are twelve "items" of grants to him. Only one is dated — a grant of two acres "on west side of Shawshen River, 10th July, [16]82". The first grant — a house-lot — was probably among those of the first settlers on Cochickewick Brook, between the Great Pond and the Merrimac River. His first two items read thus:—

"Imp^f Granted to Andrew Foster a five acre houselott Bounded on ye north with ye land of John Lovejoyes, —on ye west and south with ye land of Thomas Rowell and mine stone land, & on ye east by Street."

"It. Granted an acre to build on: bounded on ye north ye land of John Lovejoy, and ye fence on ye south and west"

A study of the grants named, Lovejoy's, Rowell's, and Foster's, reveals no hint of the locality — what part of the town. His grants, as a whole, appear to be widely scattered in different parts of the town. Most of them, however, were in the extreme southerly corner, near Wilmington, and around Foster's Pond, which was named for him, no doubt.

We do not find him in official station, simply probably because he was located so far from the town-center — from town offices. The probate inventory of his estate shows him a diligent man, a good citizen; his will exhibits his Christian spirit and submission. He was made freeman in 1669. His will is dated 18 April 1685. In it he speaks of himself as "very aged," and names his wife Ann his executrix. He died in Andover 7 May, 1685, and the town record reads, "aged 106 years". His will was proved 30 June, 1685. He is thought, by one of the Andover historians, to have been, at death, more than a score of years younger. He could hardly have been so old, unless there was a great disparity in the ages of himself and wife, which, to be sure, very often occurs. His wife died 3 Dec., 1692.

His will says "I give my soul into the hands of my blefsed Lord Jesus christ who has purchafed the same with his precious blood And my body I leave to my relatives and friends to be decently interred by them." "I give into my eldest son Andrew foster besides the five acres of meadow I have formerly given him four acres of meadow more or lefs lyeing at the southeaft end of my home meadow wch I formerly bought of Andrew Allen lyeing without the meadow which was fenced and five acres of swamp land lyeing neare his house. Also I give into him fourty acres of land be the same more or less called by the name of polehill ground and one ackre of land in Cocheckek field. I give my daughter Sarah besides what she hath already of me two sheep. To my daughter hannah I have given her portion already. To my daughter mary I give twenty acres of land lyeing in shawshen field lyeing neare the land called Copers (?) land."

To his "deare and Loveing wife Ann foster." he gave the end of the house they occupied, three cows, twelve sleep and his household goods for her disposal at death among his children. He gave his son Abraham "my farme of about one hundred acres of upland with all the meadow adjoining or neare adjoyning," also the house and home-lot and orchard, and all the land adjoining, and the remainder of the home-meadow bought of Andrew Allen, and remainder of his stock." Abraham was, during the natural life of his mother, to winter her cows and sheep, to deliver her half the "corn English and Indian grown upon the home-lot threshed and winnowed," half the fruit of the orchard made into "fydar," and sufficient firewood. He named his "loveing wife Ann foster executiv" and his son Abraham executor. His will is signed with "the mark of Andrew Foster" and is witnessed by Thomas and William Chandler. It is recorded in Probate Records, 302: 136. It was proved 30 June, 1685.

The probate inventory of his estate was made 12 April, 1685, by Thomas and William Chandler, thus:—

"Imp. houseing and land	£ 385 0 0
Cattell of all sorts	77 4 0
all other moveable estate	42 0 0
sum total	£ 504 4 0"

Mrs. Ann Foster was the executrix of her husband's will; she was in court, 30 June, 1685, and made oath to the inventory of her husband's estate. She attended to the probate in person, and of course understood the methods and the reason of the law. She had business experience, and was certainly a woman of acknowledged integrity and of average capacity and ability. Nevertheless seven years later, she was accused, tried, and condemned as a witch. Her case with others is spread upon pages 199-219 of Miss Bailey's excellent History of Andover. Miss Bailey says "Several women who confessed, accused Martha Currier as the cause of their being led into witchcraft. Three of them were Ann Foster, her daughter Mary Lacey and her granddaughter Mary Lacey Jr. Ann Foster said she rode on a stick with Martha Currier to Salem Village (now Danvers), that the stick broke and she saved herself by clinging around Martha Currier's neck. She said they met 300 witches at Salem Village.  The story was confirmed by the daughter and granddaughter." The history comments further: "Ann Foster, however, was not hanged, having died in prison before the law could take its course. She was an aged woman, a widow, without friends of influence to give aid in her distress. She was evidently weak in mind and body, and was ready at the trial to confess almost anything, and believe everything which was suggested against them. Indeed some of these women had been so long used to contemplate their natural and acquired depravity, in its most aggravated forms, that some of the sensitive and self-accusing were ready, even in ordinary religious meditations, to regard themselves as guilty of almost all sin, believing literally that 'he that offendeth in one point is guilty of all'. The piety of Ann Foster is especially spoken of by her sons, and there can be little doubt that she was led to charge herself with the sin of witchcraft in all sincerity and contrition. A broken-down old woman in her decrepitude and weakness, torn from her quiet home, brought on a long journey to prison and a court-room, accused of blaspheming her God and forsaking her Savior,—what wonder if she sank and died under such a weight of miseries. She was four times examined — July 15, 16, 18, 21. It is pitiful to think of this poor, tottering, feeble creature, dragged again and again before her accusers, and finally dismissed to the sheriff to be 'taken care of' as guilty." Miss Bailey thinks Mrs. Foster "overdid in confession." She confessed that she had bewitched a hog of John Lovejoy's, caused the death of one of Andrew Allen's children, made another child sick, and 'hurt' Timothy Swan. She said "her manner of hurting was to make images (called in the records 'poppets') of the persons with rags, and stick pins in them, or 'tye knots in the rags' or burn them in the fire. The persons whom these images were made to represent would suffer whenever she pinched or burned or pricked the 'poppet'."

The daughter accused the mother of bewitching her, but this the mother would not confess. The examiner asked: "Do you not acknowledge that you did so," and she replied: "No, and I know no more of my daughter's being a witch than what day I shall die upon." Again he says: "You cannot expect peace of conscience without a free confession," when she replied: "If I knew anything more I would speak of it to the utmost." Again the daughter accused her, and the mother's emotion played upon her lips. "What are you doing," said the examiner. "I am praying to the Lord," she replied. "What Lord," said the examiner sternly — "What God do witches pray to," when overborne and distracted the Christian mother exclaimed: "I cannot tell; the Lord help me!"

About a score of years thereafter, upon petition, the State made some return to the children of the unfortunate victims. Ann Foster's son's petition is as follows: —

"To the Honorable Committee now Setting at Salem:

Whereas my mother Ann Foster of Andover suffered imprisonment 21 weeks, and upon her Tryall was condemned for supposed witchcraft upon such evidence as is now Generally thought Insufficient and died in prison, I being well persuaded of my mother's innocency of the crime for which she was condemned, I humbly desire that the attainder may be taken off.

The charges and expenses for my mother during her imprisonment is as follows:— The money which I was forced to pay the keeper before I could have the dead body of my mother to bury her was £ 12 10s.

Money and provisions expended while she was in prison 4

Total expense £ 16 10s."

This sum of money the petitioner received, and also for his sister Mary Lacey £18 10s., on petition and by order of her husband Lawrence Lacey.

CHOATE BRIDGE, IPSWICH.

Concluded from Vol. 1, page 6.

May 16, 1836, Ephraim F. Miller, Frederic Mitchell and Ezekiel Dodge were chosen by the town, "a committee to confer, on behalf of the Town, with the County Commissioners, in reference to the construction of the road over the Ross estate, as now ordered by said commissioners, and also to the widening of Choate's Bridge; and that said committee be directed and empowered to contract or agree, on behalf of the town, with said commissioners, for the construction of said road, according to the aforesaid order, or in some other equally suitable and convenient manner,—provided that the expense of the same to the town shall not exceed the sum of $1000; and to contract or agree, as aforesaid, for the widening of said bridge, in a substantial and faithful manner, so that the same, when widened, shall not be less than thirty feet wide in the clear,—provided the expense of the same to the town shall not exceed $1200."

At an adjourned meeting of May 16, which was held June 27, it was voted, that the votes passed at that meeting (May 16) be reconsidered.

In accordance with a warrant, another meeting was held the same day, June 27. A motion, that the committee chosen May 16 confer further with the Commissioners, was passed in the negative. It was then voted, that the chairman of the committee report their doings, and he declined to report. Voted that a committee of three be chosen, by ballot, to confer with the Commissioners on the 12th July next according to their notice. Ephraim F. Miller, Frederic Mitchell and Ezekiel Dodge were chosen. This committee was "instructed to report the condition on which the Commissioners will widen Choate's Bridge and make the road from the bridge to the Agawam House, and what alteration they will make in the location of said road", and also "to petition the Commissioners for an alteration in the location of the road".

July 25, 1836, Joseph Farley, Hamilton Brown, and Ebenezer Caldwell were chosen a committee "to let out the making of the road from the Agawam House to Choate's Bridge and contract therefore" on behalf of the town, according to the order and consent of the Commissioners.

Mch. 13, 1837, the Legislature had notified the Town of a petition of Henry Whipple and others for an act in addition to an act to give the Commissioners full power and authority to widen Choate's Bridge. The town chose Asa Andrews, Josiah Caldwell and William Conant to remonstrate against the passage of any act "that shall make the town liable for any part of the expense of widening Choate's Bridge, said bridge being over tide-water."

June 19, 1837, a motion to postpone further action on the notice of the Commissioners about Choate Bridge was negatived. The Selectmen were chosen a committee to "wait on the County Commissioners when making the location, &c., of Choate's Bridge, and attend to the interests of the town", and they declined to serve. The Overseer were chosen a committee for that purpose, and they declined. Joseph Farley, Daniel Cogswell and Otis P. Lord were chosen, and they declined.

August 15, 1837, "the order of the Hon. Court of County Commissioners, directing the Inhabitants of the Town of Ipswich to widen Choate's Bridge in said town, being read and maturely considered, it was thereupon voted, that all further action on the order aforesaid be postponed indefinitely."

June 27, 1838, "an Order of notice from the County Commissioners, relating to the widening of Choate Bridge having been read and considered, voted unanimously, that any further action on the subject be indefinitely postponed".

Previous to Jan. 21, 1839, the Commissioners had notified the town of a tax of $1037.50, as the town's proportion of the expense of widening Choate Bridge. On that date, a town-meeting was held and Joseph Farley, Nathaniel Kinsman and Ebenezer Burnham were made a committee, and authorized to take legal advice, about paying for the widening of the bridge, and report at the next annual meeting.

At the annual meeting, March 15, 1839, the committee reported, and the town voted to hire $1100 to pay for the bridge. It is safe to remark, without consulting the Commissioners' records, that the bridge was widened during the latter part of 1838, and that it cost the town $1037.50, as above.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

In the eighteenth century, black people were comparatively more numerous in the maritime towns than in the country. Negro infants were regarded as of little value, and reckoned rather as an incumbrance in a family, as they required much care, and many years must elapse before they were able to perform labor. They were sometimes given away as soon as weaned, being advertised for that purpose in the current newspapers.

In 1754, there were in Essex County 439 slaves, and in the state 2717. In Beverly there were twenty-eight, twelve males and sixteen females; in Haverhill, sixteen above the age of sixteen years; and in Salem, eighty-three, thirty-six of them being females, and forty-seven males, and about thirty-four more under sixteen years of age. In 1755, there were nine male and sixteen female slaves in Danvers; and in Ipswich, sixty-two above the age of sixteen. In Haverhill, in 1764, there were twenty-five slaves above the age of sixteen; and in Beverly, in 1765, there were eighty blacks. These figures give some idea of the extent of slavery here at the period mentioned.

March 10, 1755, Dea. Timothy Pickering was empowered by the town of Salem to petition the General Court in their behalf to prohibit the importation of negroes, the town's people probably feeling that it would be detrimental to the interests of the white inhabitants to introduce more of these colored laborers.

About 1710, Judge Sewall wrote and published a tract against slavery, entitled "The Selling of Joseph." In 1716, he wrote in his diary: "I essayed to prevent negroes and Indians being rated with horses and cattle, but could not succeed." With the exception of a man in Nantucket, this was the only instance where the hand of mercy was publicly extended to the slave in Massachusetts until the famous Stamp Act was passed by Great Britain, which caused the promulgation of broader ideas of liberty and equality.

In the meantime, and perhaps to some extent by the effect of Judge Sewall's position in the matter, the privileges of the slaves in this section had been increased. Their marriages were solemnized by clergymen in the usual manner of the period; and the master of the groom gave him a suit of clothes to wear on the occasion, and a piece of money for the wedding fee. They were relieved from labor on the Sabbath, and admitted into full communion in the churches, although the negroes' seats were the only ones they were permitted to occupy at the services; their children were baptized the same as the white infants; and sometimes the remains of a favorite slave were given burial in the family lot.

They were generally treated humanely, if they were mild and peaceable. They were not allowed to defend themselves, unless under extreme circumstances, as they were prohibited from striking a man on penalty of being sold out of the province. The house of correction was an object of terror to them, but to be sold to the West Indies or the Carolinas was the severest punishment that could be threatened or inflicted. An instance of this kind of punishment occurred in Danvers in the early part of the eighteenth century.* A negro, named Cudge, became enraged at his mistress, and swore that he would kill her; and neither words nor threats had any effect to pacify him. The family were greatly alarmed, knowing his ungovernable savage character that nothing could restrain. His master devised a plan for the permanent relief of the family, and then went into the field with a hoe in his hand, and said —

“Cudge, you have had rather hot work getting in the potatoes.”

“Yes, massa, hot enough.”

“Well, I am going to give you a play-day. I have sold fifty bushels, to be delivered on board a vessel at the wharf in Salem, and if you would like it, you may go in with the load.”

“Oh! yes, massa; like it very well.”

“You may have the whole day, Cudge. So you can take your fiddle with you, and play a jig for the sailors, and so get a few coppers for yourself.”

Cudge was highly pleased with the proposal, and started off in great glee. After unloading the potatoes, the sailors, who were partners in carrying out the plan, called upon Cudge to bring out his fiddle and play a jig, that they might have one merry dance before going to sea. The negro's eyes and teeth shone; the fiddle was produced and soon the deck of the brig was the scene of a merry country dance. Coppers fell thick and fast around the slave, and Cudge's music was somewhat broken by his breaks in seeking to save the coins. Presently, one of the sailors said —

“Cudge, your fiddle is getting dry; you must go below and rosin your bow.”

Cudge took the hint with alacrity, and adjourned with his jovial party to the forecastle. Here, with drinking, fiddling, singing and dancing, two or three hours passed away, and Cudge had almost filled his pockets with coppers. At length, starting up, as from a dream, he exclaimed: —

“Yah! I must go up, and see how the cattle stand.”

He went up; but, to his utter amazement, there were neither cattle nor cart to be seen; no, nor houses, nor wharf. The brig was many miles out at sea, and Cudge was bound to a southern clime. He went to the same market as the potatoes, and was sold on the same account.

Prior to the Revolution, slaves in this region had their freedom from the last Wednesday morning in May to the end of the week. In imitation of their masters, they chose a governor for one year. This occasion was frequently preceded with ambitious and discordant management among them. When the long-wished-for day of anticipated pleasure came, they were seen attired in their best, with drums, banners, guns and swords. The civil authorities sometimes issued orders to suppress annoyances, with which these exhibitions were attended. One of the spots where the colored horde met for the purpose of exercising their pseudo right of suffrage was near the Collins' farm in Danvers. The business consisted in the election of governor, and the adoption of regulations such as the circumstances of their association required. The rest of the time was spent in amusements, chiefly in dancing to the squeak of the fiddle. The abuses of these holidays led to immoralities, which called for frequent admonition.

The condition of the slaves was constantly improving, although for half a century no one had publicly espoused their cause. At length the people saw the gross inconsistency of contending for their own freedom from British tyranny, when they were holding large numbers in abject bondage. It became a common topic of conversation; and in 1767 an attempt was made in the legislature to abolish the slave trade, but it failed.

Public opinion soon became so changed in relation to the rights of slaves, however, that courts in several instances refused to recognize such a condition, and juries invariably gave their verdict in favor of liberty. Several cases of this kind occurred in Essex County courts, one, at least, before the Somerset case was decided by the court of King's Bench in England. This was the case of Jenny Slew, a slave of John Whipple, Jr., of Ipswich, who sued her master, in 1765, for detaining her in bondage. The defence was that there was no such person as Jenny Slew, &c., but the plea was overruled, and at the November term of court in 1766, the jury found in her favor. The justices of the superior court of judicature that tried this case were John Choate, Caleb Cushing, Nathaniel Ropes and Andrew Oliver. In 1773, another case of this kind was decided in the courts of this county. Cæsar, a negro of Richard Greenleaf of Newburyport, sued his master for holding him as a slave. The bondman's counsel was John Lowell, afterward Judge Lowell, and he won the case.

Rev. Jedediah Jewett of Rowley, who died in 1774, having inherited two female slaves, made them free at his decease, and bound his estate for their support in case of poverty and need in their old age.

Essex County was ever the hot-bed of freedom, and its voice was foremost and strongest in favor of abolition. Rev. Samuel Webster of Salisbury, March 2, 1769, published "An earnest Address to my country on Slavery," and thus started the final attempt to overthrow legalized slavery on the soil of our shire and state. He says:—

"I fear, I greatly fear that it is want of honesty more than want of light, which continues it in the world. This is too plain a case for men always to deceive themselves in. I must believe that most, who desire to see, can here see what is right, and do see and feel, if they have any understanding, and any bowels of mercies. What then is to be done? Done! for God's sake break every yoke and let these oppressed ones go free without delay—let them taste the sweets of that liberty, which we so highly prize, and are so earnestly supplicating God and man to grant us: nay, which we claim as the natural right of every man. Let me beseech my countrymen to put on bowels of compassion for these their brethren (for so I must call them,) yea, let me beseech you for your own sake and for God's sake, to break every yoke and let the oppressed go free."

At the commencement of Harvard College in 1773, Essex County was again at the front, and a portion of the exercises was a forensic disputation "on the legality of enslaving the Africans," by Theodore Parsons and Eliphalet Pearson, two candidates for the bachelor's degree, and both natives of Newbury. This discussion was published the same year in a pamphlet of forty-eight pages, and it went out to be read and discussed by the thousands that were interested in the question.

THE BUFFET.

The frontispiece of this number is a fine representation of an ancient concomitant of good house-keeping. It was made to occupy a corner of the best room; it had folding doors below, but none above; it was, however, sometimes draped above. It never fitted into the square corner; its back was circular. The shelving followed the contour of the back, but in front usually had a circular projection.

The use of the buffet began after the service of trenchers and wooden spoons, or with the early well-to-do families who on particular occasions spread their tables with wares of pewter. It contained the best table-service and conspicuously upon one of the circular projections the wine-set. It was a mark of excellent housewifery and thrift, when the buffet pewter glistened and wine gave its color in the decanter. The liquor or wine-set was always in requisition when the squire, the parson, or other civic or professional called, because it was thus an attractive and conspicuous exponent of primitive gentility, thrift and hospitality, it has come down to us as a choice relic of our worthy sires.

OBITUARIES.

HON. CHARLES PINKNEY THOMPSON, judge of the Superior Court of Massachusetts, and ex-member of Congress, born at Braintree, 30 July, 1827, died at Gloucester, 19 January, 1894. Judge Thompson was admitted to the bar in 1854. He made his home in Gloucester in 1857, where he built up a large and lucrative law practice, being at all times a safe counsellor. He represented Gloucester in the Legislature in 1871 and 1872, taking an active part in all matters which came before that body. He represented the old Seventh District in Congress, in 1875-7, securing an election over the popular general, Benjamin F. Butler. As chairman of the House Committee "on the recent election in Florida," in 1877, he was brought prominently before the public as a staunch defender of the claim, that Samuel J. Tilden had been duly elected to the presidency of the United States. Returning from Congress with high honors, Judge Thompson, in 1880-81, was his party's candidate for governor. He served Gloucester on the School Board, 1859, '60, '61, '62; was city solicitor, 1874-5-7-8-9; a director in the Gloucester Lyceum and Sawyer Free Library, and was one of the executors of the estate of the late Samuel E. Sawyer. He was appointed a justice of the Superior Court, by Governor Robinson, in 1885. Judge Thompson was in every sense a man of the people, and his genial presence will long be cherished by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance.

WESLEY KENDALL BELL died at Ipswich, 8 Jan., 1894. He was born in Albany, Maine, 10 Aug., 1825. He was one of a large family of brothers and sisters. He was educated in Wilbraham Academy, and in 1850, located in Ipswich and began his life of eminent usefulness in what is now the Dennison Grammar School, where he remained till 1868, a period of eighteen years. Leaving the school, he was made Internal Revenue Collector, and soon thereafter a trial-justice, an appointment which he exercised for twenty-one or more years, and which, though not bred to the law, he discharged with fidelity and good judgment. He represented his district in the Legislature in 1870. Except one year, he served upon the school board of his town from 1869 till his death. He was town-clerk of Ipswich twenty-three years, 1865-88, a duty, honorable and exacting, yet he gave a satisfactory and gentlemanly service. His business was real estate and insurance. He was located in Caldwell Block, and occupied the same room for twenty-five years. Soon after locating in Ipswich, he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was one of the pillars there for many years; he was a trustee at the time of his death. He was a member of Agawam Lodge of Odd Fellows for many years and for several years a member of Naumkeag Encampment in Salem. He married 24 November, 1863, Kate Broderick Noyes, who died 21 April, 1892. They leave no children.

Mr. Bell was an efficient man wherever he served. His business was done with promptness and accuracy. He was liked by the pupils of all the schools; his business friends were numerous; and he had a host of social friends. Everybody liked "Judge Bell." He understood the eternal fitness of things, planted himself upon the righteous side of whatever cause he espoused, and defended his position with no mean ability. He was generous, warm-hearted and a lasting friend. His life was full of labor and good deeds.

MISS ELIZABETH ANNIE JOHNSON, principal of Bradford Academy, died 8 Jan., 1894, at the age of 67 years. She was buried from Academy Hall, Prof. Smythe of Andover Theological Seminary officiating. She had been many years principal; a recent shock of paralysis proved fatal. She was daughter of a Congregational minister, and born in Saco, Me. Under her government the school signally prospered.

JAMES CAREY died at his home in Dorchester, 7 Nov., 1893. He had been in his usual health, and dropped in death while conversing with his wife. He was sheriff of this county from 1856, succeeding Thomas F. Payson, to 1867, when he was succeeded by Horatio G. Herrick. He was born in Newburyport in 1819, was by trade a butcher; and celebrated his silver wedding 23 Jan., 1889. His wife was Sarah Wheeler of Newburyport, who survives him.

He leaves also three children, James, Jr., Willis S. and Mrs. James N. Allen of Brockton; two sisters, Mrs. Amelia Tenney Ross of Newburyport and Mrs. Elizabeth Green of Ipswich; and two brothers, David, of Dunkirk, N. Y., and Charles W., of Brooklyn, N. Y.

THOMAS BANCROFT NEWHALL died in Lynn 25 Sept., 1893, at the age of 81 years, 11 months, having been born 2 Oct., 1811. In 1890, his health failing he retired from his profession and was soon after stricken with paralysis. He was a lineal descendant of the first Thomas.

He fitted for college in Andover and Lynn academies, and graduated at Brown University in 1832, studied law in Danvers, Boston and Harvard Law School, joined the Bar in 1837, and soon after began practice in Lynn. When the Lynn police court was established, he was appointed judge, which office he held till his resignation in 1866. He was a member of Lynn's first city government and was postmaster in 1842. He had served on the school and water boards, as commissioner of several sinking funds, as member for several years of the State Board of Health, as president for years of the Lynn Five Cents Savings Bank, as president for twenty-three years of the Lynn Mutual Fire Insurance Company and some time trustee of the Home for Aged Women. He also served as city solicitor and in 1853 was elected mayor but declined to accept.

His wife was Susan S. Putman of Salem, whom he married in 1852 and who survives him with two children, James S. Newhall and Mrs. Caroline P. Heath of Boston.

NOTED AND QUOTED.

DIED. "At Ipswich Nov. 5, Deacon ABRAHAM HOWE, aged 72. For many years a professor of the Christian religion, and an undiffembled friend to the clergy. He was a man of benevolence, humanity, and public spirit. A faithful provident husband, an affectionate generous parent, a kind obliging neighbour, and a useful respectable townsman: as an officer of the Church he was revered, as a military officer he was respected, in life he was beloved, and in death lamented by his numerous acquaintance and friends." — Salem Gazette, Nov. 17, 1797.

"DIED. At Andover, Mr. Stephen Cummins, aged 40 — a man of an excellent mechanical genius, and honest principles." Salem Gazette, April 25, 1797.

BOOK NOTICES.

WILL CUMA; OR, HISTORICAL AND GENEALOGICAL NOTES ON THE WILLCOMB FAMILY, by O. Clifton Willcomb, Lynn; illustrated, pp. 48.

The work is typographically very superior; it begins with Peter Welcome of 1665, and exhibits patient labor all along the line. Every Willcomb should own it, and others can find good use for it.

EDWARD CHAPMAN OF IPSWICH, MASS., 1642-1678, AND HIS DESCENDANTS, by Jacob Chapman, A. M., Exeter, N. H.; 8vo, illustrated, pp. 149; cloth.

Rev. Jacob Chapman has now published five genealogies, and his name is a sufficient guarantee that this is a publication of excellent work. It is a handsome book for the table, and has a copious index which greatly enhances its value. The Chapman family is numerous in this county, and the work ought to have an extensive sale.

STRAY PEBBLES FROM THE SHORES OF THOUGHT, by Miss Elizabeth Porter Gould, Chelsea; portrait of author; pp. 220; price, 75 cents.

Miss Gould talks with nature and social life in their various forms, phases, and forces; and the lessons are new, pleasing, ennobling. The book is a cabinet of rare minerals; every "pebble" is a gem that sparkles. The Boston Transcript, Literary World, and Education, commend it.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

In 1773, another attempt was made to abolish the slave trade in the province. The town of Salem instructed its representatives to use their exertions to prevent the importation of negroes into the jurisdiction, as "repugnant to the natural rights of mankind, and highly prejudicial to the Province." When the legislature assembled, another bill to carry out the same purpose was sustained by the house only, and was therefore unsuccessful. The next year, a similar bill passed both houses, and although Governor Hutchinson was urgently desired to sign the bill, a committee of negroes themselves waiting upon him for that purpose, he refused to give it his assent, as, he said, he could not do so under his instructions as His Majesty's governor. The next year, the bill again passed both houses, but Governor Gage followed the example of his predecessor.

The people were undaunted by these failures. They but served to enhance their wishes for independence of the mother country. The pulpit and the press stirred up the people by sermons and essays in behalf of the slave.

June 5, 1774, Rev. Nathaniel Niles, an able and zealous advocate for emancipation delivered two sermons on "Liberty" in the North Church in Newburyport, which were published in Newburyport the same year by I. Thomas and H. W. Tinges, "at the general desire of the hearers." Among other things he said:—

"Would we enjoy liberty? Then we must grant it to others. For shame, let us either cease to enslave our fellow-men, or else let us cease to complain of those that would enslave us. Let us either wash our hands from blood, or never hope to escape the avenger.  Now is the decisive moment. God sets before us life and death, good and evil, blessing and cursing, and bids us choose. Let us therefore choose the good and refuse the evil, that we may live and not die."

It is doubtful if at the time there was any man in the region more interested in emancipation than Benj.

amin Colman of Byfield. He talked, wrote and prayed for it, made all occasions proper times to discuss the question, and the people were no doubt greatly influenced in their final action by his earnest and unceasing efforts. The next month after Mr. Niles' sermons on liberty had been delivered, Mr. Colman contributed to the Essex Journal, published in Newburyport, a two-column article on the subject. He says:—

"I pray that we may refrain at present from any bitter reflection on the British ministry and search among ourselves and see if we cannot find an Achan, an accursed thing, that is the troubler of our land and for which God is at this day contending with us. Among the innumerable evils, that abound among us, I look upon the oppression, bondage and slavery exercised upon our poor brethren the Africans to be a God-provoking and a wrath-procurring sin. * * They are as free by nature as we, or any other people, have a natural right to liberty and freedom as much as we and it is only by power and tyranny that they are brought and kept under this cruel yoke of bondage and this iniquity is established by law in this province, and although there have been some feeble attempts made to break the yoke and set them at liberty yet the thing is not effected, but they are still kept under the cruel yoke of bondage. Shall we, my fathers and brethren, or can we lift up our faces with confidence before God, by solemn prayer, that he would remove the yoke of bondage from us and set us at liberty from the bondage that lays upon us, while we keep a tenfold heavier yoke upon the necks of our brethren, the negroes? * * That we * * may * * break every yoke of oppression, * * is I trust the prayer of every friend to New England."

Sept. 16, 1775, he addressed a letter to the town's representative in the general court, which was published in the Essex Journal, the next March. He said in this that,

"I should be ready to think that every rational person, and especially every christian American would detest the thought of keeping their brethren in bondage; especially when they themselves are struggling for liberty, and deliverance from oppression brought upon them by their brethren. But such is the infatuation, with which this idol god, gain, has overcome this people; that although we unitedly say, we will spill our blood, and lose our lives in the defence of liberty; yet we don't grant it to those poor oppressed brethren of ours, who have been under the yoke of slavery (themselves and their ancestors) this one hundred years past. * * The poor oppressed negroes are waiting with wishful expectation that the Almighty in this day of our calamity will open our eyes and set them at liberty. * * I entreat and beseech you by all the love you have for this town, by all the regard you have for this distressed, bleeding province, or for the American colonies in general, that you exert yourself, and improve your utmost endeavours at the court to obtain a discharge for the slaves from their bondage."

Mr. Colman was a deacon in the church at Byfield, of which at that time Rev. Moses Parsons was pastor. Mr. Parsons was a slave holder, and a conflict between pastor and deacon on the matter of slavery soon raged fiercely. Charges were made against each other, and the church took them up in December, 1780. Many meetings were subsequently held, in which the pastor was sustained; Deacon Colman being suspended from the fellowship and communion of the church. The matter was brought up year after year until 1785, Mr. Parsons having died two years before, when the deacon was restored to fellowship upon confessing that he did not show a due concern for Mr. Parsons' character and usefulness. *

* A full account of this controversy with the full text of the charges may be found in Coffin's HISTORY OF NEWBURY, pages 342-350.

In 1776, after belligerent captures at sea had brought up the question of negro slavery in a new form, another Essex County case appeared in the courts, involving the issue of the slave question. The sloop Hannibal, of sixty tons burden, commanded by William Fitzpatrick, the cargo and appurtenances, two negroes being among them, were advertised to be sold at auction at Salem Sept. 17, of that year. Four days previous to the day of sale, the house of representatives passed the following resolve forbidding the sale of the two slaves:

“Resolved that the selling and enslaving the human species is a direct violation of the natural rights alike vested in all men by their Creator, and utterly inconsistent with the avowed principles on which this and the other United States have carried their struggle for liberty even to the last appeal, and therefore that all persons concerned with the said negroes be, and they hereby are, forbidden to sell them or in any manner to treat them otherwise than is already ordered for the treatment of prisoners of war taken in the same vessel or others in the like employ; and, if any sale of the said negroes shall be made, it hereby is declared null and void.”

By 1776, some slaves had taken their freedom, and were not forced to return. Others asked for it and were not denied. Some towns voted that no bondage should exist among them, and that no man should be answerable for his manumitted servants.

The society of Friends was the first religious body that supported the cause of emancipation, and they made quick, clean work of it, as far as their own membership was concerned.

Although never enrolled in the militia, some of the slaves in our country served in the Revolutionary war on the side of independence, performing good service, of whom stories of bravery are still told.

In 1780, the constitution of Massachusetts was framed, and the first article in the declaration of rights was, that “all men are born free and equal.” This was inserted for the purpose of entirely abolishing slavery, within the limits of the state, which then included the state of Maine, and the article has remained in full force to this day.

COMMERCIAL.

Mr. Edwin T. Pike of Ipswich has the shipping-paper of the schooner Sarah, of Newburyport, bound for Alexandria and back. It is dated 8 March, 1827. James Pike was master; William Townsend, mate; Enoch Greenleaf and Thomas Williams, seamen; and George W. Griffin, cook. The wages per month or run were—mate's $13, seaman's $12, and cook's $6.50. Their receipts are dated 21 April, 1827. Witnesses, John Davenport and John Cook, 3d. There is no evidence, however, that Greenleaf served.

The Commissioner of Customs, Washington, D. C., 10 Aug., 1887, furnished the following:—

The Customs Collection District of Ipswich was made by Act of Congress approved May 7, 1796, 1st Stat. 476. By this Act, a Collector of Customs was authorized and the Surveyorship formerly existing abolished. This Surveyorship was held by Jeremiah Staniford.

The first Collector of Customs at Ipswich, was Asa Andrews. I am unable to give the date of his appointment, but find on record a letter addressed to him June 9, 1796, informing him of his appointment. He continued in office until 1829, on July 22nd of which year, I find a letter written to Timothy Souther, notifying him of his appointment. Mr. Souther was succeeded by Asahel H. Wildes, August 2nd, 1840, who continued in office up to and including July 20th, 1844, when the transfer to the District of Newburyport, under Act of Congress approved June 15, 1844, was made.

At this time, the sub-officers in the District of Ipswich, were: Daniel L. Willcomb, Inspector, at a compensation of three dollars a day, when employed; Issacher Burnham, an occasional Inspector, that is, when occasion required, at three dollars a day, when employed; Daniel Lakeman, Revenue Boatman, at one dollar a day, when employed.

Mr. Willcomb and Mr. Lakeman were employed and paid by the Collector of Newburyport after the transfer, up to Dec. 31, 1884. How much longer I am unable to say, as to trace it to the end would involve the examination of the old accounts as long as the payments were made, which would take some time. The terms "Tide-waiter," and "Inspector," are synonymous.

OUR VIGNETTE.

The vignette upon the title-page of this magazine is a fac simile of the seal of this county. It is quaint. It was probably designed about the time the court of the Quarter Sessions of the Peace was established, 3 March, 1686-7. The first paper on file in the clerk of courts' office bearing its impression is the writ in the case of Fowler vs. Gould, dated 25 June, 1687, returnable at Ipswich. It is found on some probate documents circa 1692. Under its authority were arrested and executed the unfortunate victims of the witchcraft delusion, it being the seal affixed to the warrants and other processes of the Special Court of Oyer and Terminer before whom "the witches were tried." It is now used by the County Commissioners on processes issuing from their court.

It is not a little ingenious. Above is "a dove with the olive-branch;" below probably the fleur de lis. The rest beside the letters is ornamentation. The letters are two e's and two f's, which crossed form the letter x. Read e s s, then turn the page half-round and read e x, the whole combined reading esse x.

THE OLD HOWE HOUSE,

The frontispiece of this number, is a good representation of a house that was closely associated with many notable men and incidents. This picture and the well near Mrs. Eliza-Howe Perley's barn, Ipswich, will fix the site very nearly. The house was probably built not far this side the year 1700, and was taken down and the barn removed there about 1853. The style of the house was like the one built about 1690-5, as the seat of James Howe, the man of three centuries, 1598-1702, and the immigrant-ancestor of the Essex-county family of Howes. That house gave place to the present "Emerson Howe house," as it is called, in 1840. The residence of Mrs. Elizabeth-Jackson Howe (see "marriages" page 42), who was condemned as a witch, and hanged 19 July, 1692, though Rev. Samuel Phillips and Rev. Edward Payson and nine others testified in court to her exemplary Christian character, stood "opposite the gate" leading to the seat of James Howe, and a score of rods east of the house here pictured. This was the successor of the witch house, and probably built by Abraham Howe, the grandfather of Capt. Abraham, the hero of Bunker Hill.

In this house was born Rev. Nathaniel Howe, 1764-1837, the celebrated preacher of Hopkinton, whose "Century Sermon" was noticed by the North American Review, passed through several editions, and was translated into foreign languages.

In this house also was born Rev. Benjamin Howe, 1807-1883, an exemplary Christian gentleman, whose last pastorate was over his native parish and was closed with his death.

OLD DEEDS.

Mr. Thomas D. Gould, Ipswich, has a deed, dated 23 July, 1798, which conveys from John Gould and his wife Ruth, of Newbury, to Mager Gould, of Ipswich, for six dollars, land "lying in Ipswich, in common with land belonging to the heirs of Jonathan Pearson deceased known by the name of Wests farm:" beginning at S. W. corner by brook; thence by brook to Bull Brook pasture, thence N. W'y by fence to Jonathan Pearson's land; thence N. E'y on Pearson's land to Purchase Jewett's land; thence S. E'y on Jewett's land to the brook. It is witnessed by Silas Gould and Dan Gould, and acknowledged, 13 Aug., 1798, before Ebenezer March, J. P.

By another deed, dated 8 May, 1800, for two dollars, Elisha Gould conveys to Mager Gould, both of Ipswich, an interest in the West farm. It is witnessed by Asa Andrews and Moses Kimball, and acknowledged, same day, before Asa Andrews.

By another deed, dated 24 Feb., 1783, John and Ruth Gould of Newbury, for £7, convey to Mager Gould of Ipswich "two undivided fifth parts of all the real estate my honored father Mager Gould, late of Ipswich, fisherman, deceased, intestate died seiz'd, lying in Ipswich or elsewhere." Two seals are attached but only John signed. The witnesses were Daniel and John O. Noyes. It was acknowledged 24 Feb., 1783, before John Baker, J. P.

These deeds are not recorded.

OBITUARIES.

JOHN RICHARDS BAKER died in Ipswich, 30 Jan. 1894, of Bright's disease. He was a native of the town and of a long line of honorable ancestry. He fitted at Thetford Academy, Vt.; he graduated at Dartmouth College in 1855; he studied law and began practice in Boston; he removed to Ipswich in 1881. He was in the Rebellion one year, and served as lieutenant. He was a Mason, and Worshipful Master of the local lodge four years. As a Democrat he served several years on town and state committees. He was a number of years on the school board.

ABRAHAM CALDWELL was born in Beverly 22 March, 1800, and died, in Ipswich 4 Feb., 1894, of pneumonia. He was the oldest of seven children. His sister, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Bailey, of Georgetown, and himself were the last to go. He survived her about a week. She, also, died of pneumonia. His first wife, married 14 April, 1824, was Miss Eunice Rhodes of Ipswich. Of their three children, Mrs. Emeline C. Brooks survives. His first wife died in 1863, and he married Mrs. Eliza R. Lawrence, of Saugus, who died about eighteen years ago. He was a weaver by trade, but the powerloom supplanted him. He then learned the shoe business, and was a manufacturer in Ipswich about eighteen years. He was wealthy and highly esteemed.

Mrs. JOANNA McDOLF, widow of Alexander McDole, was born 14 Feb., 1800, in Ipswich, where she died 31 Dec., 1893. She had lived a widow and alone many years. Her clothing caught fire and she was shockingly burned; death ensued the next day.

BENJAMIN ROBERTS DOWNES died at his home in Bradford 30 Oct., 1893, of paralysis, at the age of 70 years, having been born 20 Aug., 1823. He was a well-known and prominent citizen and a popular piano teacher. He practiced his profession in Boston and in the principal schools and homes in this county, for nearly half a century. He was a prominent Mason, and was among the principals in establishing Episcopal church service in Haverhill.

MRS. BENJAMIN ROBERTS DOWNES, widow of the above, died in Bradford 19 Nov., 1893. She was born in Dusseldorf, Germany, 19 May, 1825, and came to this country, in 1850, recommended by the American Consul, to teach French and German in Abbott Academy, Andover. After several years, she went to Bradford Academy and taught the same languages. She continued to teach after her marriage. She has been an invalid several years, but the cause of her death was pneumonia. Her age was 68 years. She leaves three children, Frederic R. Downes, Mrs. Ira Maxwell, and Herbert W. W. Downes, all of Bradford.

ANDREW K. OBER was born in Beverly, 25 July, 1825. His parents were Andrew and Sarah Ober. His Puritan ancestry began with Richard who came from England, and was one of the earliest settlers of Beverly, a part of whose estate is still in the Ober name. Mr. Ober, when a boy, was fond of books and nature, and studied both. He developed a thorough business man. He began with the fishing business, then became a grocer and finally was engaged in a wholesale boot and shoe business, from which he retired with a competency in 1877. His leisure he gave to archæological research, and with Prof. Horsford, of Cambridge, located the Norse Vinland along our shores. The Peabody Museum of Harvard College and the Essex Institute, of Salem, are his debtor for fine collections of Indian and Norse relics. He left several manuscript volumes which will soon be published. He was a frequent contributor to current literature. His home was "Oberwold" and displayed his taste in its artistic beauty. It was a part of the ancestral acres, and the most beautiful along the North Shore.

He was modest, but ambitious, persevering and public spirited. He had a high sense of honor, was a kind and loving father, and a man highly respected. He died 25 Aug., 1893, leaving a widow and eight children.

MRS. ELIZABETH STANLEY, widow of Capt. John Stanley, died 21 Dec., 1893, in Salem, where she was born 30 Sept., 1797. Her parents were Capt. Thomas and Sarah-Chapman Hunt. Her father died when she was quite young, and she went to live with her uncle, on Baker's Island. During the war of 1812, she discovered an English man-of-war making into the harbor, and immediately gave the alarm. She was kindly disposed to the poor, and having ample means, gave liberally. She leaves four children—John W. Stanley, Miss Mary E. Stanley, and Mrs. M. A. Bickerman, of Salem, and Mrs. Andrew Nichols, of Danvers, seven grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren. Miss Mary Farrington, who died 30 July, 1892, in her 93d year, was her sister, and Capt. Thomas Hunt, father of T. Frank Hunt, Esq., her brother, and Mrs. Louisa H. Ward, still living, another sister.

SECOND PARISH, METHUEN.

This parish is now extinct. Commissioner Wright's "Report on Public Records" says that its distinguishing name was the "Second Parish," that it was organized in 1766, that it terminated in 1816, that the records cover the years 1780-1790, that they are in possession of the clerk of the First Parish. and that the parish was reorganized in 1830, and reunited soon after with the First Parish.

How far Mr. Wright's report is correct we have no means of knowing; but the clerks of the First Parish and of the First Church knew nothing of the records, and the parish clerk preceeding the present one had no knowledge of them. After diligent search, however, one book of records of the Second Parish was found in private hands. The first and last entries in the book are dated "March 29, 1784," and "the first Monday in November, 1846."

The life of the parish seems to have been a continual struggle; their contentions seem to have been with the members on account of tax-rates and with the First Parish. The request for abatements of "the rates" were very numerous. What the book contains of the history of the parish, aside from the "abatements" and an official list which will be given in conclusion, is related below:—

Monday, March 29, the Second Parish voted "£ 15 to defray parish charges for the year ensuing."

1785.

April 5, they voted "£ 15 to hire preaching."

1786.

March 23, they "voted £ 15 to hire preaching."

April 4, they "voted to join with the old parish in hiring preaching together."

August 30, they "voted not to hire Mr. Williams any longer."

1787.

March 29, they "voted £ 18 for preaching and parish expenses."

April 12, they "voted to allow Lt John Huse 9 shillings per week for boarding ministers more than we boarded for them;" to allow Capt. Ebenezer Carlton 9 shillings per week for eleven weeks' board of ministers.

June 6, "the parish voted to give up their promiscuous parish in case the town of methuen would set off a competency of soles and estates to the parishes acceptance in the West-erly part of Methuen and in case the town of Dracut also would set off a competency of soles and estates in the easterly part of their town to this parish's acceptance to make one parish."

Oct. 1, they voted to hire Moses Bradford four Sabbaths.

March 31, they voted £25 for preaching and parish charges.

May 13, they "voted to allow Capt. Carlton 8 shillings a week for 10 weeks board for Mr. Moses Bradford."

Oct. 29, they voted that Mr. Moses Bradford supply 3 months longer; that "we are willing to move the meeting-house to Convean a part of Dracut, Pelham and Salem N. H.; that Wm. Boddwell, Ebenezer Hibbard, Wm. Firnum be a committee to agree with those three towns."

Dec. 13, they voted to hire Mr. Bradford to supply the pulpit for the year ensuing.

March 30, they voted £25 for preaching and parish charges, and to join with Pelham to hire a minister.

April 13, they voted to allow Capt. Eben'r Carlton £2 for boarding Mr. Moses Bradford 5 weeks; Eliphas Chapman 10 shillings for boarding Mr. Bradford ten Sabbaths.

Wednesday, Dec. 2, they voted "to assist Wm. Farnum in Carrying on his Suit with the old Parish about Rates and to Pay the Just Bill which shall be Taxed against him in Case he shall be Beat;  Capt. Eben'r Carlton, Lieut. Flint, Benj. Osgood to treat with Mr. Chapman about his farm for a parsonage;" to hire Mr. Bradford during the committee's discretion; to adjourn to 2nd Tuesday in January, "and by the by John Tip-pit (?) Came in and objected against the Proceedings of the Parish."

Jan. 12, they voted not to buy Mr. Chapman's farm; that "the clerk buy the Parish book."

March 31, they voted Capt. E. Carlton, Lt. John Willson, Benj. Osgood a committee to assist Wm. Farnum in carrying on his suit with the old parish; to allow Benj. Osgood 3 19 0 for boarding candidates; to "draw money from the treasury to carry on their suit with the old parish."

May 31, "voted to hire Mr. Stevens four Sabbaths, and leave it with the committee weather they shall hire him any longer."

July 12, "voted to hire Mr. Stevens twelve Sabbaths longer than what they have already engaged him;" "to provide a place for the singers to set in, that it be in the vacon ground below, to build a pew suitable for singars to sit in;" Capt. Eben'r Carlton, Wm. Farnum, Nathaniel Pettin-gill a committee "to look into Mr. Amos Morsses case with the old parish, and to treat with them for settlement; Capt. Er Carlton, Benj. Osgood, Nathaniel Hibbard a committee to look for a parsonage."

March 21, they voted Capt. Carlton, Joseph Griffin, Mr. Nathaniel Pettin-gill "a new committee" to buy a parsonage with instruction "to hire a place in case they cant purchase to their minds;" "4 pence on the pound" for collecting the parsonage tax, and "have it go for a turn;" Benj. Osgood collector for the parsonage tax; John Ladd, John Pettin-gill, Jonathan Merrill committee to build a pew in front of the gallery, to be 4 feet and 8 inches wide; that "the meeting be moved to convean the upper end of Methuen & edg of Dracut every forth Sabbath for one year from this date"

April 5, they voted Jonathan Merrill treasurer "instead of Nathaniel Hibbard dismissed [excused?];" to allow Mr. Stevens' salary the present year beginning in March; that the ordination be the 18th May next, and that Ephraim Peabody, Joseph Grifing, Benj. Osgood, John Pettingill, Jonathan Merrill, Edmond Richardson "keep orders on that day;" that John Ladd, Wm. Hibbard & Ephraim Peabody "fix the meeting-house."

Monday, 25 April, they "voted to purchase Dr. Samuel Coles place at £ 150 in case he and his wife will sign a good warrantee deed;" "that the treasurer take the deed and give the notes in behalf of the Parish."

May 11, they voted Capt. E. Carlton, Parker Richardson, Benj. Osgood a committee "to repair the parsonage house;" Capt. Ebenezer Carlton, Nathaniel Pettingill, Benj. Osgood to settle with the old parish and go to some good attorney.

Dec. 13, they voted to cut wood on the parsonage to last to the first of March next; that "two pews be sold, one on the west end and the other on the east end of the vacant ground below and lay the money out on the meeting-house as the parish shall think proper;" "to send a man to a judge of law concerning some matters in the parish;" Benj. Osgood and Jonathan Merrill [that man?].

Dec. 27, they "voted to sit up the wood for Mr. Stevens for the next year by three cords in a Parcel at the lowest bidder;" Mr. Wm. Farnum vendue master. Nathaniel Pettingill, Cyrus Carlton, Wm. Bodwell, Nathaniel Hibbard each "bid off 3 cords at 6-6 per cord; Benj. Osgood bid off 3 cords pine at 4-8 pr cord." Chose Benj. Osgood vendue master. Jonathan Merrill bought the west

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

Although Massachusetts had made an end of slavery within its own borders, in other states the slave power became more and more potent for its increase; and, although the Provincial Congress, April 6, 1776, resolved, without opposition, that "no slave be imported into any of the thirteen United Colonies," in the articles of confederation each state was left free to regulate its own commerce, and thus, in the language of Bancroft, "removed forever the power to sanction or to stop the slave trade."

The first society formed for the abolition of slavery was organized in Pennsylvania before the Revolution. Some others were formed in the middle states, and in 1794 and 1797 conventions were held in Philadelphia, but after that time one after another discontinued its labors until the original society of Pennsylvania was left almost alone. In 1809, another convention was held, and it declared that "the sentiments of our fellow-citizens and the decisions of our courts are less auspicious." But they toiled on.

By the British treaty of peace, signed at Paris in 1783, the great tract of country, then called the North Western Territory, and now consisting of the states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin, was ceded to the United States. The settlement of the political condition of this large public domain was among the first concerns of the Continental Congress. The first settlement in the region had been made at Marietta in Ohio by a colony from the parish of Ipswich, in our county, known as the Hamlet, which was incorporated a few years later as the town of Hamilton. The pastor of the parish, Rev. Manasseh Cutler, who had been preaching there for sixteen years, had entertained a desire to remove to the western country on account of the hard times caused in the sterile east by the Revolutionary war. He became the agent of the Ohio company, and sent on the little band of emigrants principally from among his own parishioners. In the settling of the political condition of the new country, the broad public spirit of Dr. Cutler led him to bring about a condition that would be for its highest good. He had just passed through the experiences of the abolition of slavery in Massachusetts, and his earnest desire was that involuntary servitude should not be allowed in the region where he had such a deep interest. He was the chief instrument in causing the passage of the clause in that ordinance of 1787, prohibiting slavery in the territory. The late Dr. Andrew P. Peabody, of Harvard College, says of Doctor Cutler,

"As I cannot but read our history Manasseh Cutler was the providential man who set impassable metes and bounds to the slave power. But for him American history would have taken its course in widely different channels. The free states would have made hardly a show a counterpoise to the slave states."

Hon. Nathan Dane of Beverly, in our county of Essex, and a native of Doctor Cutler's parish, a lawyer by profession, was a member of Congress at this time. Either through Doctor Cutler's influence or otherwise, Mr. Dane was chairman of the committee to report an ordinance for the government of the territory. With such a man, Doctor Cutler found it easy to influence the rest of the committee to report in July of the year named the famous ordinance against slavery; and the report was carried in Congress almost unanimously. The honor of proposing the anti-slavery clause in the ordinance has been awarded to Mr. Dane, but it was prompted and vigorously supported by Doctor Cutler. We do not mean to detract from the great honor due to Mr. Dane, for it is probable that he did as much for its adoption as Doctor Cutler himself. Both of these men were citizens of our county, and both are worthy of great praise for the philanthropic part they took in the movement. The ordinance was drafted by Mr. Dane, and his connection with the matter will make his name ever famous.

The Hon. Daniel Webster said of this ordinance in the United States Senate in 1830:—

"We are accustomed to praise the law-givers of antiquity; we help to perpetuate the fame of Solon and Lycurgus; but I doubt whether one single law of any law-giver, ancient or modern, has produced effects of a more distinct and marked and lasting character than the ordinance of '87. * * * It fixed, forever, the character of the population in the vast regions northwest of the Ohio, by excluding from them involuntary servitude. It impressed upon the soil itself, while it was yet a wilderness, an incapacity to bear up any other than freemen. It laid the interdict against personal servitude, in original compact, not only deeper than all local law, but deeper, also, than all local constitution."

In the splendid speech, that Mr. Webster made in reply to Robert Young Hayne in the United States Senate, on January 26th and 27th, of that year, Mr. Dane was thus eulogized:—

"In the course of my observations the other day, Mr. President, I paid a passing tribute of respect to a very worthy man, Mr. Dane, of Massachusetts. It so happens that he drew the ordinance of 1787 for the government of the northwest territory. A man of so much ability and so little pretence, of so great a capacity to do good and so unmixed a disposition to do it for its own sake, a gentleman who had acted an important part forty years ago in a measure the influence of which is still deeply felt in the very matter which was the subject of debate, might, I thought, receive from me a commendatory recognition. But the honorable Senator was inclined to be facetious on the subject. He was rather disposed to make it matter of ridicule that I had introduced into the debate the name of one Nathan Dane, of whom he assures us he had never before heard. Sir, if the honorable member had never before heard of Mr. Dane, I am very sorry for it. It shows him less acquainted with the public men of the country than I had supposed. Let me tell him, however, that a sneer from him at the mention of the name of Mr. Dane is in bad taste. It may well be a high mark of ambition, sir, either with the honorable gentleman or myself, to accomplish as much to make our names known to advantage and remembered with gratitude as Mr. Dane has accomplished."

Although Elbridge Gerry, a native and resident of Marblehead, in our county of Essex, said that he would give no sanction whatever to the slave trade, yet, in the convention for the ratification of the United States' constitution, in 1787, of which he was a member, the Massachusetts representatives agreed with the South, that, for a mere commercial consideration, — the removal of all restrictions on Congress to enact navigation laws, — they would vote that the African slave traffic should be unrestrained by national legislation for twenty years longer, — a dishonorable and humiliating bargain.

In Congress, Feb. 11, 1790, Mr. Gerry defended the Quakers who had petitioned for the abolition of slavery. The next day, Congress received a memorial from the "Pennsylvania Society for Promoting the Abolition of Slavery," signed, and said to have been written, by Benjamin Franklin, this being one of the last acts of his life. The memorial requested the slaves' liberty. This and the Quaker memorial of the preceding day were referred to a committee of seven, one of whom was Mr. Gerry. The committee reported Congress' inability to afford any relief, on account of the twenty-year agreement we have just mentioned, but, that, so soon as it could be done constitutionally, Congress would aim to promote the humane objects of the society "on the principles of justice, humanity, and good policy." Memorials regularly appeared, however, from both the Quakers and Abolition Societies, and so periodically provoked more or less discussion.

The Salem Gazette, in 1797, in speaking of abolition work, said, "We wish success to all the purposes of humanity."

In the summer of 1802, the brigantine Sukey was seized at Salem on a libel by the United States marshal for having been employed in the transportation of slaves from one foreign country to another, contrary to law.

He married, second, Sarah Foster 29 Nov., 1758. The inventory of his estate was made 2 Dec., 1762, by John Peters, Peter Parker and Henry Ingalls, and amounted to £49 4s. 4d. His widow Sarah was administratrix.

Their children:—

- 35—1. dau., b. 24 Nov., 1726,
- 36—2. dau., b. 21 Jan., 1727-8,
- 37—3. Phebe, b. 25 Jan., 1728-9; m. Daniel Peabody, of Middleton, in 1748-9 or 50.

- 52—7. James, b. 29 Oct., 1743, to "Abraham, Jr., deceased, and the widow Sarah."

22. JACOB FOSTER was born — June, 1718, and died —, 1806, aged 88 years. He married Abigail —, who died —, 1802, aged 82 years.

His will—recorded 374:505—was made 19 Jan., 1803, and proved 19 Jan., 1807. By it he gives his son Jacob "all his real estate wherever it is," and all his personal estate; to his son Isaac, $10, half his wearing apparel and what he already has; to his daughter Dorcas Wardwell, deceased's children, Isaac, Sally and Dorcas, $3 and what their mother had had; to Abigail, wife of Russell James, $1 and what she already has; to Anne and Ruth, $53.67, etc. "Also I give unto my two daughters Anne and Ruth all my household stuff and furniture proper for woman's use and work; also one good cow, to be equally divided between them; etc." Jacob was executor.

Their children:—

- 53—1. Hannah, b. 4 Sept., 1744, to "Jacob and Hannah;" d. 24 Mch., 1750, in her 6th year. [This we conclude to be an error of the recorder, his mind holding the name "Hannah" and writing it again, instead of Abigail. The records contain many similar errors.]
- 54—2. Mary, b. 18 April, 1745-6,
- 55—3. Jacob, b. 20 Nov., 1747,
- 56—4. Dorcas, b. 14 Feb., 1749-50,

THE "REBECCA NURSE" HOUSE.

SEE FRONTISPIECE.

This ancient mansion, which is situated, at Tapleyville, in Danvers, a short distance southwesterly from the Tapleyville station on the Boston and Maine R. R., Western Division, has a most peculiar and interesting history. Here, more than two centuries and a half ago, lived Townsend Bishop, one of the most distinguished of the early settlers of this region; and the fine estate of three hundred acres of which this house was the centre was successively owned by Henry Chickering, Gov. Endicott and his son John, Rev. James Allen, minister of the First Church in Boston, and Francis Nurse whose wife Rebecca was one of the sufferers by the Witchcraft Tragedy of 1692. About the year 1644 the farm was leased to Richard Ingersoll, the ancestor of our honored contemporaries of that name. The records seem to show that the house now standing is substantially the same structure as that built by Townsend Bishop so long ago. Plans are preserved depicting a house upon this spot, and the house was referred to in the records as formerly Bishop's mansion. It is at any rate certain that from the low-ceiled room of this very house, Rebecca Nurse, already bowed down with age, was taken to her cruel death in 1692. One cannot stand in that room to-day and look from its old time windows upon the surrounding fields and fertile country, a rich garden for more than two centuries, without feeling the full force of the dreadful tragedy then enacted. It is a most remarkable circumstance that a few years since when the house was bought by Mr. Calvin Putnam, with a view to preserve it as a memorial of the past, it was owned and occupied by direct descendants of both Rebecca Nurse and Thomas Putnam, the latter being one of the most active participants in the Witchcraft persecution. It is to be hoped that so rare a relic of antiquity may be always kept intact in structure and form, to be a reminder of the Christian piety and courageous devotion of its once happy occupant. — Wm. P. Upham.

OBITUARIES.

WILLIAM WHEELWRIGHT NORTHEND was son of Hon. William Dummer Northend, of Salem. He was born 30 May, 1857, and died 21 March, 1894. He was a lineal descendant of the Sewalls, the Dummer, the Longfellow, and from Rev. John Wheelwright. By his marriage, in 1886, with Miss Ellen Holt, daughter of Stephen A. Holt, of Winchester, he reunited in his family three men who 250 years before settled in Newbury, the ancestors respectively of his father, his mother and his wife.

Mr. Northend was educated in the Salem schools, at Amherst, Bowdoin, and the Institute of Technology. He chose the profession of architecture and studied, in Europe, the world's great monuments of design. Returning home he settled in his profession in Lynn. He had a remarkable natural and cultured taste for designing; as instance the new Court House and its celebrated Law Library in Salem, school buildings, and other public and private structures in Lynn and other cities.

Mr. Northend's character was a singular union of strength and tenderness; of inflexible resolution and unswerving purpose, with the greatest gentleness and kindness. His affections were of that rare kind which adds thoughtfulness to love; which surrounds its object with tender and protecting care; which foresees, provides and ministers. He was "to those men that sought him sweet as summer."

CHARLES SEWALL, a lawyer well known in this county, died, at his home, in Salem, 4 April, 1894. He was a native of Rockport, and said to have been 58 years old. John Pearl² was born at Skidby, in said Beverly Park, about 1650, came to America about 1675, and pursued his calling of a miller, first at Marblehead, and then at Bradford. He was of Marblehead in 1685, when he acknowledged judgment, in Salem Court, in favor of Mr. Francis Wainwright, and also his own father-in-law Richard Holmes of Rowley.

The name of John Pearl's father the writer has not learned. John married Elizabeth, daughter of Richard and Alce (Olive?) Holmes of Rowley, where she was born 15:7:1662. It is presumed that Mr. Pearl died about 1720, but the date is not known. His wife Elizabeth survived him, dying in Boxford March 26, 1744, at the age of eighty-two. Their children were born as follows:—

3-1. ALICE³, born about 1683; married Jonathan Peabody of Boxford in 1710. They lived in Boxford and had nine children. He died in Boxford April 18, 1741. She was living in 1744.

SECOND PARISH, METHUEN.

March 26, they chose Capt. Eben Carlton, Dea. Wm. Bodwel, Mr. Benj. Osgood, Mr. Joseph Griffin, Mr. John Pettingill "a committee to meet the first parish and make some proposals about the parishes uniting if they shall see fit to meet ours or act on that affair as the parish shall think proper."

May 1. The committee reported that Mr. Stevens "should preach two months, half the time in one place and half the time in the other and after that Mr. Stevens is to be at his liberty for two months, and we are still to pay him his salary and the first parish is to hire a minister after that two months to preach as Mr. Stevens did half the time in one meeting house and half the time in the other and likewise they recommend it to the churches to get together in that time and try if they can agree and Mr. Stevens is to begin to preach in the other parish in three weeks if the parishes shall accept of this report." Signed William Runels, Ebenezer Carlton.

They voted to "postpone acting on the report of the committee and adjourn the meeting till the churches shall confer together on the ground of union." They adjourned to *5 June, 3 o'clock, P. M., then to 19 June, then dissolved.

*The meeting 5 June, page 51, is two pages earlier in the records than this, and was called at 2 o'clock. Each came by several adjournments and originated in different warrants.

Thursday, Nov. 14, they voted to give 10-6 per cord for oak wood for Mr. Stevens, delivered between this and the first of March; to vandue the pine wood which Parker Richardson took at 7-2 per cord; that the treasurer call upon the collector; to pass over the article about paying Mr. Stevens his "back Rearears."

1794.

Thursday, 15 May, they voted that Mr. Stevens absent a part of the time not exceeding twenty Sabbaths according to his proposal. The ministers' wood was bid off — 3 cords by William Hibbard at 9-9 and 3 more at 9-11; 3 by Benj. Osgood at 4- per cord.

1795.

Tuesday, 20 Jan., they chose Capt. Carlton, Benj. Osgood, Wm. Hibbard, Daniel Bodwill, Joseph Griffin a committee to "dismiss or see Mr. Stevens concerning his desmission," and to renew the notes a former treasurer gave Joseph and Nathaniel Osgood for the parsonage with compound interest.

Feb. 9, they took a vote "to see if they would dismiss Mr. Stevens and it passed in the negative." — Voted to abate Francis Richardson jr.'s rate since 1793 or since he paid to the other parish.

Tuesday, 3 February, they chose Wm. Hibbard, Jona. Merrill, Parker Richardson a committee to see if Mr. Stevens will make any alteration in the proposals he made to the other committee.

Feb. 9, they voted, "not to accept the proposals made to the parish by Rev. John H. Stevens."

April, they voted not to act on the article relating to Mr. Stevens' salary and wood.

Monday, 30 March, they voted not to accept Mr. Stevens' proposal made last winter — to raise £40 for parish charges the ensuing year — Capt. Carlton, Wm. Farnum, Wm. Hibbard a committee to settle with Mr. Stevens — a note on interest to Mr. Stevens in settlement.

April 8, they voted to give Mr. Stevens a lease of the parsonage for present year "for the interest of his Back Callary £10 17s. 3d." his not cutting any more wood than he wants to maintain the fences.

Thursday, 20 Oct., they chose Benj. Osgood, Dea, Wm. Bodwell, John Pettingill a committee to supply to the desk; Jonathan Merrill, Benj. Osgood, Joseph Griffin to sell the parsonage with instruction to sell in 4 weeks at vendue, if not sooner sold at private sale.

Dec. 15, they "voted that their promecufus parish shall be dissolved upon condition that the General Court shall see fit to divide the town equally by a line into two parishes;" and that the treasurer give a deed of the parsonage.

Wednesday, 30 March, they voted "£20 to hire preaching;" "to allow Jona. Merrill 7-9 for Rum and shugar for the vandue," [probably when the parsonage was sold.]

Wednesday, 6 April, they voted the use of the meetinghouse to the First Parish when not used by themselves.

April 10, they sold Benj. Osgood the pine tree that stood on the meetinghouse lot, for two dollars.

Tuesday, 5 Dec., they chose Joseph Griffin, Stephen Barker, Esq., John Searl a committee to find the center of the west half of the town and draw a plan of the meetinghouse. Adjourned "one fortnet" and chose Lt. Miles Flint, Benj. Osgood, John Pettingill, Alpheus Bodwell in addition to the above committee and adjourned to 26 Dec. when they voted "they were willing the meetinghouse should go as far north as Capt. Meloons corner;" and Capt. Richardson, Nath'l Hibberd, John Ladd a committee to treat with Capt. Meloon for a piece of land to set the meetinghouse on; and chose Lt. John Parker, Wm. Richardson, Wm. Whittier, Benj. Osgood a committee "to get the minds of the people, where the meetinghouse should set, by getting signers;" to allow John Serl "15 D 33 cents" for boarding candidates in 1797 and a journey to Pelham; to allow Benj. Osgood "1 D 83 cents" for candidates' dinners 11 Sabbaths in 1797, and chose Wm. Whittier, Lt. John Parker, Lt. Joseph Griffin, Dea. Wm. Bodwell, Wm. Farnum, Wm. Richardson, Capt. David Muleary (?) a committee "to find the center of the west half of the town by measuring the roads and appoint a place where they think the meetinghouse ought to stand."

ABRAHAM HAMMATT.

[From M. V. B. Perley's Ipswich History, in Lewis' History of Essex County, 1888.]

SEE FRONTISPIECE.

Among the names of those who have fostered the educational growth of Ipswich and deserve a warm sentiment of regard is Abraham Hammatt's. He was born in Plymouth in 1780, of Puritan ancestry, and there learned the trade of rope-making. In 1818, he removed to Bath, Me., and began business for himself. Years of industry and frugality gave him a competence. He then devoted his time and talents to literature and science, for which he had a fine taste. He was said to have been the best scholar in Bath, not excepting the men of any of the learned professions. He died 9 Aug., 1854, aged seventy-four years. About eighteen years before, he removed to Ipswich. He was a member of the N. E. Historical and Genealogical Society, and was there considered a true antiquarian and an accurate genealogist. In his death, the society sustained a severe loss. He was for a long time feoffee of the Ipswich Latin Grammar School and member of the Town School Board. He was an earnest and efficient officer, and his genial presence was always welcome in the school-room. In his later years he prepar'd "Early Inhabitants of Ipswich," copied the ancient inscriptions in the High Street Cemetery, and wrote a bi-centennial history of the Grammar School—all noble, serviceable labors. His death closed a blameless, benevolent and useful life.

 Rev. A. Caldwell, some years ago, began the publication of "Early Settlers of Ipswich" under the title of "The Hammatt Papers," but living so remote from town was obliged to relinquish it.

Having his permission to continue the work, we propose to give an installment each month. It is probable that we shall add to them so as to cover the county.

"LEXINGTON DAY."

MASS. ARCHIVES, 12: 146.

One of the Ipswich companies of "Minute Men," who marched upon the memorable alarm of 19 April, 1775, was the following from Linebrook Parish:— Captain, Abraham How; Lieut., Thomas Foster; Ensign, Paul Lancaster; Sergeants, How, Dresser, Smith, Chapman; Corporals, Fisk, Chaplin, Potter, Abbott; Drummer, Foster; Privates, Jeremiah Smith, John Daniels, Joseph Chapman, Caleb Jackson, Amos Jewett, jun., John Perley. Jon^a. Foster jun., Samuel Woodberry, David Chaplin, Moses Chaplin jr., Moses Foster, Abra. How ye 3d, Allen Foster, Charles Davis, John Fowler jun., Dan^l. Kimball jun., Jos^a. Dickinson, George Abbot, James Smith, Joseph Nelson, Philemon Foster, Tim^s. Morse, John Fowler, Elijah Foster, Moses Chaplin, Daniel Kimball, Allen Perley, Ezekiel Potter, Edmond Tinney, Moses Conant, John Chapman.

The distance for most of this company was eighty miles; their time one or two days, and their total pay £22 6s. 8d. 2f. Their service was approved 3 April, 1776.

NOTED AND QUOTED.

By an affidavit dated 22 Feb., 1696 Wm. Howlett said he was 46 years old and Isaac Cummings he was 63 years old;— Edward Neland's house was in Topsfield.— Registry, 11: 208.

"The sufferers by the fire in this town, on Thurfdlay evening laft, were as follows:—

"Mr Jofeph Edwards, in whose houfe the fire began: it was a three-ftory houfe, and was totally confumed, with all his furniture.

"Mr. William Treadwell, tenant in Mr. Edwards's chambers: he was unconfeious of his danger till he heard the cry of fire from without, and faved nothing but one bed, which he had juft time to throw out of the window.

"Mr. Solomon Chaplin, owner and occupier of a three-ftory houfe, which was burnt down, faving a few articles from the flames.

"Dea. Lamfon and Mr. Jacob Lord, owners and occupiers of a three-ftory houfe, which was burnt down: they faved a few articles of their furniture.

"Mr. Daniel Farrington: his houfe was confiderably burnt on the outside, and much damage done to the infide and the furniture; but the houfe was fortunately preferved.

"The above are all induftrious houfewrights, with families, and their fufferings have excited fympathy which promifes to refult in their effectual relief.

"Another Fire!—About 3 o'clock Thurfdlay morning laft, the tavern houfe of Mr. Andrew Peabody, in Bradford, was burnt down. Mr. P. had barely time to refcue his wife and children from the flames, by throwing them out of the window into a fnow bank. In getting out a defk which contained much value, he was fo forely burnt, and, before he could be got into any houfe, frozen, that his life was defpared of.

His wife and most of his children (seven in number) were of more or less frozen. There are circumstances to justify a suspicion, that the fire originated from malice.— Salem Gazette, Jan. 21, 1806.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cheever Gould, (born 7 Jan., 1825), who died in Chelsea 17 Nov., 1893, the mother of the poetess, Miss Elizabeth Porter Gould, was a lineal descendent of Ezekiel Cheever, the first teacher of the fee-free's Latin Grammar School in Ipswich, afterwards a teacher in Boston, and now known as the Ipswich and Boston Latin school-master.

The town-records of Temple, N. H., previous to 1852, were destroyed by fire in 1882.

Mary Fellows, daughter of Richard Fellows, Hartford, Conn., was baptized 9 Feb., 1650.

Richard Walker, "servant to Francis Peabody," was 41 in 1658.

Sarah Harris, (Boston?), widow of Wm. Harris, had a son William, 1685.

Adam Eve of Boston, married vs. Isaac Hull, mariner, was a case in the Inferior Court, Boston, 1694-5.

Eve Hawks of Lynn and Ebenezer Giles of Beverly were married 7 Aug., 1739.

"George Pye" is in County Court records, Boston, 1680.

Solomon Kneeland, of Boston, "fel-monger," leather-dresser, 1697.

Isaac How, second juror, Boston Inferior Court, 1697.

David Jeffries, of Boston, merchant, recovered of John Lane, of Ipswich, £409 4s. 2d., in Inferior Court, 1698.

Abraham How was on first petty jury, Oct., 1706, Boston.

Samuel Shepard, son of Samuel formerly of Rowley, chose Samuel Sewell and Daniel Quinsey as guardians Oct., 1681.

Israel How, of Dorchester, took the freeman's oath 2 Dec., 1680.

OBITUARIES.

MRS. ISAAC MORRILL, the oldest resident of Salisbury, died there Thursday, 8 May, 1094, at the age of 90 years. She was much respected.

MRS. NANCY PATTERSON, widow of the late Henry Patterson, an inmate of the Old Ladies' home, on Derby street, Salem, died there, Sunday, 6 May, 1894. She was daughter of John Pierce, and born in Salem 14 Nov., 1796. She had been twice married; her first husband was a Mr. Hale of Woburn.

CHARLES C. PIKE, M. D., died in Peabody, 27 Jan., 1894, at the age of 49 years and 8 months. He was one of Peabody's most influential citizens, civic and professional, and a man of unwonted Christian beneficence. His obsequies were very elaborate and very generally observed.

MRS. MARY KIMBALL, widow of the late Jacob Kimball, died at her daughter's residence, Salem, 15 Jan., 1894, of pneumonia, at the age of 91 years 8 months 8 days. Her only daughter is Mary, the wife of Daniel W. Lord. She was a very lovable old lady, and her friends were legion.

MRS. ELIZABETH RELIHAN, widow of Thomas, of Peabody, died 22 Jan., 1894, aged 92 years, 10 months.

MRS. DOLLY N.-FERGUSON POTTER, widow of ex-sheriff Daniel Potter, who died 5 Aug., 1890, died at their home, in Salem, 22 Jan., 1894. They were married 10 March, 1824,

Of their thirteen children four remain: Daniel Potter of South Braintree, and Mrs. Nathaniel M. Jackman, Mrs. George H. Pousland and Miss Margaret F. Potter of Salem.

H. L. PLUMMER, aged 80 years, one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Haverhill, died 26 Feb., 1894. He was born in Haverhill, but spent a considerable portion of his life in Europe, where he gained great celebrity as a portrait painter.

MISS MARY ANN PATCH died, in Hamilton, 21 Feb., 1894, at the age of 93 years and 10 months.

MALACHI ANDREWS, the oldest resident of West Gloucester, died Monday, 5 March, 1894, at the age of 97 years and 7 months. He was a native of Essex, a sailor in early life, but of recent years a farmer. He was the father-in-law of Representative Richardson of Gloucester.

MRS. HONORAH MORIARTY died, in Methuen, 24 Feb., 1894, about a 100 years old.

HON. DANIEL QUIMBY GALE died at Washington, Mo., in January, 1894, of bronchitis. He was one of the oldest and best known lawyers in the west. He was born in Amesbury, 23 Dec., 1807, and has among his relatives many of the Gales in this country. He was the first postmaster of Washington, Mo., and held that office for 20 years.

QUERIES,

14. According to a deed dated 21 Nov., 1754, the General Court had granted to Jonathan Powers and others a township "lying on the back of North Yarmouth, county York, (now Me.) and that Aaron Davis of Roxbury, yeoman, disposed of his part to Peter Hunter, of Boston, laborer, "homlott" No. 13, about ten acres and ninety acres more, for £30, which will be remitted if Hunter settles there, builds a house and clears the land, etc. The witnesses were Sam Hewes and Willm Story. How came this deed lodged with a Gould family in Ipswich?

15. Are Lumpkin and Lumkin the same as Lufkin?

16. Thomas Lovekin of Ipswich was "distrayned to service in 1657." Thomas Lovekin with wife and two or more children settled in Gloucester about 1673. Were these the same person and what was the native place of Thomas of Gloucester?

ANSWERS.

2. Joseph Ballard, Ephraim Foster, and Thomas Chandler were witnesses against Samuel Wardwell in the witchcraft trial. Thomas Chandler was a witness and an appriser of Andrew Foster's will and estate. The association thus of these names indicates that they were neighbors. But Ephraim Foster was son of Reginald, of Ipswich. His first advent, therefore, may have been to visit his cousins.

NEW BOOKS.

John P. Peabody, Esq., Salem, is preparing a paper on the educated Peabodys, to include as it does already, judges, lawyers, doctors, clergymen, journalists, teachers, etc. Any facts, anecdotes or dates bearing on this subject will be gladly received by him. He is deeply interested in the family genealogy.

Hon. Joseph C. Pickard, born in Rowley in 1826, now living with his son, Dr. Pickard, Burlingame, Kansas, is collecting material for the publication of a family history from John and Jane-Crosby Pickard, 1639.

"LORD" TIMOTHY DEXTER AND HIS POET-LAUREATE.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The frontispiece of this number is an oldtime engraving of an oldtime character of Newburyport, and of his dog that ever followed him. Timothy Dexter was one of the most eccentric men of his time. His peculiarities were proverbial. He was born in Malden, Jan. 22, 1747, being a member of the prominent Dexter family of that place. He established himself in Newburyport, at an early age, and became a merchant, enjoying the advantages of its zealous activity and independent municipality.

His adventures in trade have been the laughing-stock of the commercial world, and it is still undecided whether he was a wise merchant or a lucky fool. The following instances show the general character of his business transactions, which won for him what was considered in those days an independent fortune.

One day he was consulting with a wag as to what would be a profitable object of investment, and he was advised to ship a cargo of warming-pans to the West Indies. He said,

"I'll do it," and immediately bought up all he could at a cheap price and sent them off, while the people laughed long and loud at his foolish ignorance of the state of the temperature at the West Indies. The result was that when the pans reached their destination, they had a quick sale to the sugar manufacturers for ladles, the lids being removed, and Dexter realized a large sum of money on his venture.

Someone suggested, as a joke, that he make a shipment of red woolen night-caps to the coast of Guinea. That, too, was acted upon, and it turned out to be another fortunate speculation.

But some wag, supposing to fool him, told him that news had come that all the whales were dying off. Dexter hurried off, and bought up all the whalebone he could possibly get, cornered the market, and sold the goods at an immense price.

The Newburyport Herald, in giving an account of his death, said, that he was "born and bred in a low condition in life," and that "his intellectual endowments were not of the most exalted stamp." The same article goes on to say, that "the qualities of his mind were of that indefinite cast, which forms an exception to every other character recorded in history, or known in that age, and 'none but himself could be his parallel.'"

Having amassed his wealth, while yet only in middle life, he assumed the title of "Lord," styling himself "Lord Dexter, First in the East," and changed his residence into a palatial abode. He spent a great deal of money, under the direction of skillful gardeners, in laying out the grounds around the house; but spoiled the artistic effect, by erecting on the ground in front of the house a great number of wooden images of distinguished persons in Europe and America, and of wild beasts. These statues remained for many years after "Lord Dexter's" decease, attracting a large number of visitors.

His ruling passion seemed to be notoriety, and that he would rather be "infamously famous than not famous at all." He engaged a local rhymester as a poet to sing his praises. He was ambitious of literary distinction, and wrote and published a pamphlet, entitled "A Pickle for the Knowing Ones," which was of no consequence in itself, its title to remembrance lying in the fact that he placed all the punctuation marks at the end of the book in a jumble, stating that his readers could "salt and pepper it as they pleased." We give a short article from his pen, as published in the Newburyport Herald, in 1803, to show his style of composition:—

thread bare Now for a new one firft
I afirme by all the powers Abouy and below by the hier power Let it be what it may if the fon or moun or Stars or planets fier or water powers. teft T DEXTER

His whole manner of life was equally extravagant and singular. A few years before his death, he made a tomb under the summer-house in his garden, wherein he requested to have his remains deposited. He also had his coffin made, and kept in the hall of his house, and in it he was buried. To be sure that the services at the interment of his remains would be carried through properly and understandingly by the family and dependents, he had a mock funeral; and because his wife could not shed tears, and show a sufficient amount of sorrow, on such an occasion, he beat her.

His religious ideas were as odd as his general habits. He claimed to believe in a philosophy peculiar to himself, which at times included the system of transmigration; and again he seemed to be a deist. His last sickness continued some time, his reason leaving him two days before his death, which occurred on Wednesday evening, Oct. 22, 1806, at the age of fifty-nine. His remains were not interred in the tomb he made in his garden, but in the ancient cemetery near the Frog Pond, where a marble slab, pointing out the spot, bears the following inscription:—

In memory of
who died October 23^d

A. D. 1806.

Ætatis 60.

He gave liberal Donations,
For the support of the Gospel:
For the benefit of the Poor,
And for other benevolent purposes.

His wife Elizabeth, who was about nine years his senior, survived him about three years, dying, July 3, 1809, at the age of seventy-two.

He made his will March 1, 1799, it being probably the writing of Samuel Plumer. The signature to it is a good one. The will was proved Nov. 3, 1806, and is on file in the Probate Office, at Salem. In it he provided liberally for his family, his wife Elizabeth, son Samuel Lord Dexter, daughter Nancy, wife of Abraham Bishop, granddaughter Nancy Bishop, brothers Nathan and John Dexter, and others. To Joseph Somerby, schoolmaster, he gave his "silver cane," turtle-shell pinchback watch and a pair of gold sleeve-buttons. To the town of Malden, he gave $300 for the purchase of a bell for the meetinghouse; and also $2000 to be kept at interest for a century, the aggregate of principal and interest at the end of that period to be a fund, the income of which to be applied to the support of the gospel in Malden. To the town of Newburyport he gave $2000, the income to be given to the poor of the town outside of the almshouse.

The inventory of his estate amounted to $35,027.39. In it is mentioned, besides coaches and many interesting things, a chariot, which with the harness was valued at $250.

His residence finally came into the possession of a wealthy citizen of Newburyport, who made it one of the most beautiful homes in New England. For many years it was the residence of that masterly biographer, James Parton.

The date, "Dec. 31, 1884," page 40, of this volume, is questioned, since Daniel L. Willcomb, according to the Willcomb genealogy, died in 1867. Hon. Wm. H. Pugh, the present commissioner of customs, Washington, D. C., writes that "the date was evidently intended for 1844." We are not fully persuaded of the date "1844." A brief access to the national Biennial Register furnishes the following for the year

1820. Asa Andrews was collector, Ipswich.

1822. Asa Andrews was collector, Ipswich, and was paid $330; B. Averill, ins., w'r., g'r., Ipswich, and was paid $106.70; John Butler, ins., w'r., g'r., Essex, and was paid $5.00; Jacob Story, measurer, Ipswich.

1826. Asa Andrews was collector, Ipswich.

1828. Isa [sic] Andrews was collector, Ipswich, "commission expires April 11, 1830," was paid $250.

1829. Asa Andrews was collector, Ipswich, "appointed April 1, 1826," and was paid $250.

1830. Timothy Souther was collector, Ipswich, and was paid $41.60; Abel Story, ins., Essex, and was paid $51.00; B. Averill, ins., Ipswich.

1831. Timothy Souther was collector, Ipswich, appointed April 12, 1830, and was paid $250.

1832. Timothy Souther was collector, Ipswich, and was paid $284.93; B. Averill, ins., w'r., and g'r., Ipswich, and was paid $74.06; Abel Story, ins., Essex, and was paid $30.00; E. Pulsifer, ins., Ipswich.

1833. Timothy Souther was collector, Ipswich, and was paid $301.00; B. Averill, ins., w'r., g'r., Ipswich, was paid $74; Abel Story, ins., Essex, was paid $39.00; E. Pulsifer, ins., Ipswich was paid $231.00; David Pulsifer, 3d, ins., Ipswich, was paid $6.00.

1835-6. Timothy Souther was collector, Ipswich, and was paid $301.00; E. Pulsifer, ins., Ipswich, was paid $231.00; Abel Story, ins., Essex, was paid $39.00.

1839. Timothy Souther was collector, Ipswich, and was paid $309.40; Ebenezer Pulsifer ins., Ipswich, was paid $430.00; Amos Daniels, ins., Ipswich, was paid $400.00; Abel Story, Essex, was paid $40.00.

1841. Asahel H. Wildes was collector, Ipswich, and was paid $263.00; Amos Kendall, deputy collector, Ipswich, was paid $5.00; Daniel L. Willcomb, ins., Ipswich, was paid $411.00; Robert W. Burnham, ins., Essex, was paid $16.50.

1843. Asahel H. Wildes was collector and was paid $233.10; Daniel L. Willcomb, ins., Ipswich, 4 mo. 8 days, was paid $384.00; Issachar Burnham, ins., Essex, 10 days, was paid $48.00.

1855. Daniel L. Willcomb was surveyor, Ipswich, and was paid $250.00; Frederic Willcomb, ins., Ipswich, was paid $200.00.

1857. Daniel L. Willcomb was surveyor and was paid $256.00; Frederic Willcomb, ins., and was paid $200.00.

1861. Reuben Daniels was surveyor, Ipswich, and was paid $250.00. Mr. Daniels was in office, he says, nine years, and was inspector the last three.

1871. Philip E. Clark, was inspector, Ipswich, and was paid $250.00. Mr. Clark's commission reads: "Inspector of customs, for the port of Ipswich, district of Newburyport," and is dated 28 March, 1870.

1875. James W. Bond succeeded

Mr. Clark as inspector, Ipswich, 26 July, 1875. He was paid $3.00 per diem when employed, though not to exceed $249.00 per annum. Mr. Bond continued in office till the abolition of the port, 29 Feb., 1876.

NOTED AND QUOTED.

The Hovey Family, on the Hammatt foundation, will appear next month. Who has any material facts about their early history will please favor us with them.

The eleventh reunion of the "Nourse Monument Association" will be held at the old homestead, Tapleyville, Danvers, Thursday, July 26.

William Jeffrey, who was early of Agawam and the owner of the present Jeffrey's Neck Pasture, and who was afterwards "warned" out of Ipswich and became governor of the R. I. colony, with home at Newport mentions, in his will dated 1675, his mother, Audry Jeffrey, of Chittingly, Sussex, in the Visitation of Sussex." The family arms are "Azure fretty or, on a chief argent a lion passant-guardant gules."

The supervisors of the Boston Public Library, to whom was intrusted the selection of distinguished names to be engraved where coming generations reading may be reminded of their distinguished labors and worth, have selected the following of this county:—

Simon Greenleaf, jurist, born in Newburyport, 1783; died in Cambridge, 1853. He succeeded Story to the Dane professorship in the Harvard law school. His greatest work was a treatise on the law of evidence.

Theophilus Parsons, jurist, born in Byfield Parish, Newbury, 1750; died in Boston, 1813. He was chief justice of the supreme court of Massachusetts, and published commentaries on the laws of the United States.

Daniel Treadwell, born in Ipswich, 1791; died in Cambridge, 1872. He built a power press, the first by which a sheet was printed on this continent by other than hand power. He built the first successful machine for spinning hemp for cordage.

Rufus Choate, born in Ipswich, now Essex, 1799; died in 1850, a lawyer and U. S. senator. He was one of the greatest of forensic advocates.

Joseph Story, jurist, born in Marblehead, 1799; died in Cambridge, 1845. He was a leader of the New England bar and of the Republican party. He divided with Chancellor Kent the honor of having founded the American system of equity jurisprudence. For 34 years he was a judge of the United States supreme court, and 16 years professor of law at Harvard.

OBITUARIES.

HON. CALEB FOOTE was born, in Salem, 28 Feb., 1803. He died Sunday, 17 June, 1894, in his 92nd year. His parents were Caleb and Martha-West Foote, the former a descendant of Pasco Foote who settled, in Salem, before 1637. His paternal grandfather served under Washington, and later was a prize-master as privateersman. His grandfather, Samuel West, followed the seas and died on a trading-voyage to Virginia. His own father was a seafaring man, and died at his post of duty, in 1810.

HON. CALEB FOOTE.

Mr. Foote was bereft, at the age of seven, of the guardianship and love of father and mother. He never knew the systematic teaching of the schools after he was ten years old; but he was a true scholar, acquired great learning, and was a peer or more among those of his profession. If he met a word or topic about which there was something he needed to learn, he learned it.

He was a clerk in stores in Salem and Boston about four years; then — 1817 — he became an apprentice in the Gazette office. There he devoted his life and step by step achieved success, which he enjoyed many years, retiring in October, 1888. In 1831 he established the Salem Mercury, afterwards called the Essex County Mercury.

He was a member of the Salem Light Infantry and of the School Board; was a State Representative, and a Councilor; Postmaster, and a master Mason, and belonged to the Naumkeag Fire Club, and other organizations, thus showing his public spirit and giving his efficient service.

Mr. Foote had great suavity of manners, was never impatient. He was nevertheless tenacious of his principles and views, and would state an argument with a disquieting cogency; yet gentlemanly and with full self-control.

Mr. Foote married 2 Oct., 1835, Mary Wilder White, daughter of the Hon. Daniel A. White, Judge of Probate. She died 24 Dec., 1857. They had six children, three of whom died young. Their son, Rev. Henry W. Foote, who died in the summer of 1889, was pastor of King's Chapel, Boston. The only living son is Arthur Foote, a well known musician in Boston; the only daughter is Mrs. Mary W. Tileston, wife of John B. Tileston, of Mattapan, Milton.

Foote & Horton, as publishers of the Mercury, were household names in Essex County, for many years.

ABIJAH WALDEN died 24 Dec., 1893, in Lynn, where he was born 19 Feb., 1793, to Nathaniel and Hannah-Ramsdell Walden. He was a shoemaker forty years, then a trader, and became wealthy. At 70, he became blind. He remembered Moll Pitcher and attended her funeral. He was in the War of 1812, drafted and served three weeks. He was a member of the South-Street Church. His nephew Edwin Walden, now deceased, was president of the Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn railroad Co. He never married. He was the first person to reach a hundred years in Lynn. His birthplace, Sumner Street, near Butman's mills, West Lynn, is the oldest house in the city.

His ancestors were among the early settlers of New England. William and Richard Walden, then spelled Waldron, settled in Dover, N. H., in 1635. William left no children. Richard, from whom Mr. Walden traced his descent, is frequently mentioned in the annals of that settlement. He was a member of the House of Deputies for twenty-four years, and for eight years was Speaker. He was killed by the Indians, June 27, 1689, when he was more than 80 years of age. The Walden family has been noted for its longevity.

THOMAS LEONARD, of Salem, died, Sunday, 19 June, 1894, in his 91st year. He was a mason and builder in Halifax, N. S. His home was broken by the death of his wife in 1864, when he came to Salem and made his home with his son William, where he died. He was a great reader. For more than sixty years he read the Bible through each year.

He leaves four children — Richard, William, and James Leonard, and Mrs. Elizabeth Woodroff.

REV. LUTHER HARRIS SHELDON, one of the veteran ministers of the Congregational church, died at his home in Andover, Saturday, 19 May, 1894. Mr. Sheldon was born at Easton, 22 Nov., 1812.

SIMEON ELLSWORTH, of Rowley, who had been a worthy and active citizen and reared an interesting family, died 25 May, 1894. He was born 21 Sept., 1801.

NEW BOOKS.

"A Genealogy of the Dennison Family from George Dennison, 1725" is received by the kind favor of George E. Marchant, Esq., Gloucester. The work covers fifteen pages, and brings the family down to the present. It was published, 1890, by James W. Dennison, Annisquam, Mass. A few copies remain at $1.00.

The courtesy of John W. Nourse, Esq., of Ipswich, has favored us with a copy of his address before the Nourse Family Association, 29 July, 1892, just published. He shows in fifteen tersely printed pages that "the actors in the witchcraft tragedy are not without parallels in both fiction and history." The pamphlet is profitably read, and can be obtained of the author.

DANIEL HOVEY AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

ON THE HAMMATT FOUNDATION.

DANIEL HOVEY¹, the ancestor of the Ipswich Hoveys, in a letter to the Probate Court, dated 27 Sept., 1683, states, that he had had six sons and a daughter by Abigail, sister to Thomas Andrews, "whom I matched with more than forty years ago."

In 1639, there were "granted to Daniel Hovey an houselott i acre of ground on the Southsyde of the Town River having a houselott granlaid out land to Thomas Law, on "Myle" brook; he and Goodman Emerson had 14s. apiece about keeping the cow "heards;" he, Thomas Hart and Robert Lord, Sr., were a committee to view the Neck, measure it, see what may be spared and report to the selectmen; he and Symon Thompson laid out land to Wade, Goodhue, Brown, Nichols and Law; he was one of a committee to ted to Willm Holdred on the West and a houselott granted to Thomas Sherman on the East; also six acres of planting ground lying on Sagamore Hill having a planting lott formerly granted to Henry Wilkinson on the West, and a planting lott granted to William Holdred on the East: to enjoy the sayd Landes, to him his heirs or assigns forever Entered 27th day of March, 1639." He had six acres of land on the side of Muddy River, 1637; land on the west of Philip Challis', 1678; was a Dennison subscriber in 1648; he and Robert Lord view Castle Neck. By the Ipswich records he had liberty, 1652, to set his fence down to the river at his ground bought of Wm. Knowlton, "making a stile at each end." Notwithstanding the rod [road], 14 Feb., 1650, was the town's. In 1665, he had share, No. 6, in Plum Island, Hog Island and Castle Neck. He had liberty, Aug., 1666, to fell trees for his son to work at his trade, to fell timber to build a house for John and for a shop for James, and fence for his land beyond Isaac Foster's house; 1668, to build a wharf against his ground bought of Wm. Knowlton, and such building as may tend to the improvement thereof; and to build his house. This "old house," which is pictured above, and the wharf are still to be seen,* at the northern end of "Turkey Shore." He could, 1670, fell trees to fence his garden "with pales, posts and rayles & make a neb and axel tree."

He married Abigail Andrews, daughter of Robert and sister of Thomas, an Ipswich schoolmaster, (who died 10 July, 1683, and whose nephews, Daniel, Jr., of Ipswich and John, of Salem, were appointed his executors.) At the close of his will, dated 21 March, 1691-2, he says, "Aged 73 and going into 74," which indicates that he was born 21 March. He died 24 April, 1692. His wife died 24 June, 1665. "Daniel Hovey, 12 March, 1693-4, was named executor together with his uncle Thomas Hovey², on the will of Daniel Hovey¹, Senior; the sd. Daniel made it appear he is 21 years old," "Thomas Hovey only surviving executor of the last will and testament of Daniel Hovey," 5 Oct., 1700. Philemon Dane and Jacob Foster certified that they appraised the estate of Daniel Hovey "not as money but as cuntry pay and than two shillings in money was with us accounted as good as three shillings in pay, and so passed frequently between men and men." The probate value of the estate rendered 5 Oct., 1700, was £ 606 10s., and the debts paid were £ 227 12s. 7d. His will mentions grandson Daniel, son of James, daughters Ayres and Abigail Hodgkins wife of Thomas, upland called Hovey's Island. Sarah Stone, wife of Deacon Stone, of Watertown, sold to him, 20 June, 1660, "70 acres, in Topsfield, being the land that the townsmen of Ipswich

THE DEXTER MANSION.

"LORD" TIMOTHY DEXTER AND HIS POET-LAUREATE.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

Concluded from Vol. 1, page 85.

"Lord" Dexter considered that a man of his dignity and title should have a poet-laureate. He looked around for such a man, and over in Newbury he found one that would answer his purpose. This man was Jonathan Plumer, who was born in Newbury, June 13, 1761. Lord Dexter certainly made a very consistent choice, for of all men in that region, this one was most like himself. As ignorant and eccentric as Dexter, Plumer was, for the sake of the notoriety and the good material things of life given him, entirely willing to be a fool.

Plumer was a love-cracked youth. He was silly in his manners toward the gentler sex, and often repeated a couplet of his own manufacture to young ladies:

"Must I be bound, while you go free?
Must I love girls who won't love me?"

People used to tell strange stories of his oddities. At one time he claimed to have had supernatural revelations, of one of which he said: "In the night I heard a voice, and it said 'Jonathan! Jonathan!' And I answered, 'Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth;'" and it then said, 'Yea, that is made of camomile will the pains of death beguile!'"

He would make verses to Dexter's order, in praise of his lord's power, wisdom, and wealth.

All went well with him to the time of his benefactor's death. Then he made his home with his unmarried cousins, Eunice, Hannah and Betsey Alexander, who lived together at the corner of Federal and High streets, in Newburyport, and took a few boarders and also kept a little shop for the sale of refreshments and small articles. He wore a three-cornered hat, and went about Newburyport and its neighborhood and the southeastern portion of New Hampshire peddling pins, needles, &c., and his own poems, which were printed on broad sheets.

He never married, and died in Newburyport, Sept. 13, 1819, at the age of fifty-eight. He made a will, in which he gave certain sums of money to his relatives; and ordered his executor to have six hundred copies of "The Occurrences of my Life" printed from the manuscript he had prepared, and have them bound in boards, and distributed among the people, not more than one to a family. He gave the residue of his estate to the Methodist Society at Greenland, N. H., for the support of the gospel. The will was disallowed, upon evidence that he was not of sound mind, and his property, amounting, according to the inventory, to $1573.14, was distributed among his relatives. This will is also on file in the probate office at Salem.

1800.

March 27, they voted to raise $90 to hire preaching and pay parish charges. The collection of the money voted was sold to the lowest bidder, Benj. Osgood at 1-4 per pound, and he was chosen collector. They adjourned to

Monday, 31 March. They allowed

"Jona. $ 12.32 for boarding candidates the year past; and Benj. Osgood 58 cents the year past."

1801.

March 23, the collection was sold at 11½ d. per pound. They voted $150 for preaching and parish charges.

April 20, they abated sundry person's taxes.

May 25, they "voted that the committee hire Mr. Cayford as much as they and he shall agree upon for six months," and to accept the report of the committee to settle with the treasurer, as follows:—

Monday, 22 March, they chose

Wm. Richardson collector, he being the lowest bidder, his bid being 20 cents on the pound; voted to raise $ 100 for preaching and parish charges, to allow Jona. Merrill $ 7 for boarding candidates the year past, and Nathaniel Hebbard fifty-five cents that he paid Mr. Killey.

1803.

Wednesday, 23 Feb., they voted to sell the meeting-house, under the article of the warrant: To see if they will sell it or remove it to the hill near the house of Kendall Meloon, and chose Dea. John Pettingill, Jona. Merrill, Ens. Benj. Osgood to sell it, and instructed them "to join with the socieys committee to leave it to a disinterested committee to apprise said house."

Wednesday, 16 March, they sold the collection of funds for 1s. 5d. on the pound, voted to raise $ 100 for preaching, to allow Jona. Merrill $ 18.88 for boarding candidates the year past. Adjourned to Wednesday, 6 April. They allowed Ens. Benj. Osgood "for cash he paid the committee that aprised the meeting-house $ 2.50 for liquor 50 cents finding six committee men dinners $ 1.00 making in the hole $ 4.00"

Wednesday, 6 April, they "voted to raise a sum of money to move and finish the meeting-house, providing those persons that have signed their names here will be their equal proportion Stephen Barker Theodore Barnard John Whittier William Whittier 3d Oliver Whittier Samuel Richardson Samuel Richardson Jr John Richardson Elisha Richardson Kendall Meloon Elijah Manser James Meloon Willm Richardson James Gutterson." They voted to raise $ 1000. The collection of it was sold to Samuel Griffin at six cents on the pound.

Wednesday, 20 April, they voted to reconsider the vote "passed the other day" raising $1000; to sell "the pew ground"; "chose a committee to set up advertisements and make the articles of sale", Ens. Benja. Osgood, Jona. Merrill, John Searl.

Wednesday, 11 May. They "voted to reconsider the vote respecting vandueing piewes, voted to reconsider a vote that was passed at the last meeting to reconsider a vote for raising \$1000 at a former meeting—voted that the former vote shall stand good respecting raising \$1000 to move and finish the meeting house voted that each man shall have his part of a tax of \$1000 go towards his piew or piewes." Chose Capt. Joseph Griffin, John Whittier, Alpheus Bodwell a committee to take a deed of $\frac{3}{4}$ of an acre of land at the east of Kendall Meloon's to set the meeting-house on. "Voted to take \$220 out of the \$1000 that is to be raised; that the assessors proportion the money that the pews were appraised at and draw the money out of the treasury to pay for them."

June 29, at the house of Kendall Meloon, they voted to enlarge* the meeting-house by putting ten feet in the middle; to add "a portico to the foore door;" that the committee "pick their hand to raise the meetinghouse and provide for them on the parish cost"; to leave it to the committee "to glaise the meetinghouse at their disgreption; to under pin the four side and the two ends of the meeting house with hude stones."

Sept. 29, met at the meeting-house and adjourned to 4 Oct. same place. There they met and adjourned to Mr. Meloon's house, where they voted to sell the pews and chose Capt. Joseph Griffin, Dea. John Pettingill, Jona. Merrill a committee to superintend selling the pews, on Tuesday, 25 October; voted that the two committees and Mr. Putnam make a plan of the pews; that the old glass and sashes and window frames be sold at vendue "if not sold before at private sale." Purchasers of pews shall have deeds in two months, pay 20 per centum at that time and have six months credit on the balance, by giving interest notes with good security—a bondsman—, "making the last paying 25 April next." They voted that the committee hire what money they think proper; paint the pews; to adjourn to 25 Dec., which was Sunday, and "the meeting died."

Dec. 23, they met at the meeting-house, chose a moderator and adjourned to Kendall Meloon's house, where they chose Lt. Benja. Osgood a committee to give deeds of the pews, that he take notes as treasurer; voted to sell the remaining pews; and adjourned to

Jan. 13, when they chose Jona. Merrill to give Lt. Benja. Osgood a deed of his pews.

Feb. 21, at Kendall Meloon's house, they voted to raise $600 to finish the meeting-house, and Lt. Benja. Osgood was chosen collector, his bid of eleven cents on the pound being the lowest.

*Article 2 of the warrant reads: "To see if the parish will enlarge the meetinghouse * * * by making it ten or twelve feet longer, or see if they will accept the offer made by Samuel Richardson for enlarging the house at his own expense providing the parish will give him the pew ground which there will be more in said house on account of its being so enlarged."

REBECCA NURSE.

The frontispiece of this number of the REGISTER pictures the "Rebecca Nurse Monument," erected in memory of her Christian fortitude and virtues, tried and proved by the cruel witchcraft infatuation that took her life, 19 July, 1692. The beautiful granite shaft stands upon the "Old Homestead," near the Tapleyville depot, Danvers. The sentiment was penned by Whittier for this sole purpose, and would have been expressed in four lines, had the tablet been amply wide. The obverse inscription reads thus:—

YARMOUTH, ENGLAND,
1621,
SALEM, MASS.
1692.

O Christian Martyr! who for Truth could die,
When all about thee owned the hideous Lie!
The world redeemed from Superstition's sway Is breathing freer for thy sake to-day.

The reverse inscription is as follows:—

Accused of Witchcraft
She declared
"I am innocent and God will clear my innocency."
Once acquitted yet falsely condemned she suffered death
July 19, 1692.
In loving memory of her Christian character even then attested by forty of her neighbors,
This Monument is erected
July, 1885.

At her trial, forty persons testified in her behalf. The judge instructed the jury to render a verdict of "guilty", after they had rendered a verdict of "not guilty". A tablet bearing the names of those forty persons, erected near the monument, was dedicated 29 July, 1892.

Mrs. Nurse was a member of the First Church of Salem. She joined when living there, and, though there was a "permission for the ministry" at Salem Village (now Danvers) as early as 1672, and a church was organized there in 1689, she did not, after removing her home to "The Village", remove her membership, but remained with the First Church till its action, as follows:—

EXCOMMUNICATION.

"1692 July 3. After y^e Sacram^t y^e Elders propounded to y^e church, & it was by an unanimous vote consented to, y^t our Sister Nurse being a convicted witch by y^e Court & condemned to dy, should be excommunicated, wch was accordingly done in y^e Afternoon, she being present."

ATTAINDER REMOVED.

"1712 March 2d. Aft^r y^e Sacrament a Chh meeting was appointed to be at y^e Teachers house att 2 of y^e Clock in y^e aft^r noon on y^e 6th of y^e month being Thursday.

"On wch day y^y acc^dingly mett to consid^r of y^e Seu^l following pticul^ts propounded to y^m by y^e Teacher, viz: 1: Weth^r y^e Record of y^e Excommunication of our Sister Nurse (all things consider^d) may not be Eras^d & blotted out.

"The Result of wch Consideration was "That w^{as} on July 3^d 1692 it was propos^d by y^e Elders & consented too by an unanimous Vote of y^e Chh y^t o^r Sister Nurse Sh^d be Excommunicated, she being convicted of Witchcraft by y^e Court & she was acc^dingly Excommunicated: Since wch y^e Gen^l Court having taken off y^e Attainder, & y^e Testimony on wch she was convicted being not now so Satisfactory to o^r selves, & others, as it was generally in y^t hour of Darkness & Temptation, And we being Solicited by her Son M^r Sam^l Nurse, to rase, & blott out of y^e Church rec^ds y^e Sentence of her Excommunication. This Chh having y^e matter propos^d to y^m by y^e Teacher & having Seriously considerd it doth consent y^t y^e Rec^d of o^r Sister Nurse's Excommunicatⁿ be acc^dingly rased & blotted out: y^t it may no longer be a reproach to her memory & an Occasion of aspersion to her Children, Humbly requesting y^t y^e mercyfull God would pardon whatsoev^r Sin, Error or Mistake, was in y^e application of y^e Censure & of y^t whole affair; Thro^h o^r Mercyfull high priest w^e knoweth how to have Compassion on y^e Ignorante & y^os y^t are out of y^e way."

NOTED AND QUOTED.

John Pike, who died at Salisbury, 1654, came from Langford, England, 1635, and was one of the proprietors of Newbury.

The Salem Gazette of 11 Nov., 1796, says, that Stephen Cathalan, consul at Marseilles, wrote 28 July, to David Pearce, merchant of Boston, that Capt. Calder had lately arrived there from Algiers; that there were 83 redeemed Americans at Marseilles; that J. Rogers, seaman, of Newbury, died in Algiers after his liberation; that Capt. Sam. E. Bailey, of Newburyport, died on the passage to Marseilles; that among those who died in Algiers after the peace but before redemption, was "E. Rust, seaman, of Cape Ann, æ. 36 and A. Simonds, do. do. 24."

Jonas Brown, born in Concord, Dec. 15, 1752, is said to have been the first American wounded at the battle of Concord bridge. He died in Temple, N. H. His descendants had a monument erected to his memory in Concord. He was a pensioner in 1831. Perley Putnam's is said to have been the first blood poured for freedom at Lexington, 1775. His name is upon the monument at Peabody, then Danvers.

The Georgetown Advocate, 5 May, 1894, notes a peculiarity in the names

OBITUARIES.

MRS. MARTHA O. WAITT died 31 May, 1894, at Lynn, aged ninety-four. She was the mother of fourteen children and had thirteen grandchildren. She was born very near the place where she died. Her father took part in the Bunker Hill fight. Before the end of the war he was promoted to drum-major, and he told Mrs. Waitt, that he had learned to drum from the British themselves. Her brother Isaac fought in the Mexican war, and her son Edmund H. served in the civil war.

EZRA GLAZIER died in Salem, 10 June, 1894, in his 94th year, and is believed to have been, at that time the oldest resident in the city. He was a native of Maine. He came here early in life, and was for many years an auctioneer. He was one of the original members of the Lafayette Street church, and was instrumental in its foundation. He was an able and good man.

17. Wanted the numbers of company and regiment, the names of captain and colonel and dates of enlistment and discharge of Zebulon Ingersol, pensioner, 1819.

18. Wanted the maiden name of Susanna, who married Thomas Law of Ipswich, the date of their marriage, and the names and birth-dates of their children.

19. Wanted the Christian name of the father and the maiden name of the mother of Nathaniel Low, of Ipswich, who married Abigail Riggs Jan., 15, 1722. W. L.

21. Who has a Gage's History of Rowley to sell, will please state the price.

23. John Goss and Sarah Phillips were married, in Ipswich, 20 Oct., 1725 — who was John's father and where? M. W. G.

24. Captain Jonathan Fellows, of Gloucester and Ipswich, was born 1707, married Elizabeth Norwood, and died 1759. His 3 sons Gustavus, Cornelius and Nathaniel (who spelt Fellows) came to Boston in 1774, married, and were successful merchants. Can any one give me information about this family prior to 1774, where they lived in Ipswich or or Gloucester, etc. H. D.

25. Ipswich records give marriage of John Kimball to Mary Jordan 1666. It is presumed this was a second marriage, because births of children are recorded to John Kimball prior to this, to wit: Sarah, 1661; Elizabeth, (who married Jeremiah Jewett), 1665; and perhaps others. Can any one give name of first wife and date of her death?

Richard Kemball or Kimball brought children with him to Watertown, 1634; among them was John, aged 3 years, and I assume the John above referred to, to have been this son of Richard, as Richard moved to Ipswich and was there in 1637. Can any one confirm this? A. G.

26. "Early Settlers of Rowley" says that Thomas Hammond "was supposed to have sold his soul to the Devil". What does this remark mean, or what was the reason for it?

ANSWERS.

20. Thomas Hammond¹, of England, married Rose Trippe, 14 May, 1573, and had William², of Watertown, 1632; free-man 1636; born in Eng., about 1575; died 8 Oct., 1662, aged 87; married, 9 June, 1605, Elizabeth Payne (?) sister of William; had good estate. In the earliest list of inhabitants of Watertown, in the great dividend or allotment of land, Wm. Hammond had 40 acres; had Thomas³, baptized in Eng., 17 Sept., 1618; was of Watertown; married Hannah, daughter of John Cross, of Ipswich; had only one child (Thomas, posthumous, born 11 July, 1656); he died 10 Dec., 1655. His will, dated Nov. 21, 1655, mentions his estate in Lavenham, Suffolk, Eng.; Widow; died 24 Mch., 1657; will proved 8 Apr. next.

Thomas⁴, born 11 July, 1656; married Sarah Pickard, 6 Dec., 1679; died in Rowley, 26 Feb., 1724. This man is said to have been a grandson of the first John Cross of Ipswich, and inherited the farm, on which he died in Ipswich, from his grandfather. The said farm joins the boundary of Rowley, and is now owned by John F. Bradstreet, a descendant. His gravestone is in Rowley Cemetery.

See Savage's Gen. Dictionary, Bond's Hist. of Watertown, Blodgett's Early Settlers of Rowley.

Alliston Gerry.

22. "Hobbs-and-Pearson Town" was granted to Humphrey Hobbs and Moses Pearson and their companies for services at Louisburg. The grant afterward took the name of Pearsontown, and by act of November 30th, 1785, became the town of Standish, Maine. R. T. S.

HOWARD, OR HAYWARD.

There is some confusion in the spelling of what is doubtless the same name.

²William and Martha Howard had Tabitha, b. Jan. 21, 1669; William, b. Sept. 26, 1696; Hezekiah, b. Oct. 1, 1698. William, probably father of the preceding, died July 29, 1709. William Hayward had liberty to fell trees, 1670; was commoner, 1678; had William, b. June 25, 1673; Marcy, b. Oct. 8, 1675; Martha, b. March 31, 1678.

His will is dated July 23, 1709; it mentions sons William, John, Samuel, weavers, and daughters, Mary Fuller, b. Dec. —, 1667, Tabitha Hodgkins, Mercy Hovey, Martha Howard and a sister Hannah. A wife is mentioned but not named.

William, Samuel and John Howard had seats assigned them in the meeting house, Feb. 23, 1702-3.

1685, Oct. 3, b. Samuel to Wm. and Tabitha Hayward.

1696, Sept. 26, b. William to Wm. and Martha Howard.

1695, Jan. —, m. Wm. Hayward and Martha Hodgkins.

1686, April 15 d. "Old Thomas Hayward."

1725, Aug. 6, d. Susannah, wife of Hezekiah Howard, son of William.

1725, Feb. —, d. "Hannah Howard, a very ancient maid."

1689, Jan. 22, Tabitha Hayward m. Christopher Hodgkins, and was undoubtedly the daughter of William Howard, and Samuel, b. Oct. 3, 1685, his son. In 1695, he married a Hodgkins. His first wife was Tabitha. Old Thomas Hayward who died April 15, 1686, was probably his father.

Wm. Story had liberty, 18 Feb., 1667, to fell timber for a frame for William Hayward. William Howard, 27 Nov., 1668, could fell for fencing his orchard and homestead. William Hayward could fell for a hogsecoat, 26 Jan., 1670. William Howard, 18 May, 1671, could get out 100 "rayles" and 50 posts.

"Old Homes of Ipswich" reads:—"Thomas and Susanna Howard came from Aylesford, in the Hercules, with five children. He settled in Ipswich, and his son William married Tabitha Kinsman, and lived in what is known as the Dawson House. At his death, the house descended to his sons, John and Samuel, who, in 1709, opened the drive way, which has for generations been called

'Love Lane', [and which was this spring (1894) laid out and made a street.]

"About 1760, the Howards sold the house to Samuel Ringe; later it became the home of Capt. Ebenezer Caldwell, grandfather of Mrs. James G. Blaine."

The house stands on Prospect Street, exactly in front, as you go that way over Green Street Bridge.

NATHAN DANE'S BIRTHPLACE.

Strange as it seems, the "Memoir of Daniel Safford, by his Wife" is incorrect in claiming the homestead pictured in the frontispiece of this number as his birthplace.

The ancient Safford place, belonging to the ancestors of Daniel Safford, perhaps the original Safford grant, is in Hamilton, on the road leading from Norwood's Mills to Asbury Grove, just opposite Elm Street, or the road leading to the Hamilton church. May 1, 1701, Joseph Safford agreed with his sons John and Samuel to take the place and care for him and his wife during their natural lives. In the boundary are mentioned "where the new house cellar is begun to be dug", "the great River", and "Wallis' land". The description of the property mentions "dwelling, buildings, barn and land in the town of norwich in ye Connetecut Colony." Feb. 27, 1720, John Safford deeded to Samuel Safford homestead, five acres, "in the new Hamlett precinct in Ipswich." The deed is signed by John and Abigail Safford.

May 28, 1800, Samuel Safford of Hamilton, father of Daniel of the "Memoir", and grandfather of Judge Daniel E. Safford, of Salem, sold to Manasseh Dodge, of Hamilton, "the homestead on which we now live", 73¾ acres, for $2,777. The deed was acknowledged 17 Sept., 1801, recorded 8 Oct., 1803, and signed by Samuel and Priscilla Safford. Mr. Dodge took down the old house and built on the site the present one, in 1804.

July 13, 1802, Samuel Safford, father of Daniel, bought of Nathan Dane, the Dane farm, formerly the "Old John Appleton" estate, 151 acres with buildings, for $4,000. The deed is signed "Nathan Dane, Polly Dane."

Since, then, Mr. Safford, the subject of the "Memoir", was born 30 Oct., 1792, it is evident that his birthplace was the ancient Safford homestead, in Hamilton and that he removed with his parents to the Dane, or "Old John Appleton House," in Ipswich, at the age of eight or ten years.

Well, then, does the "Memoir" say, there "were cultivated those social affections and beautiful moral traits, which distinguished Mr. Safford, and the foundation laid for his life of uncommon usefulness."

Mr. Safford settled in Boston where he was a deacon and by trade a blacksmith. His partner in business was deacon Adams, who also went from the Ipswich Hamlet. This firm, it is said, built the iron fence around Boston Common which is now in good condition, and has been admired as a fine specimen of its kind.

Mr. Safford was distinguished in many ways as a business man and a philanthropist. His Memoir is profitably read. It distills the sweetness of true Christian character, is an example of the glad companionship of wealth and Christian beneficence and in it a life of secular and religious labors are beautifully united and illustrated.

The house was built about two hundred years ago by John Appleton (1660-1724), a son of Major Samuel Appleton, of Old and New England (1624-1696), the famous Indian fighter and commander of the New England forces, on the Connecticut River, in King Phillip's War, 1675. There are no descendants of John Appleton living.

It is thought the Danes immediately succeeded the Appletons in the possession of the place. From the Danes, it passed to the Saffords, as above stated. Then it became the property of Benjamin Patch, then of his son-in-law Henry Wilson, and in 1889 a part of the Appleton Farms.

The buildings on the right of the picture were much decayed and were removed by Mr. Wilson. The barn on the extreme left was also taken down by him. The other barn was taken down three years ago by Mr. D. Fuller Appleton, the proprietor of Appleton Farms. The house stands solitary and alone.

An aroma of interest attaches to "the old place" because it was the home of the Appletons — a name of sterling worth, leading and efficient in citizen service, honorable and honored; because it cultured the noble character of Mr. Safford; because it stands for labor and love, for yeomanry and "length of days", but the interest is national in that it was the birthplace of Hon. Nathan Dane.

Mr. Dane became a lawyer — a learned and profound jurist and eminent statesman. Mr. Dane and Rev. Manasseh Cutler, Mr. Dane's early neighbor and a minister of Hamilton, when both were members of Congress, shared the honor of framing and advocating the Ordinance that forever excluded Slavery from the North-west Territory. Daniel Webster, in his Hayne speech, made a pleasant reference to Mr. Dane, as instanced on page 53 of this volume. Dr. Andrew P. Peabody, of Harvard College, in his "Christianity, the Religion of Nature", at page 245, briefly sketches Mr. Dane's manhood and the secret of his success:—

"The venerable Nathan Dane, to whom the country is indebted for the Ordinance of 1787 for the government of the North-west Territory, was deemed the most erudite lawyer of his time. He lived to the age of eighty-three, and for many years, and till within a few weeks of his death, he spent fourteen hours a day in his library. He seemed incapable of light labor or of literary recreation, and eighty-four hours of every week were given to the driest details of law, political science, and recondite history. Not long before his death, he told me that he attributed his prolonged and undiminished capacity of study to his having for a full half-century devoted the Sabbath to an entirely different class of studies from those which occupied him during the week, — not to easy religious reading (for he lacked the ability of even such relaxation), but to the Hebrew Scriptures in the original, to ecclesiastical history, and to the profounder themes of inquiry connected with the Christian revelation. 'From Sunday thus spent', he said, 'I have always returned on Monday morning to my week's work, refreshed and strengthened.'"

The Family Record of Hon. Nathan Dane's mother written to her son Nathan, is copied from the original, by William F. Abbot:—

OBITUARIES.

REV. MOSES PARSONS STICKNEY was born to Lt. Moses and Sarah-Pike Stickney, in Rowley-Byfield, on the 12th of July, 1807; he died at his summer home, Royalton, Vt., 19 Aug., 1894. He graduated at Amherst, 1830; studied theology with Rev. Dr. Enoch Pond, of Bangor, Me., and settled over the Congregational church at Eastport, where he served four years. Changing his views, he was ordained deacon in the Episcopal church, by Rt. Rev. Alex. V. Griswold, 25 Feb., 1841. He soon passed to priesthood; became rector of St. Michael's, Marblehead, 1842; of St. Peter's, Cambridgeport, 1847; later of Burlington College, N. J.; assistant in the Church of the Advent, Boston, 1853, which labor he resigned in 1870.

His wife was Jane F. Curry, of St. Andrews, N. B., whom he married 24 Oct., 1842. She survives him with two children, son and daughter. He leaves, in Georgetown, a brother Joseph P. and a sister Mrs. Otis Thompson.

He was an oldtime gentleman, courteous, scholarly, esteemed.

DANIEL ALLEN, the oldest male resident of Gloucester, died Monday, 30 July, 1894, at the age of ninety-two years and four months. He was a native and lifelong resident of the city, and for many years carried on an extensive sail-making and outfitting business in connection with his sons. He was a prominent member of the First Baptist church.

WILLIAM PUTNAM, of Danvers, died 16 Aug., 1894, of a slight paralysis, in his 91st year. His widow is 86 years of age. He was a farmer and had held town offices.

17—7. Daniel, 4 Mch., 1738; d.* 29 June, 1748.

18—8. William, 20 June, 1742.

5. Richard Goss, Babson thinks "probably a near kinsman of the preceding", 5—4, and "perhaps he came from Ipswich, where a Richard Goss [father?] had recently deceased", bapt. (I) 6—11—1711; m. (G) Elizabeth Harraden, dau. of the second Edward, 1 Jan., 1735. He settled at Annisquam and pursued a maritime business of considerable extent; d. in Oct., 1764, leaving an estate of £1800, consisting of three schooners, mdse., real estate and money.

Tradition still mentions "Madam Goss", which shows her to have been in her day a lady of some distinction. The records of the 'Squam church note that "Elizabeth, widow of Richard Goss, Sen, was admitted to full communion Aug. 15, 1773, Æ. 73". Her will is dated 23 Feb., 1784; was proved 8 April, 1788. Children:

19—1. Richard, b. 23 April, 1737.

20—2. Molly, bapt. 10 Aug., 1740.

7. Thomas Goss, b. (G) 19 May, 1731; m. in 1755, Mary Tarr, settled in Sandy Bay Parish, had many children, with some of whom he removed to Danville, Me., where he died 20 Nov., 1819, aged 89. He had a son John who settled in Danville. Gosses are numerous thereabouts.

19. Richard Goss, b. (G) 23 April, 1737; [published (I) 8 March, 1766]; m. (G) 6 Jan., 1766, Susanna Wheeler, of Ipswich. He was a sea-captain, and died 15 June, 1769. He left by will to his widow what the law allowed, and to his mother the rest of his estate, who, upon her marriage or decease, might bequeath it to any of his kindred of the name of Goss, except to the heirs of his uncle Thomas Goss. He left £13. 6. 8. to Rev. Thomas Goss of Bolton, upon the marriage or decease of his mother.

Elizabeth Goss, of 'Squam, b. 14 Oct., 1736; (see above 9—3;) m. in 1755, John Tarr, b. to Benj., about 1733; d. in April, 1831, aged 94½ years.—Babson, Ad. I, p. 81.

Hannah Goss, m. 5 Nov., 1732, Adoniram Griffin, son of the first Gloucester Samuel; had son Adoniram, b. 25 June, 1735, who m. 24 Jan., 1760, Susanna Pierce; had also son John and two daughters.

Allen Goss and others with their boat were lost on or near Cashes Ledge, 1821.

Richard Goss Stanwood had, 1875, a son in Boston and a grandson in Marysville, Cali.

25. John Kamball, son of Richard, the ancestor, born 1631, died 6 May, 1698, married, in 1655, Mary, daughter of Humphrey and Bridget Bradstreet, born 1633, who had been his ship-companion on the Elisabeth, from Ipswich, England. He had thirteen children. It was supposed until recently, that his last six children were by Mary, daughter of Francis and Jane-Wilson Jordan, born 16 May, 1641, whom he was stated to have married, 8 Oct., 1666; but no death-record of his first wife has been found, and the language of a receipt recently discovered on the Essex records indicates, that it was John of Amesbury, born 1644, a grandson of the ancestor through Henry of Wenham, who married Mary Jordan.

“Between these hills, parted perhaps
For this sweet use at the creation,
Flows up the long Church Cove, and laps
The foot of the fair elevation
On which the white church stands, or stood
Before the quaint old meeting-house,
Where, led by pastors wise and good,
The village fathers paid their vows.”

COMMUNICATED.

The first volume of records of the third parish, lost for more than twenty years, has recently been found among the dust-covered tomes of the city archives.

This parish is the third in regard to the date of its organization, June, 1728, the parish at West Gloucester being the second. The first pastor was Rev. Benj. Bradstreet, of Newbury, a town prolific of ministers. He graduated at Harvard in 1725, and this was his first charge. In it he labored till 1762. The covenant was signed by Benjamin Bradstreet, Edward Haraden, Samuel Lane, Joseph Thurston, John Lane, Samuel Gott, James Lane, Jethro Wheeler, Daniel Collins, Anthony Bennett, and Benjamin Davis. Many of these names are now living on the ancestral grants.

The territory of this parish then included what is now Lanesville, Bay View, and Annisquam; but it is confined to Annisquam at present, each of the other villages having now a church of its own.

The first to locate on the territory of this parish now known as Annisquam, or more familiarly as 'Quam, was Robert Dutch, in 1656, but Edward Harraden who bought Mr. Dutch's interest, was the first permanent settler. Robert married at Gloucester, and soon after removed to Ipswich. His father was, doubtless, Osman Dutch who resided in the eastern part of the town near the place known to-day as "Dutch's Slough." Osman Dutch was a selectman in 1650.

Some accessions to the parish before 1700 were the Butman, Davis, Day, Lane, Norwood, Sargent, and York families.

Up to about 1840, it was a thriving fishing and ship-building section of Cape Ann. The fishing enterprise went to "The Harbor", and the ship-building, across the bay, to Essex. Judge James Davis, of the Police Court, was one of the last builders to relinquish the business. The place is now a summer resort, admired for its quietness, healthfulness, and scenic beauty.

The first meeting-house was built near the site of the present at the head of "Lobster Cove," or as it is now known, of "Church Cove."

After Mr. Bradstreet, the church and parish were rent in twain by discensions, discussions, investigations and dismissals respecting two of his successors.

Rev. Ezra Leonard was settled there in 1804. The church forewarned by their sad experience with former pastors, gave him an exhaustive trial as a candidate; but marvelous to relate, in 1811, he and his church and society went, doctrine and practise, to Universalism.

Radical and marvelous as was this change, such was the change in the First Church and Parish, in 1829, when after a bitter fight and strenuous opposition by a powerful minority, both went permanently to Unitarianism.

Mr. Leonard remained with the church and society till 1832, when he died, at the age of fifty-seven years. He was a man whose piety was eminently practical, and so bent on benevolent work, that during the latter part of his life he attended medical lectures, to fit himself to minister gratuitously to the sick. To this day his name is devotedly remembered.

March 29, they voted to raise \$275 for preaching and parish charges, and Isaiah Silver bid off the collection at $6\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Stephen Barker was chosen to repair the meeting-house.

March 24, they voted to raise \$200 for preaching and parish charges, and Samuel Parker bid off the collection at $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Parker was excused and Isaiah Silver took it at the same rate. They voted to allow Samuel Griffin for boarding Mr.

Barton $4.17

Mr. Dole for boarding joiners while repairing the meeting-house, and for dinners for ministers $10.93

Stephen Barker for time and material for repairing the meeting-house $3.00

Daniel Frye for "going after" and boarding ministers $7.00

Stephen Barker, Joseph Griffin, Jr., Jonathan Merrill were to give certificates of new membership.

March 21, they voted to raise $200; Thomas Plummer bid off the collection at 6 per cent. Voted that the Baptists expend their own money in preaching as they choose; that Capt. John Richardson be added to the committee "to proportion the money for Baptist preaching and divide the time each party shall occupy the meeting house". Collector Plummer was "dismissed" and Isaiah Silver elected.

March 28, they reconsidered "the vote to choose a 4th committee man" and voted to allow the town of Methuen $4.00 paid for Edward Richardson's imprisonment.

April 2, they voted to raise $150 to supply the desk; and Benj. Osgood bid off the collection at 9 per cent. Allowed Capt. David McClary for boarding Mr. Brown's horse six nights and Mr. Fisher and his horse one week $3.00
John Dole, boarding ministers, $11.92

They instructed the committee to hire Mr. Eastman four Sabbaths.

Oct. 22, they chose a committee to agree with the Second parish respecting Rev. Mr. Eastman.

April 9, they voted to raise \$100 for preaching and parish charges and S. Barker, 2nd, bid off the collection at $10\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Voted "an execution issue against all collectors whose lists have been due two years. Voted that Benj. Town should be collector for the tax of 1816 instead of Benj. Osgood, Esq.

1818.

March 16, they voted to raise $50 for preaching and parish charges. Stephen Barker, 2nd, bid off the collection at 10 per cent. John Dole for boarding ministers had $7.12; Capt. David McClary had $3.00 for boarding Mr. Fisher.

1819.

March 3, they voted $75 for preaching and parish charges. Voted to sue John Whittier's note. Voted to accept Samuel Harris' two pews for all taxes due the parish.

1820.

March 16, they voted \$150 for preaching and parish charges. Jonathan Morse, 2nd, took the collection at $4\frac{3}{4}$ per cent. "Voted to sue those who refuse to pay their taxes to this parish on account of Signing to Mr. Eastman's;" and to allow John Dole for boarding ministers, "the past year", \$14.75.

1821.

March 26, they voted $100 for preaching and parish charges. Josiah Griffin bid off the collection at 6 per cent. The collection of rates had been a disturbing element all along and the treatments of the several cases are marked features of the business, but here a seeming crisis is presented:— "Voted to abate Jonathan Morse taxes in all the Collectors lists to this date; in Capt Josiah Silver's lists for 1813, 1814 and 1815 the following persons taxes viz John Richardson, Jr., Levi Sherman, Aaron Robinson, Pottle Richardson, Tristram Currier, Seth Emerson, Samuel Day, Isaac B. Richardson, Simeon Stevens, Samuel Clark, 2nd, James Maston, Peter Stevens, Bailey Day, Enoch Gerrish, John Mansur, and Ebenezer Whittier; in Stephen Barker 2nd lists for 1817 and 1818 Joseph B. Varnum and Peter Stevens taxes and all other taxes against persons whom the assessors find have lodged certificates with the town Clerk according to law that they have joined another religious denomination".

June 15, they "voted to Support Stephen Barker, 2nd Collector in the Cause against Dea. John Pettengill respecting the taking of a horse Wagon in case the facts were not different from the statement."

March 28, they voted $75 for preaching and parish charges, and Jona. Griffin, Jr., bought the collection at 10 per cent.; Capt. Samuel Griffin janitor; to allow Stephen Barker, 2nd, "to square the line between his land and the common at the easterly end of the Meeting house by putting the fence part of the way on the Parish's land"; and "chose Capt. Josiah Griffin to obtain information of some distinguished attorney respecting the legality of holding Maj. Osgood and others to pay taxes in this parish."

1823.

April 21, they voted $100 for preaching and parish charges, and the collection was sold at 10 per centum; "that the assessors examine the town-records and give orders to the amount of taxes against all persons who they do not consider legally holden to pay taxes to this Parish;" "to allow Amos Spauldings bill of $88.12; that Stephen Barker 2nd repair the meetinghouse, and bring in his bill."

April 20, they voted $75 for preaching and parish charges, and Aaron Sawyer, Jr., bought the collection at 9 per cent.; "to suspend Doct. John L. Bodwells execution for a time;" to allow Stephen Barker, 2nd, $14.77 for boarding ministers.

1825.

March 17, they voted \$100 for preaching and parish charges, and Amos Morse, 3d, bid off the collection at $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.; to abate all non-resident taxes in Jona. Griffin, Jr.'s, Stephen Barker, 2nd's, and Josiah Griffin's lists and twenty others, "and several others of which the Assessors took a list."

1826.

April 13, they voted $100 for preaching and Perley Morse bid off the collection at 12 per cent.; "that the taxes be made April first and collected within one year."

1827.

March 17, they voted \$100 for preaching and parish charges, and Perley Morse bid off the collection at $8\frac{3}{4}$ per cent.; that the Assessors "hunt up that land Set off to Carlton;" "that all the back collectors shall settle up all the taxes that they can in three months, the rest to be settled next March."

Joseph Griffin, Jr., Aaron Sawyer, Amos Morse, 3d, reckoned with Joseph W. Carlton and recieved a note of $68.15, deeds of house and land in Amesbury, a pew in Mr. Eastman's meetinghouse and one in Mr. Kimball's.

March 26, they voted to throw out all the notes and collectors' lists that are outlawed at the next reckoning; "the treasurer shall be authorized to execute deeds for said parish"; that the assessors shall abate such taxes as they see fit; "shall reckon with Spalding"; back collectors but the two last shall be made to settle up in 60 days; the committee may hire preaching within 60 days.

1829.

March 24, they voted $150 for preaching and parish charges; that the collection be "in the same way and manner and subject to the same deduction and other regulations as the town taxes are collected"; and to defend Joseph S. Morse from paying taxes to the first parish.

1830.

March 31, they voted "to raise money by subscription"; the money in the treasury and back collectors' hands for preaching.

1831.

April 30, they voted to raise $150 by tax to be collected in the same manner as the town-tax; Elbridge Griffin janitor. This month Joseph Morse and Mary Peabody filed certificates of having left this parish and gone to the Baptist church.

1832.

Jan. 3, they voted to settle Rev. Josiah Hill; "to give him $300 per year considering the same equal to his services three-fourths of the time, having the remainder optionary with him", "to dispose of as he pleases."

Jan. 12, they voted to receive new members if they shall pay to the treasurer before May 1 next "such sum of money as they may think proper", being therefore exempt from taxes the present year.

April 30, they chose Enoch Whittier, 2nd, janitor; voted $200 to be collected same as the town tax; that the treasurer sell the land belonging to the parish; the treasurer 6 per cent. for collecting taxes of 1831; and Stephen Barker, Esq., "to swap the stove, if he can."

This month, these filed certificates that they had withdrawn from the parish: Isaac Morse and Amos Morse, 4th, to the Universalists, Miles F. Griffin to F. Congregation, Enoch Plumer to Baptist, Aaron Sawyer, Jr., society not stated.

March 18, they voted a resolve that they "extremely regretted" to part with Mr. Hill, but the finances of the parish were too small to enable them to retain him; to raise $200 in the manner of last year.

March 29, they voted that the money raised be used to pay "the back arrearages of the parish"; that "the church unite with Mr. Hills in calling a council for his dismission."

July 7, they chose B. F. Varnum, Esq., Thomas Lenpest (?) and Joseph Shattuck to appraise the pews.

HOWLETT.

Thomas Howlett had granted to him, in 1635, a house lot in the town adjoining Thomas Hardy, on the cross way leading towards the mill. In 1637 he purchased of John Perkins, the elder, forty acres of land, for £7 10s. His name with the title of "Ensign" is among "such as promise carting voluntarily toward the cart bridge besides the rate a day work apiece", Feb. 4, 1646. In 1643 Sergeant Howlett with ten soldiers was employed in some service to the assistance of the neighboring Indians, for which they were voted 12d. a day for each soldier and the officers, double. Serg. Howlett's pay was 6s. He was a commoner in 1641, had 1½ shares in Plum Island, etc., in 1664. He was a deputy to the General Court, 1635. He died —, 1668, aged 79. His wife Alice died June 26, 1666. He left a widow Rebecca, and children: Samuel, Sarah Cumings and Mary Perley. His will is dated Dec. 21, 1667, and proved March 31, 1668. His house and land — 100 acres — are valued at £220; other property makes a total of £340. [In pencil, He lost son Nath'l 28 April, 1658.

William was a voter in town affairs in 1679, and had a seat assigned him in the meeting-house, 1700.

HUBBARD.

¹Wm. Hubbard came to Boston in 1630; he applied to be made freeman 19 Oct., the same year. He settled in Ipswich, 1635, and became one of the wealthiest and most respected of the first inhabitants. He gave an acre of land towards founding a grammar school, in the English sense, a Latin Grammar school, and was one of its feoffees from the foundation in 1650 till his return to Boston in 1662. [The Cogswell school is said to be on the Hubbard acre.]

"Feb. 18, 1638, it is referred to Mr. Hubbard, Mr. Payne, Mr. Whitingham, to view the highway leading from the High Street to the Bridge street and to add unto Henry Archer and any other lotts adjoining so much out of it as may encourage them to make Ditches to drain the way, the parties named to see the highway be drained".

He was a deputy to the General Court six years between 1638 and 1646. In 1651, he was commissioned by the General Court to solemnize marriages. He died between 8 June and 19 Aug., 1670, leaving sons ²William, ³Richard and Nathaniel.

2. William was born in England about 1621 and came to this country with his father, in 1630. He was of the first class graduated at Harvard College, which was in 1642. He entered the ministry as colleague with Mr. Cobbitt, beginning in July, 1656, and continuing till Aug. 2, 1702, when, as the Church records read, "The Rev. Mr. Hubbard detained the brethren of the Church and signified and declared his inability (thro. age) to carry on the work of the ministry any longer among them and desired that they would take care and procure help to carry on sd. work" He expended his patrimony which was large, and left his widow in indigence, 14 Sept. 1704. He mortgaged to John Richards, of Boston, 20 July, 1674, "his Dwelling house in the Town of Ipswich and thirty acres of land, being part of Haffield's farm, and twelve acres of other land, for £324 sterling." At a town-meeting held 26 Oct., 1704, it was "Voted that the twenty pounds due to the Treasurer for the sale of the old meeting-house ye Treasurer shall pay ye said twenty pounds toward the defraying Mr. Hubbards funeral." Thus they "helpt to bury whom they helpt to starve"

His first wife was Margaret, daughter of the Rev. Nathaniel Rogers. She having died, he married in 1694, Mary, widow of Samuel Pearce, who died in 1691. Mr. Felt says: "This marriage was not agreeable to most of his parish. They would allow her to be a wealthy woman, but not of sufficient note to be their minister's wife" At a town-meeting held Mch. 14, 1709-10, "Voted that twenty pounds, money be added to the town rates for supplying of Mrs. Hubbard in her distressed condition." She died 28 Feb., 1710-11, aged fifty-three.

53 YEARS

He left two sons, ⁴John and Nathaniel, and a daughter Margaret. The daughter married John Pynchon and removed first to Boston, next to Springfield. While in Boston, she joined the Ipswich church, by "taking the covenant" 18 Jan., 1673.

Mr. Hubbard was the author of "Present State of New England," which was printed in London, in 1678. It was recast, and printed afterwards as "Indian Wars". The General Court appointed a committee 19 May, 1680, to peruse the "History of New England", and report, so that they may judge about having it printed. In 1683, they voted £50, a "half of this sum to be paid him now if he procure a fayre copie to be written, that it be fitted for the presse." The "fayre coppie" remained in manuscript, till the Mass. Hist. Society, aided by a donation from the General Court, had it printed in 1815.

3. Richard graduated at Harvard in 1653. His father, in 1662, when he removed to Boston, gave him a valuable farm in the Hamlett (which is now Hamilton). In 1664, he had a double share in Plum Island, etc., which indicates him as one of the twenty-seven of the richest out of 230 freeholders. He was a selectman in 1665, feoffee of the grammar school, 1665, tithing-man, 1677. He died 3 May, 1681; left a widow Sarah, sons Richard, Nathaniel, John and Simon, and a daughter, Sarah Cotton, wife of John Cotton. His farm contained 220 acres with dwelling-house, out-buildings, orchards, etc.

He had Wm., b. 29 Nov., 1666. 1691, Apr. 22, Richard, son of Mr. Richard, chose his uncle Mr. Wm. guardian; John, son of Mr. Richard, chose Capt. Daniel Epps; Nathaniel chose Capt. Thomas Wade.

4. John came into the church in full communion 25 Jan., 1673; was made freeman 11 Oct., 1676.

FAVOR OF WELLINGTON POOL, ESQ.

Rev. War, No. 30149 File	Dept. of the Int.
Jabez Tarr	Bureau of Pensions.
Co. Mass. Regt. Mil.	Washington, D. C.

SIR: Jabez Tarr was pensioned Oct. 31, 1832, under Act of March 4, 1831. The claim was allowed on parol testimony, there being no record evidence of service. In claimant's declaration, executed in Ipswich, Aug. 7, 1832, he alleged that he was a resident of Gloucester, Mass.; that he belonged to a company of minute men, before the Battle of Lexington; that after said battle, officers were immediately chosen, and men enlisted; that he with others kept guard at night at different parts of the Sea-Coast, in Gloucester, until the 30th of April, 1775, having previously enlisted as a private, in Capt. John Rowe's Co., Col. Eben Bridge's Regt., Mass. State troops; that on or about the 1st of May, he joined said Company for the term of eight months; marched to Mystic; remained encamped there until June 16th, when the company joined its regiment and marched to Breed's Hill; helped build the fort, and was in the battle on June 17, 1775. Part of his Company manned the line on the left wing, by Mystic River, at the rail fence; three men were killed and two wounded; retreated about 6 o'clock, P. M., to Mystic; in a few days marched to Cambridge; was in tents part of the time, but after cold weather, was quartered in the College; continued there until Jan. 7, 1776, when his time expired; had no written discharge.

He again enlisted as a corporal, Jan. 10, 1776, for one year, in Capt. Jos. Swazey's Co., Col. John Glover's Regt., Mass. State troops; was stationed at Beverly, until the Regiment was filled; remained there until after the British evacuated Boston and landed on Long Island; then marched to New London; went up the Sound on a transport to New York; remained there until the place was evacuated, and the enemy had landed at Frog's Neck; retreated over Kings Bridge; a skirmish there; moved to White Plains, where the enemy made a stand, and was in the battle fought there; after the battle crossed the North River (thinks twice); was stationed at a place called English neighborhood; retreated thence to the Jerseys, as far as Morristown, where he was taken sick, about 10th or 15th of Dec., 1776; was sick during the battle of Trenton. His term having expired, after his recovery, he returned to Gloucester. He received no written discharge.

He again enlisted as a Prize Mastee's Mate, on or about Jan. 1, 1782, on board the Gloucester Packet, a Letter-of-Marque ship of 14 guns, owned by David Pearce, Winthrop Sargent. Wm. Pearson, and others of Gloucester, commanded by John Osborne Sargent, and served about six months; that he was born, at Gloucester, Aug. 19, 1759.

The following items refer to Jabez Tarr's service in Capt. John Row's company, in Col. Ebenezer Bridges' (27th) regiment; and are in

SAMUEL PATCH.

The family record of Lt. Samuel Patch, page 125, is made more complete, by the following, if that Samuel is this one:—

"Mr. Samuel Patch, Jr., and Mrs. Sarah Potter, both of Ipswich, were published 18 Nov., 1775."

"The wife of Samuel Patch, aged 49, died 20 Sept., 1778."

It would seem, from the age of the son John at his death, that this woman was his mother and that her death was puerperal.

Lt. Samuel Patch was published to Abigail Dane 11 Nov., 1780; he married her 28 Nov., 1780.

THE OLD HOVEY HOUSE.

Daniel Hovey in 1668 had liberty "to fell timber, to build a house," and in 1667, "for a ——— [lean-to?] and repairing of his house." This latter record indicates that the house pictured on page 97 was built, probably several years, before 1667.

THE SURNAME CROSS.

"The Hundred Rolls" says, that "the surname of Cross was given to one who dwelt near a market Cross, or by cross roads." A person might feel proud of such an appellative as John-atte (meaning ancestor) Cross, a form in which the name frequently occurs.

ANSWERS.

26. Thomas Hammond living now would be one of our liberal men. Paul Jewett, who was contemporary with him, reports through his son, Dea., or Dr. Joshua Jewett, that Hammond had no particular reverence for Sunday, parson or church; that he was a hustler in business and paid little regard to time or place, albeit he might coin an honest dollar. He was born too early; the stiff orthodoxy of his day condemned him, and the "faithful" said the Devil held him. It became the whispered secret, that 'Tom Hammond had sold himself to the Devil.' Time passed, "Tom" kept business in a whirl, and made money. He owed several of his townsmen as would be natural with a man who drove his business. Gossip was rife, and "Tom" resolved to test it—in modern phrase, he suspended. Then calling in his creditors who were his accusers, he said: "Gentlemen, there are two piles of money; the larger pile is ample to pay you all, but I got it through Satanic influence, and you must take the responsibility of its spell upon you. The other pile will pay you only a small dividend, but it is free, I hoarded it before I made a league with the Devil. Take which you will, and sign a full release." They took the smaller pile. Few people now-a-days play a shrewder game. Thomas Hammond and his wife rest in the Rowley cemetery, on the left, near the entrance. Their head-stones are beautifully engraved in the fashion of that time, and read, as follows:—

HERE LIES Y^E BODY OF MR.
THOMAS HAMMOND DECS^T
FEBUARY Y^E [*]6 1724
IN THE 69TH YEAR OF HIS AGE.

HERE LYETH BURIED
Y^E BODY OF MIS SARAH HAMMOND WIFE OF
MR. THOMAS HAM
MOND WHO DIED
JANUARY Y^E 16 1712 13
AGED 57 YEARS.

* A figure is apparently cut out, and 16, it looks like, cut above.

17. To learn more about the pensioners in our list, write the "Commissioner of Pensions, Pension Bureau, Washington, D. C.," and sending it to the Member of Congress from your district, ask him to make the request for you. You will be likely to get relatively the same as appears on page 142 of this number.

29. Ann Cummings that married John Town, son of Elisha and Sarah, was published June 15, and perhaps married June 26, 1762. She was the daughter of Thomas and Lydia-Richardson Cummings, and born May 24, 1745. See Query 34. G. M.

28. By what vessel did the immigrants Wm. and Joanna Town come from England and at what date?

30. When was the first Merrimac bridge between Andover and Methuen now Lawrence built?

31. When was built the Chelsea bridge for the Salem Turnpike and by whom?
W. Y.

32. Who was John Goss that married Margaret Bailey, or Bayley, July 30, 1728, and died in April, 1759? A record by his eldest son, says he was married in Bradford, another record reads Salisbury. M. W. G.

33. George Martyn settled in Salisbury about 1640; had wife Hannah who died in 1646: his first child was born 1 Feb., 1644; his second wife was Susannah North, who was hanged as a witch in 1692. Who were George's ancestors, and when and how did he come over? J. M.

34. What was the birthday of Oliver, son of John and Ann Town, referred to in answer 29? Sarah Cummings, sister of Ann-Commings Town, married Samuel Colby—wanted the names and birth-dates of the Colby children. G. M.

35. Mary French married 11 Nov., 1684, Stephen Pearson. I suppose this Mary French to have descended, as follows:

Edward French was in Ipswich, 1636; removed to Salisbury; mentioned in will dated, 1673, son John and his children, John, Mary, Hannah and Sarah.

John, son of Stephen, married 23 Mch., 1651 or 1659, Mary Noyes of Salisbury, daughter of Joseph Noyes. Will some one confirm or correct this?
A. G.

36. What was the maiden name of Ursula, wife of Richard Kemball, the ancestor, mentioned in Query 25?

OLDTOWN MEETING-HOUSE, NEWBURY.

Essex-County Historical & Genealogical Register.

VOL. 1.

IPSWICH, MASS., OCTOBER, 1894.

No. 10.

OLD-TOWN MEETING-HOUSE, NEWBURY.

The town of Newbury voted, 5 July, 1698, that they would build a meeting-house, and chose Col. Daniel Pierce, Capt. Thomas Noyes and Serg. Stephen Jaques, a committee to consider the matter and report. They reported 5 October, and 21 Dec., the town voted that Serg. Stephen Jacques build a meeting-house 60 feet long, 50 feet wide, and 20 feet stud, for £530. The next February, the town voted to make the stud 24 feet instead of 20, and to pay Serg. Jaques £20 more.

In April, 1700, Serg. Jaques "hung the old meeting-house bell in the new turret;" in Sept., the town voted to have the house "composed with seats as the old one was, except ten feet on three sides for pews and galleries;" in Nov., permission was granted twenty persons to build pews on the lower floor for themselves and families. It appears by this, that the house was fully completed 1 January, 1701. As it looked when completed, is seen in the frontispiece.

The last service held in this building was 4 May, 1806, by Rev. Dr. John S. Popkin, the pastor (1804—1816). The house was razed the next Tuesday.

Coffin's "History of Newbury," from which these facts are gathered, says, the picture of this house there shown is "not an exact representation." Rev. Dr. Popkin, who occupied the house two years (1804—1806), says, "The roof was originally constructed with four gable ends, one on each side, each containing a large window, to light the upper gallery where the young people sat. The children sat on a seat in the alley, fixed to the outside of the pews. Before the pulpit and deacon's seat, was a large pew containing a table, where sat the chiefs of the fathers. The turret was in the centre and the bell was rung and tolled in the centre of the broad aisle. Originally, the space within was open to the roof, where were many ornaments of an antique sculpture and wainscot, and it was, in the day of it, a stately building, but long before it was torn down, a steeple was substituted for the turret, the dormer windows were removed, and the roof made plain," as Coffin's History shows it.

The pastors of the church have been Thomas Parker, James Noyes, John Woodbridge, John Richardson, Christopher Toppan, D. D., John Tucker, D. D., Abraham Moor, John S. Popkin, D. D., Leonard Withington, D. D., etc.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

In 1798, the legislature of Georgia followed all the rest of the states in the Union in prohibiting the importation of negroes into the state. Two years later, Congress passed a similar act prohibiting the carrying on of the slave trade between the United States and any foreign place or country. It enacted that "the commanders of the public armed vessels of the United States shall seize upon all vessels they may meet with, the property of the citizens of the United States, engaged in the slave trade, and bring them into any port of the United States, where they shall be condemned as forfeited to the sole benefit and use of the commander and crew making such seizure, with all the property on board, the slaves excepted, who are to be set at liberty; and, that the secretary of the treasury cause an abstract of all judgments which shall be rendered against persons concerned in this trade to be published in one or more newspapers; and the party against whom judgment shall be rendered shall ever after said judgment be incapable of holding, in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, any vessel, registered under the laws of the United States, and shall be incapable of enjoying any commercial privileges or advantages which are or may be conferred on citizens of the United States." Then began seizures of vessels and sailors, and rescue of slaves; and the Abolition Society of Pennsylvania gave assistance and protection to black people thus brought into Philadelphia. The passage of the laws caused the slaves in the South to rouse themselves from their lethargy. Insurrections frequently occurred, and the Commercial Advertiser was led to exclaim, "Nothing will cure a great part of the world of their mental disorders, but whips and rods." Finding that they gained nothing by rebelling, and that the lives of their leaders were sacrificed in the cause, quiet again apparently regained its sway. But the slaves now and then had sufficient courage to attempt to escape to the freer and more sympathetic North. The following are copies of two advertisements for runaway slaves, that appeared in the Salem Gazette at the dates named:—

200 Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the Estate of Daniel McCarty, deceased, in Virginia, some time in Jan 1802, a likely NEGRO MAN named CYRUS, of a bright complexion, good countenance and teeth, large eyebrows, and bushy hair, which he generally wore queued. He is about 22 years of age, 5 feet 8 or 10 inches high, stout and well made except that he is a little knock-kneed. He was brought up to the business of a mill-wright; and having served upwards of 7 years to that business, was considered a good workman. He eloped about the time that Gen. Lee left Virginia, who carried with him the wife of Cyrus, and it is likely therefore that he has continued in the neighbourhood of General Lee.—He carried with him a good plough horse, with a new saddle and bridle, all of which he has probably long since disposed of, together with the clothes he carried off. Cyrus has been seen in Philadelphia, New-York and Boston, and very lately in Salem, where probably he now is.

The above reward will be paid to any person who will secure him in any jail, and give information thereof to me in Westmoreland county, Virginia, or to James H. Hool, Esq., in Alexandria, so as to enable me to get him again. All masters of vessels are hereby forewarned from having any thing to do with the Negro, under the severest penalty of the law.

RICHARD STUART.

70 DOLLARS REWARD.

ESCAPED from on board the Schooner Enterprise, at Salem, about the 1st of August, a Black Man named DANIEL. He is 35 years old, about 5 feet 2 or 3 inches high, well made, of a yellowish complexion, a thick lisping speech, a serious down look, talks little, his face is broad and wrinkled, nose uncommonly flat, and he appears somewhat older than he is. Said Negro is owned in Virginia, and the Subscribers are hereby authorised to offer the above reward for him delivered in Norfolk to Mr. EUGENE HIGGINS or PATRICK HARMANSON, merchants there—or 25 Dollars will be paid for him delivered in Salem. It is to be hoped that the consequences of giving these people an asylum among us, together with the penalties of the law, will deter people from the exercise of such mistaken humanity.

PORTER & UPTON.

Salem, Sept. 2, 1808.

In March, 1805, the negroes of Salem formed an association "for the mutual benefit of each other, behaving ourselves all times as true and faithful citizens of the Commonwealth." Its head officer was called "The Captain General." We have not learned his name, but Sabe Derby was the first secretary. The association called itself "The Sons of the African Society." On Thursday, March 20, 1806, they celebrated the first anniversary of the association by meeting at the treasurer's house near Concert Hall, and marching to the sound of instrumental music to Washington Hall, where a sermon was delivered to them by Rev. Mr. Webb, pastor of the Methodist society in Lynn. After the services they marched back to the treasurer's residence. They were about thirty in number, well dressed and of good character, and wore the insignia of their brotherhood. Probably this society, although but short-lived, had a considerable effect upon the minds of those with whom they came in contact as to the fitness of the colored man for equality with the white under all conditions.

An incident connected with the history of Marblehead may not be uninteresting. The brig Norfolk, of Charleston, Mastin, master, with a cargo of slaves, put into Marblehead harbor, in distress, in January, 1808.

At this period, in Essex County, some of the free blacks exercised the right of suffrage at the ballot box, though in doing so they often incurred the ridicule of the white voters.

Two years later, Great Britain had abolished slavery in its dominions, and the British navy was ordered to capture every American and other vessel engaged in the traffic, encouragement being held out to informers. The African Society, having at that time immense funds, it is said, commenced an extensive correspondence with all parts of the world, having in view the effectual termination of slave traffic.

On the evening of Aug. 28, 1812, Rev. Mr. Gloucester, pastor of the African Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, preached to the Africans, in the Tabernacle church in Salem, the galleries being assigned to them for their use. The purpose of the service was to raise money for the freeing of Mr. Gloucester's family who were still in slavery in Tennessee.

The next year, the northern states were somewhat stired up by the publication of a small pamphlet on slave representation, the United States constitution having given the right of representation in Congress to the negroes in the proportion of three to five, that is, in reckoning the population upon which the number of representatives was based, five negroes were counted as three whites, and the whites of course doing the representing. The plea of the northerners was that the slaves should not be counted, as the extra representatives gained by adding the slaves was only one less than all of New England's representation.

About 1810, there began a series of riots and insurrections among the negroes of the South, and the masters were in constant fear for the safety of their lives and property. It was argued that the plans were generally made and executed by the free blacks, and the necessity of getting rid of the freemen became fixed in the minds of the slave-holders. This idea culminated, in 1816, in the organization of the American Colonization Society.

The deed mentioned on page 51 was given by Samuel Cole and his wife Abigail for £150, acknowledged before James Ingalls, J. P., and witnessed by James Ingalls and Ebenezer Barker, dated 28 April, 1791, and conveyed two pieces of land with the buildings thereon on the road leading from Masten's ferry to Pelham, containing in all about 74 acres, and bounded thus — one piece, on the N. by the road, 100 p.; on the E. by Jacob Hall, 50 p. to "Mistake Pond at the mouth of a brook;" on the S. by Lt. John Huse and the brook; on the W. by Stephen Bodwell. The other piece, on the S. by the road, on the S. W., by Stephen Bodwell, 19½ p.; on the W. by sd. Bodwell, 95 p.; on the N. by sd. Bodwell, 40 p.; on the E. by David Silver; on the S. by Daniel Hardy, 39¾ p.; on the E by John Sargent, 22½ p.

The case mentioned on page 51 was begun by James Mallone, 20 Sept., in the Common Pleas Court, vs. Jona. Merrill, treas., and Benj. Osgood, coll., for trespass — imprisonment "for a long time." Theoph. Parsons, Esq., was att. for the plff., and Theoph. Bradbury, Esq., was att. for the dft. Mallone lost, and appealed to the Supreme Judicial Court, but it does not appear that he prosecuted the appeal.

HEARD.

The family of Heard is of great antiquity in county Essex, England.
Their arms are "Vert, a bend ermine between three escallops argent;

Crest, a bear's head sable muzzled gules between two wings erect."

Very early, branches of the family spread into Suffolk and Norfolk counties. In Norfolk, 1626, died Edmund Heard, of Claxton, leaving children, Luke, Henry, Edmund, Grace and Katherine. Luke, the oldest son, not 21 years of age in 1626, came to New England in 1639, resided a short time in Newbury and removed to Salisbury in 1640; thence he went to Ipswich.

A John Heard came over with Luke in 1639, who may have been Luke's uncle or grandfather. — H. G. Somerby.

SUMMER RESIDENCE OF MRS. JOHN HEARD.

¹Luke Heard took the freeman's oath, at Boston, 6 Sept., 1639, and died in Ipswich in 1647. In the record of his will, dated 28th* 7th mo., 1647, he is said to have lately deceased. He leaves the disposition of his property to his wife Sarah, and directs that his two sons, ²John and ³Edmund, shall be "brought up to reading and writing," and at the age of twenty-one years, they shall receive, — John, the elder, ten pounds, and Edmund, the younger, five pounds. He also directs, that his books shall be equally divided between his two sons. Sarah, the widow, was Sarah Wyatt, of Assington, county Essex, and probably sister of John Wyatt, one of the witnesses to her husband's will.

²John settled in Andover, where he died in 1696. His brother ³Edmund was appointed administrator on his estate, 12 Oct., 1696, being his "only brother and heir" to a property of £20. 3. 9.

* Mr. Hammatt says elsewhere, that Luke's will was proved 26 Sept., 1647, by John Wyat and Symon Thomson.

³Edmund was one of the "ten of the members of the young generation who took the covenant 18 Jan., 1673-4," was appointed a surveyor of highways in 1696, and a sealer of leather in 1699; was for several years one of the selectmen; had a seat assigned him in the meeting-house in 1700; subscribed 8s. towards the bell in 1699; had half a share in Plum Island, etc., in 1644, and in 1697 had horses on the common. On the record of town expenses for 1687, is this "It. To Constable Edmund Heard for the Poor and watch 19 s.;" under single shares in Plum Island, etc., 1664, is "Ed: Heard hath Archers;" his name is on the list of tithingmen, appointed by the selectmen, 15 Oct., 1679. The estate was divided 18 July, of the year, 1713; the probate inventory amounting to £141 real and £70. 7. 10. personal was rendered 28 Dec. Elizabeth, his widow, daughter of Daniel Warner survived him with three sons: ⁴Edmund, born 22 Feb., 1681, the eldest; ⁵Nathaniel and ⁶Daniel, and three daughters, Elizabeth, born 7 May, 1674; Sarah, born 6 May, 1676, and Abigail. His widow died in 1724 in the 77th year of her age. They were married 26 Sept., 1672.

⁴Edmund was published 2 Nov., 1706, with Annah Todd (1st wife).

Deborah's children were Abigail, bapt. 10 Dec., 1714; Deborah, bapt., 10 Feb., 1716; Edmund, born 10 May, 1719, who probably died in infancy, for she had another ⁷Edmund bapt. 21 Aug., 1720; Thomas, bapt. 11 Nov., 1721, who died 12 May, 1726.

He was published 5 Sept., 1724, with Rebecca Knowlton, a widow, who died 21 Sept., 1728; 11 Jan., following with Martha Kimball who died 19 Oct., 1730; 11 Dec., 1730, with Elizabeth

Caldwell, widow of John who was killed by the Indians. Edmund and Nathaniel Heard and ten others were granted "to raise ye fourth seat in ye front southwest gallery of the meeting-house." On the Town-records, 9 March, 1726-7, is entered: "Robert Potter prays for a grant of a small peice of land on the front of Edmond Heard's land on the northeasterly side of Heard's brook."

In the meeting-house built in 1749, Edmund Heard, Jr., purchased pew, No. 26, in the westerly corner of the gallery.

⁸John married Abigail Warner 9 Dec., 1736. They baptised Nathaniel 23 Dec., 1739; Elizabeth, 11 April, 1742; Sarah, 15 Jan., 1743; ¹³John, 15 June, 1746; Hannah, 18 Sept., 1748; Aaron, 7 Feb., 1750; Lucy, 22 July, 1753.

⁹William was published to Mary Newmarch, 19 Feb., 1741. They baptised children: William, 20 Nov., 1743; Mary, 24 March, 1744; William, 30 Nov., 1746; James, 21 May, 1749; Sarah Porth, 22 Sept., 1754; Widow Mary died 25 Oct., 1754.

¹²Nathaniel married Esther Gould, published 25 March, 1758, and baptised these children: Esther, 31 Dec., 1758; Tamasin, 17 Aug., 1760; Sarah, 15 Nov., 1761.

¹³John, 3d, as he is called in the records, was published with Martha Perkins, 21 Oct., 1769. They baptised Martha, 15 Oct., 1770.

LONGEVIOUS FAMILIES.

HOWE.

Abel and Margaret-Bixby Howe had seven children and they are living in Ipswich and Boxford, within a radius of two and a half miles, and five of the seven live about a mile from their natal home. Their ages aggregate 541 years, and average more than 77, as follows:— William Appleton Howe, 84, Adeline Howe, 82, Mrs. Margaret-Howe Hale, 80, Edward Howe, 77, Leverett Saltonstall Howe, 75, Abel Spofford Howe, 73, Willard Peel Howe, 70.

These aged people are the grandchildren of Capt. Abraham and Eleanor-Spofford Howe. Capt. Howe was a carpenter, and, 18 April, 1775, was building a barn for Caleb Jackson, Linebrook Parish, Rowley, but the next day he and his company were on the double-quick for Lexington and Bunker Hill. In 1775, he enlisted for the war. He passed through all the grades of non commissioned officers and became an ensign in 1776. His commission is signed by Benjamin Franklin, one of the Board to grant such documents.

There is a pretty legend connected with the life of Capt. Howe. When the alarm rang the call to arms, he was paying attention to a young lady in Linebrook Parish and was engaged to her; but the war continued wearily along for nearly eight years; nothing was heard from him, neither did he hear from home. All in the vicinity thought him dead; his affianced married another; and at the close of the war he returned to find her a wife and mother. He visited his sister, the late Lucy Boynton, Spofford's Hill; Georgetown; the house is now occupied by the family of the late Samuel Noyes;

there he poured out his grief; he had lost all save honor. His sister told him not to lament, that there were other girls as handsome and good as she, and if he would attend church there the next Sunday, she would introduce him to one. He did so and beheld Eleanor Spofford, a near neighbor of Mrs. Boynton's. They became acquainted and in due time they married.

CHAPLIN.

Capt. Eliphalet and Martha-Spofford Chaplin, of Georgetown, had ten children. Seven of them are now living, and their ages aggregate 572 years, and average more than 81, as follows: Martha-Chaplin, widow of Wm. M. Shute, born in 1806; Mary-Chaplin, widow of John Low, in 1808; George W. Chaplin, the head of the shoe-firm bearing his name, in 1809; Roxbee-Chaplin, widow of Caleb G. Tyler, in 1813; Charles Chaplin, an active farmer on Nelson street, in 1815; Henry Prescott Chaplin, late President of the Georgetown National Bank, in 1816; C. Matilda-Chaplin, widow of Hiram N. Noyes, and mother of H. Howard Noyes, of the shoe-firm of G. W. Chaplin & Co., in 1819.

The home of Mary is Methuen, the others live within half a mile of each other in Georgetown.

QUERIES.

32. Who was John Goss that married Margaret Bailey, or Bayley, July 30, 1728, and died in April, 1759? A record by his eldest son, says he was married in Bradford, another record reads Salisbury. M. W. G.

33. George Martyn settled in Salisbury about 1640; had wife Hannah who died in 1646; his first child was born 1 Feb., 1644; his second wife was Susannah North, who was hanged as a witch in 1692. Who were George's ancestors, and when and how did he come over? J. M.

34. What was the birthdate of Oliver, son of John and Ann Town, referred to in answer 29? Sarah Cummings, sister of Ann-Commings Town, married Samuel Colby — wanted the names and birth-dates of the Colby children. G. M.

35. Mary French married 11 Nov., 1684, Stephen Pearson. I suppose this Mary French to have descended, as follows:

Edward French was in Ipswich, 1636; removed to Salisbury; mentioned in will dated, 1673, son John and his children, John, Mary, Hannah and Sarah.

John, son of Stephen, married 23 Mch., 1651 or 1659, Mary Noyes of Salisbury, daughter of Joseph Noyes. Will some one confirm or correct this? A. G.

37. Who were the parents of Joseph Young, the first organist, after the Revolution, at St. Peter's Church, Salem? J. H. B.

38. Who were the parents of Sarah Burnham of Ipswich? She was born about 1688, and married 5 June, 1708, Joshua Bill, of Chelsea. E. T. T.

39. What became of the family of Benjamin Kimball of Manchester? He was town-clerk for many years, and captain in the Continental army. S. P. S.

40. Rev. Edward Tomson, Tompson, or Thomson, was born in Braintree, Apr. 20, 1665; died in Marshfield, Mch. 16, 1705; graduated at Harvard College, 1684; taught school at Newbury before and after graduation; preached at Simsbury, Conn., 1687 to 1691; then at Newbury (Byfield Parish?), 1691 to 1693; ordained fourth settled minister at Marshfield, 1696, and preached there until he died, in 1705; married Sarah —; had children: Samuel, born in Newbury 1 Sept., 1691; H. C., 1710; minister at Gloucester, 1716 — Edward, born 14 May, 1695; physician at Haverhill — William, born in Marshfield, 1697; H. C., 1718; minister in Scarborough, Me. — and others, among whom was Abigail, who married Stephen Longfellow, at Byfield Parish, March 25, 1713. In the many very full sketches of his life, none mentions his wife Sarah's surname. Wanted Sarah's maiden name, date and place of marriage, and date and place of birth of daughter Abigail. A. G.

HOUSES OF THE EARLY SETTLERS.

SIZE, VALUE, DURATION.

Extracts from a paper by PRESIDENT WATERS, of the Ipswich Historical Society.

The builders of this town found it a wilderness, hardly broken by the few squatter settlers who had dwelt here prior to their coming. They built as any pioneer builds to-day, I imagine, as the Plymouth Pilgrims did, simple homes of logs, or hand-hewed timber, with thatch-roof and wooden chimney, well covered with clay to save it from burning. They had no time for elaborate house-building, for land had to be cleared, crops sown and tended, and provision made for their support through the coming winter. They had no material for nice carpentry. Permission to build the first saw-mill, of which any record remains, was not granted until 1649. Every joist and board was sawed by hand in saw pits, or smoothed with the broad-axe. Every nail, hinge and lock was hammered out by the blacksmith.

Better houses began to be built as soon as they had leisure, we may believe; but for many years the houses were cheap and rude.

Matthew Whipple lived on the corner of the present County and Summer streets, near Miss Sarah Caldwell's residence. His house and four acres of land were valued at £36. John Annible, or Annable, bought the dwelling, barn and two acres of land on the eastern corner of North Main and Summer streets, then called Annable's lane, for £39 in 1647. In 1648, Robert Whitman sold the house and an acre of land which he had bought of Matthew Whipple's executors for £5, and another house and lot on Summer street for 22 pounds sterling for both properties.

Joseph Morse was a man of wealth and social standing. His inventory in 1646 mentions a house, land, etc., valued at 9 pounds, and another old house, eight acres of land and barn valued at £8 10s. 0, and one cow and a heifer £6 10s. 0.

Thomas Firman was a leading citizen. His house was valued in the inventory at £15, and the house of John Proctor with three acres of land, at £18 10s. Few deeds of sale or inventories mention houses of any considerable value in these earlier years.

In 1665, such inroads had been made upon the oak forests and other valuable trees, that the town ordered the selectmen to issue a permit before a tree could be cut. These permits show that small, cheap houses were still very common.

Edmund Bridges was allowed timber "to make up his cellar" in 1667. In 1670, Joseph Goodhue received permit for a house 18 feet square. In 1671, Thomas Burnham's new house was 20 feet square, that of Obadiah Bridges 18 feet square and Deacon Goodhue built one 16 feet square. In 1657, Alexander Knight, a helpless pauper, was provided with a house at the town's expense and the vote provided that it should be 16 feet long, 12 feet wide, 7 or 8 feet stud with thatched roof, for which £6 was appropriated.

Our pious ancestors would have built as good a building for their worship as for their homes, but in 1646, the old meeting-house was sold for 50s. and a new one built.

These were the dwellings of the common sort, often with windows filled with oiled paper, cellars with wooden sides and scant accommodation. People of quality erected better houses, no doubt. Now and then, we catch a glimpse of them. Sometime in the year 1638, as it would seem, Dep. Gov. Symonds wrote a letter to Mr. Winthrop, asking him to oversee the erection of a house on the Argilla farm, which he had lately purchased from Winthrop. It was a wonderfully good house that Symonds planned for himself, thirty or thirty-five feet long and sixteen or eighteen wide, with a chimney of wood at each end as broad as the house itself. It was to have two stories and a garret, a cellar under the whole house, and was to be boarded "with very good oake hart inch board," clapboarded without and clayed up within. Still, it was very primitive in its arrangement. He was not particular that there should be any partition on the lower floor. The upper floor was to be used for storage of corn, etc., and was to be divided into two rooms. The garret was to be without partition.

Rev. Mr. Rogers had a two story residence beside the South Green. He died in 1655 and had been a resident here since 1636. The inventory discloses a very comfortable house—finely furnished.

Mr. John Whittingham had a house on High street containing a kitchen and parlor, and chambers over both these rooms, sumptuously furnished, as the inventory records in 1648, valued with the barn, cow-house and 44 acres of land at £100.

These excellent houses have all disappeared. Indeed, they fell into decay or were destroyed so long ago, that not even the locations of the two last are remembered, and only an old cellar-hole, on the farm of the late Thomas Brown suggests the possible site of that ancient farm-house, with its solid "oake-hart" boarding. Gen. Denison built a fine house near where Mr. John Perkins lives, to take the place of the one burned in 1665. Its site is now unknown. The houses of John Winthrop, Robert Payne, Rev. Nathaniel Ward, Symonds' town-house on the Meeting-house Hill, the homes of the first Appletons and every other house, known certainly to have belonged to this period, have also disappeared and their exact locations have been forgotten.

The presumption, therefore, must always be against the veracity of the date of any house now standing, which claims for it such great antiquity. This presumption is so strong that the reputed date is to be received with hesitancy at the best. A possibility of its truth remains, of course, but strong and positive reasons for crediting it must always be found.

ENGLISH.

William English had land near Reedy Marsh, in 1638.

INGALLS.

John Ingalls was son of Edmund, who came from Lincolnshire, England, and settled at Lynn, in 1629. He was a Denison subscriber in 1648.

Samuel Ingalls was a commoner and had a share in Plum Island, etc., 1664; was made freeman 12 Oct., 1681, and selectman, 1683. He purchased of Wm. White, 16 Jan., 1659, "ye part of his farm which he sold unto John West and purchased it of him again." He and his wife Ruth (married 9 Dec., 1657), "came into full communion" 1 March, 1673; he was a voter in town affairs in 1679, a representative in 1690. Their children: Nathaniel was born 9 Feb., 1675; Ruth, 19 Mch., 1657; Samuel, 24 Jan., 1659; Edmund, 23 July, 1662; John, 26 Aug., 1664; Joseph, 30 Dec., 1666; Mary, 13 March, 1668; Anna, 8 March, 1671; Elizabeth, 27 Sept., 1673.

Lt. Ingalls, Samuel and Joseph, had horses on the common in 1697. Samuel and Joseph as well as John were probably sons of Samuel.

Samuel Ingalls had lately died, 30 Aug., 1714, leaving a wife, and children: Mary Butler, Anna Giddings, Joseph, Nathaniel, and a daughter, wife of Samuel Chapman.

IRELAND.

Phillip Ireland and Grace had a son Solomon born 24 Jan., 1691. He was a wool-comber in 1691. Grace died 13 May, 1692.

JACOB.

¹Richard Jacob took the freeman's oath, in Boston, May, 1635; was commoner, 1641; entitled to two shares in Plum Island, etc., 1664, (which fact indicates him as one of the twenty-seven richest men of the town), and had a house-lot in Mill street, 1635. He married Martha Appleton, daughter of Samuel, who died 8 Sept., 1659. His will was proved 5 Oct., 1672; his eldest son, "Thomas, was directed to pay a legacy to "his mother-in-law, my wife Joanna;" he appointed his son ²Richard his sole executor. He also left children: John, ⁵Nathaniel, ³Joseph, (the two last minors), Martha, Judith, and a grandchild, Lydia Jacob, daughter of his son Samuel deceased.

He possessed a farm, which was originally granted to Mr. Winthrop, on the south side of the river, in 1660, near the farms of Daniel Ringe and Matthew Whipple. His title was "sergeant."

²Richard married Mary Whipple 15 Jan., 1673, who died 27 Jan., 1674; had two shares in Plum Island, etc., in 1664; lost a daughter Mary, 20 June, 1675, who was born 20 Jan., 1674. His will was dated 8 June and proved 26 Sept., 1676; bequeaths property to his brothers Nathaniel, Thomas, Joseph and John and his sisters Martha and Judith; he names his two uncles John and Samuel Appleton, sons of Samuel, overseers.

⁵Nathaniel was a voter in 1679 and commoner in 1678. His will is dated 4 Nov., 1688 and bequeathed brother ⁴Thomas Jacob £20; brother Jno. Jacob £30; sister Judith Hasey £20; ye standing minister or ministers 20s. per year, during ye continuance of such a ministry as is now settled in Ipswich, as to doctrine and form; "my Lo: Coffn.," Lt. Jno. Appleton £5; brother Joseph the remainder.

JORDAN.

Francis Jordan was commoner in 1641, a Denison subscriber in 1648; had a share in Plum Island, etc., in 1664; was surveyor of highways, 1675. He died 24 April, 1678; his will is dated 23 April, 1678, and conveys all his estate to his wife Jane, "to dispose of to his children and grandchildren, and may give it to them who behave themselves best towards her," with liberty to sell what part she might need for her comfortable maintenance. Widow Jane was commoner in 1678; her will is dated 20 Dec., 1689; was proved 28 Oct., 1693; names Richard Belchard, who was probably her son-in-law, executor; mentions granddaughter "Mary Simson, so called before marriage," and a daughter Jane Ford; divides the estate into six equal parts, giving to her granddaughters, Mary Belcher and Sarah Georg, and daughters, Hannah Fowler, Mary Kimball and Lydia White one part each and one part to the children of Deborah, late wife of Benj. Goodridge, viz: Benj., Joseph, Daniel and Josiah Goodridge. The inventory amounted to £159 18 6. Lt. Simon Stace and John Harris, Sen., were overseers.

Stephen Jordan was of Ipswich in 1637, and a Denison subscriber in 1648. He had land adjoining Samuel Hall's land in 1637. Sometime he removed to Newbury, where he died 8 Feb., 1670.

JOHNSON.

John Johnson, school-master, was of Ipswich in 1635; possessed a house-lot of six acres on Town Hill, which he sold to Mark Quilter, and which

JACKSON.

John Jackson had a house-lot in 1635, was a commoner in 1641, a Denison subscriber in 1648. The inventory of his estate is dated 18 Sept., 1648. His widow Catherine married Wm. White, and sold his house and land before 28 June, 1649, to John West.

GOV. AND MME. BRADSTREET.

"Imperial Cæsar dead and turned to clay, Might stop a hole to keep the wind away."

Gov. Bradstreet was born in Holling, Horbling, Lincolnshire, England, March, 1603. He matriculated
 9 July, 1618, as a sizer, Emmanuel College, when he was fourteen years old. In two years he took the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and in 1624, the Master's degree. When he was about twenty-five years old, he married Anne Dudley. He came to New England in 1630. He was assistant, forty-eight years, colonial secretary thirteen years, deputy-governor five years, and governor ten years.
 His home was in this county. He resided in Ipswich for about twenty years; in March, 1658, he was a resident of Andover. He died in Salem, 27 March, 1697, at the great age of ninety-four years.

Anne-Dudley Bradstreet, the governor's accomplished wife, was daughter of Gov. Thomas Dudley.
 She married at the age of sixteen years. She was the earliest poetess of New England, and was noble and gifted. Rev. Cotton Matther wrote:
 "Her poems, divers times printed, have afforded a grateful entertainment unto the ingenious, and a monument for her memory, beyond the stateliest marble," Rev. John Norton calls her "the mirror of her age and the glory of her sex," The second edition of her poems is said "to be the work of a woman honored and esteemed where she lives for her gracious demeanor, her eminent parts, her pious conversation, her courteous disposition, her exact diligence in her place, and discreet managing of her family occasions; and, more than so, these poems are the fruit of but some few hours curtailed from her sleep and other refreshments." She was as much loved for her gentleness, discretion and domestic diligence, as she was admired for her genius, wit, and love of learning. Her death occurred 16 Sept., 1672.

Our only excuse for referring to these eminent persons now is the present discussion about their final resting place. From a learned paper, by Ex-Mayor Rantoul, of Salem, it appears, that the Bradstreet tomb, after years, was sold to a Hawthorne, and "that an ancestor of Nathaniel Hawthorne 'having taken possession, with no further scruples, cleaned out the tomb, throwing the remains of the old governor and his family into a hole not far away,'"

This may be a fact, but then, there is no glory in dust; the principles for which he counseled and labored which he secured and bequeathed are our legacy and glory and trust.

NOTED AND QUOTED.

John A. Gould, of Chelsea, father of Miss Elizabeth Porter Gould, the poetess, married Miss Elizabeth Cheever Leach, of Manchester-by-the-Sea, a lineal descendant of the Ipswich-Boston Latin schoolmaster, Ezekiel Cheever; his mother was daughter of Elijah and Mary Averill, of Topsfield, whose grandmother (Elijah's) was Rev. Joseph Capen's daughter, that married a grandson of Madam Anne Bradstreet, "the tenth muse."

Mr. Gould's aunt Elizabeth Averill, of Topsfield, married Dr. Porter, of Wenham, a grandson of Wm.
Fairfield (page 77) and father of Mrs.
Tilton who resides upon the old homestead, "the Lady of the Manse."

Dr. Porter and Mr. Gould were partners in business in Boston, from 1850 to 1866, when the doctor died.

Mr. Gould's daughters pay annual visits to "the manse:" there the poetess wrote many of her beautiful metric gems.

Mr. Gould was a Topsfield boy, and a class-mate in the academy with Joseph E. Bomer, of Beverly, later
Dr. Bomer, of Ipswich.

Salem Mercury, June 2, 1789:—"We hear from Andover, that on Wednesday laft, at a horfe-racing there, a lad 16 years of age, fon of Mr. Porter or Boxford, was thrown from his horfe with such violence, that his life is despaired of."

"DIED—On his passage from the Coast of Africa, to the West-Indies, Capt. William Fairfield, of the schooner Felicity, of this port."

RE-ENLISTED,

Caleb Foster, Jr., and Allen Perley, Aug. 17, 1779, receipted for £21 of Capt. Ephraim Kendall, one of the town's committee, etc., for enlisting to go to Boston. Oct. 17, 1779, they re-enlisted, "as gardes to boston."

REVOLUTIONARY PENSIONS.

Horace Edwin Hayden writes:—In Re Revolutionary Pensions, the record on page 142 does not give all there is relative to Jabez Tarr's pension, in the Pension Office, at Washington. Each application had to be accompanied by affidavits from comrades of the applicant, sometimes from the clergyman, or his neighbors, all of which give many data worth having. There are three volumes of Pension Rolls, issued in 1835 by the Government. There is also the roll of those living in 1840. The first roll gives name, amount of pension, amount paid by 1834, the rank and branch of service, the date of giving the pension, and date when it commenced, the age in 1834, and sometimes date of death of the pensioner. The 1840 roll gives the name of the town in which he lived and the person with whom. There are however in the pension office records of pensioners not in these volumes. There is also a volume of Rejected Applications. In 1820 a fit of economy came over the Congress, and all pensioners were obliged to send in new affidavits, stating how much they were worth, and those who had any visible means of support were "suspended." In 1831 many of these were restored. The affidavits filed will give these data. If possible, get your Congressman to secure FULL copies of ALL papers on file with the application.

 "PEQUIT SOLDIERS."

The General Court, 17 May, 1637, voted to send 160 soldiers for the Pequot War. The number to be raised by the towns respectively: Boston, 26, Salem, 18, Ipswich, 17, Marblehead, 4, Newbury, 8.

The Ipswich Town-records, 1639:—"The committee for the Pequit soldiers did grant as followeth: To William Whitred 8 acres in exchange for 10 to be laid out by John Andrew, afterwards mentioned.

Andrew Story 2 acres.

John Burnham 8 acres.

Francis Wainwright 8 acres if he hath not already any granted.

Robert Filbrick the same.

John Andrews the same.

Robert Cross 6 acres of marsh.

Palmer Lingley 8 acres of land.

William Swynden 2 acres if he hath had no house-lot.

Robert Castell 8 acres if it be duly demanded within one year.

Dec. 4, 1643. "It is agreed that each Soldier for their service to the Indians shall be allowed 12 d. a day (allowing for the Lord's day in respect to the extremity of the weather) and the officers double. The names of the Soldiers Delivered to those whose names have a stroke cross have had bill to Constable."

John Perkins had 3s. and 2 days more 2s.

Sergeant Howlet 3s. Item due him for 2 loads of wood for watch-house 5s.

The following had 3s. each: Thomas Perkins, Francis Wainwright, Thomas Harris, John Layton, Ralph Dix, Daniel Wood, Robert Roberts, John Burnham, Thomas Burnham, William Miller, Jeremy Newland, Richard Hutley, Nathaniel Boswell, Jo: Wilds, Humphrey Gilbert, Robert Filbrick, Theoph. Shatswell, Henry Green.

Edward Lumas, being an Ipswich "Souldier agst. the Pequit Indians," and not having any land granted him as others had, had granted, 11 Feb., 1667, six acres, "where the town shall think best."

Wm. Fuller was gun-smith of the expedition. Thomas Sherman received a neck wound; John Wedgewood was wounded in the abdomen; Francis Wainwright pursued some Pequods, expended his ammunition upon them, then broke his gun over their heads and took two scalps.

This war is said to have grown out of the murder of Capt. John Oldham, a highly respected citizen of Watertown, and a distinguished trader among the Indians, previous to 1632.

 OBITUARIES.

MRS. HANNAH FRIEND, widow of the late Franklin Friend, died at the Old Ladies' Home, Salem, 6 Aug., 1894, at the age of over 92 years. She entered the institution soon after the death of her husband, some over 15 years ago.

LUTHER COLBY, a native of Amesbury, born 12 Oct., 1814, for a long series of years editor of the "Banner of Light," died 7 Oct., 1894.

WIDOW BRIDGET MULLEN, a native of county Mayo, Ire., whose husband died in 1873, died in Lowell, 22 July, 1894, and was buried in Union Cemetery, Amesbury, her old home. She had lived 107 years, and 11 months.

MRS. BENJAMIN WINTER was the eldest child of Dea. Stephen M. and Apphia-Lambert Nelson, of Rowley, where she was born, 27 Oct., 1798. Georgetown early became her home, where she died, Saturday, 15 Sept., 1894, aged 95 years, 10 months, and 19 days. Her husband died 30 April, 1865. They had no children. During her widowhood, she lived with her husband's niece, Mrs. David N. Bridges. A brother, Humphrey, and sisters, Mrs. Richard Tenney and Mrs. Lewis H. Bateman, all of Georgetown, survive. She was next door neighbor to Mrs. Sarah-Balch Braman (widow of Rev. Isaac Braman, the eloquent and learned deacon) who died a year or two ago, at the age of 102 years. She had superior intellectual endowments; was refined, courteous, devout.

CAPT. R. C. ANDREWS, of Sumter, S. C., one of the most noted pedestrians in the country, died, 10 Oct., 1894, at the age of 102. Long before railroads were built he drove a coach to Boston, and five years ago, at the age of 97, he walked to Boston.

JONATHAN NICHOLS, who lived 70 years just over the county line in Wakefield, died 16 Oct., 1894, aged 94 years.

MRS. LAVINIA S. WESTON was the eldest child of Dea. Moses D. and Irene-Mighill Spofford, and was born at the old homestead on Spofford's Hill, Georgetown, 12 Dec., 1799. She died in that town, 13 Sept., 1894, aged 94 years, 9 months and 1 day.

Her husband, Capt. Orin Weston, died in 1871. They had three children, of whom George S., with whom she died, and Mrs. Lucy R., wife of Rev. Wm. M. Gay, are living. She was a good scholar and educated at Bradford Academy. She was a teacher of repute, a great reader, and a pleasing writer of prose or poetry. Her sister, Marietta, died 2- Feb., 1893, aged 90; her brothers, Leverett W., 29 May, 1881, aged 71, and Col. Harrison B., 22 Oct., 1865, aged 59 years.

ANSWERS.

S. P. Sharples in the following renders valuable service. All such aid is thankfully received. He writes:—

On page 105, William Beal's first wife was Martha Bradstreet, daughter of Humphrey and Bridget Bradstreet. See the wills of her father and mother. The latter contains a curious error, calling Mary, Mary Beal, and Martha, Martha Kimball.

Page 133, Luke Hovey married Dorcas Kimball, daughter of Thomas Kimball and Elizabeth-Chadwick, born Aug. 22, 1711. She is called Dorcas Hovey in her father's will.

Other Kimball-Hovey marriages are as follows: Benjamin Kimball, b. Jan. 30, 1705-6, Wenham; d. Sept. 29, 1766; m. Dec. 27, 1727, Elizabeth Hovey, of Boxford, b. 1704; d. Feb. 13, 1737-8. She had three children who lived: Hannah, b. Jan. 24, 1730; m. May 21, 1752, Archelus Morril, of Salisbury; Eunice, b. Oct. 30, 1731, d. June 17, 1732; Benjamin, b. Mar., 10, 1734; m. Joanna ———, and settled in Manchester, where he was the town-clerk for many years. At the time of the Revolution he was a captain in the Army. All record of him in Manchester ceases at that time, and neither he nor his children appear on the town records.

The widow of Isaac Kimball, of Salem, N. H., Bettie-Hall Kimball, married John Hovey. Isaac died in 1774.

Luke Hovey of Boxford, m. Mar. 2, 1775, Hannah, daughter of Nathan Kimball and Susanna-George, b. Nov. 10, 1751. She is mentioned in her father's will as Hannah, wife of Luke Hovey, late of Boxford.

Richard Kimball's wife, inquired for in Query 36, was Ursula Scott. She was the daughter of Henry and Martha Scott of Rattlesden, Suffolk Co., England. His will is on file and mentions the four older children of Richard, as his grandchildren. I can furnish the Scott will if it is desired. Martha came with her children to America in the ship Elizabeth. Mr. Stickney, in his work on the Fowler family, is entirely mistaken in regard to her identity. Richard was a wheelwright, and it is hardly likely, that his wife belonged to the gentry. The marriages of two of Richard's children are given wrongly in all the published accounts of the family. John, so far as I can discover, had only one wife, Mary Bradstreet. Mary Jordan married his nephew, as I discovered in looking over the original papers in the file-wrapper containing Jane Jordan's will. Mary Kimball did not marry Deacon Thomas Knowlton; it was her brother John's daughter Mary that married the Deacon. Mary had grown children at that time. She married Robert Dutch of Ipswich. This is shown by the following extracts from the court Records, at Salem: Richard Kimball of Ipswich, was presented for trespass in taking a heifer, by his grandson Robert Dutch, of the yard of Obadiah Wood, and detaining the same, Mar., 1662. Thomas, (afterwards killed by the Indians in Bradford, whose wife was Mary Smith), of Ipswich, deposed, that the heifer in question was wintered at Father Kimball's. Caleb Kimball and Robert Dutch say, that the heifer went, the summer before, at the farm of Henry Bennet.

Robert Dutch calls Caleb Kimball Uncle. It is well known that the name of Robert Dutch, Sr.'s, wife was Mary. Savage says her name was Mary Roper; but Mary Roper was only about five or six years old, when John Dutch, Robert's oldest son, was born. Mary Dutch says she was 36 in 1665; but Walter Roper was born about 1621, therefore he was 7 years old when Mary Dutch was born. Very clearly, these statements are absurd. Mary, daughter of Walter Roper, was born 1641, bapt. Aug. 22, 1641. John Dutch, son of Robert and Mary, was born May 1, 1646.

On page 67, George Pearl married Abigail Tyler. This is correct as far as it goes; her name was Abigail Tyler Kimball. She was born July 13, 1801, and married, Nov. 10, 1825, George Pearl, of Boxford. She was the daughter of John Kimball and Ruth-Eastman. This fact is shown in the names of her children. She named one John Kimball, for her father; one Ruth, for her mother; one Rebecca Kimball, for her grandmother. Her son George named his son Moses Kimball for his grandfather.

On page 72, Benjamin Kimball 66 should be 61. Benjamin's descendants are numerous in Ipswich.

VOL. 1.

IPSWICH, MASS., DECEMBER, 1894.

No. 12.

THE FELLOWS FAMILY.

The New England Hist. and Gen. Register, vii, 232: "The will of Elizabeth, widow of John Morricke, at Hingham, but now dwelling at Roxbury, not deprived of my wits and senses; Robert Hull of Boston and Leonard Fellows of Great Bowden in old England, executors; unto Wm. Fellows of Ipswich £10, Richard of Connucott £10, Samuel of Salisbury £10, sister Grace Allam in Lincolnshire £5." Her estate was prized 5 : 7 : 1650.

The testatrix died in 1650, the legatees — William in 1676, Samuel in 1698. William, Samuel and Richard were presumably her nephews, and might have been cousins, but probably were brothers.

I.

Samuel Fellows, of Salisbury, was probably a native of Lincolnshire, England. He was probably the Samuel who was sixty in 1679. He was a planter in Salisbury in 1648; a commoner in 1650, when his tax-rate was 7s. 7d.; a freeman in May, 1645. He died 6 March, 1697-8. His wife's name was Ann. She died 5 Dec., 1684. The probate inventory of his estate was £158. Samuel, "his only son," was appointed the administrator, 30 June, 1698. An agreement, dated 3 Feb., 1698-9, says that Samuel a son, and Nathaniel Brown and his wife were "the only persons interested in said estate."

2. Samuel, b. 13 : 11 : 1646.

3. Hannah, b. 15 : 7 : 1648.

2. Samuel Fellows married Abigail Barnard 2 June, 1681. He was made freeman, 18 April, 1690. Children:—

4. Samuel, b. (Aug.)? 1683.

5. Thomas, b. 29 Jan., 1685.

6. Joseph, b. 23 April, 1688.

7. Ann, b. 28 April, 1690.

8. Ebenezer, b. 10 Nov., 1692.

9. Hannah, 20 July, 1697.

Deborah Sanborn, born 1681, married 15 Nov., 1698, Samuel Fellows, (Falls,) died 1725; 2 Oct., 1711, Benj. Shaw.

Elizabeth Eastman, daughter of John, born 26 Sept., 1683, married, 1st, April, 1705, George Brown; 2nd, 10 Dec., 1713, a Thomas Fellows.

3. Hannah Fellows married 18 Oct., 1666, Capt. Nathaniel Brown, [at Hampton a short time], who died 5 Oct., 1723, at Salisbury. She died 23 March, 1727. Children:—

10. Hannah,

11. Abigail,

12. Abraham,

13. Ruth,

14. Nathaniel.

II.

"Richard Fellows of Connecticut" was probably of Hartford at the time of the bequest, where he baptized John, 1 Nov., 1646, and Mary, 9 Feb., 1650.

III.

William Fellows said in 1659, that he was about 50 years old. He came to New England, in 1635, in the ship Planter, and apparently from St. Albans, county Hartford. He settled in Ipswich, where he was a commoner, 31 Dec., 1641. He agreed 5 March, 1639, to keep the herd of cows on the south side of the river; in Oct., 1643, he forfeited £1 "for not returning his powder according to an order of the town;" in 1647, he and others were to mend certain highways; in 1648, he received 8s. bounty for killing four foxes; he subscribed 3s. to the compensation for Gen. Denison in 1648; he was allowed 9s. "for his horse 2 journeys," 18 (11) 1650; in 1656, the selectmen assessed him "half a spinner" £45; in 1664, he was assigned $1\frac{1}{2}$ shares in Plum Island, Castle Neck and Hog Island, No. 58; he had also Mr. Saltonstall's, No. 7; "William Fellows his farm" is spoken of in 1666; he and John Choat "measured out six acres of land to be laid to the Commons," in 1668; he and John Choat laid out $2\frac{1}{4}$ acres to Thomas Bishop; in 1668, he could fell timber to build a vessel; in 1669, he was one of a committee to execute the town's order about wood and timber, and take care of the commons; in 1670, he could fell two trees for a barn floor.

His wife may have been a sister of Capt. John Ayers; for Wm. Lamson's widow, in 1661, desired to marry Thomas Hartshorne, of Reading; and her brothers, William Fellows and John Ayers whose wife was Susanna Symonds, daughter of Mark, opposed the marriage.

His will was made 29 Nov., 1676, and proved, at Ipswich, 27 March, 1677. The witnesses were William Story, Sen., Thomas Burnham, Sen. Samuel Ingalls, Sen. It names no executor, and administration with the will annexed was granted to his sons, Ephraim, Samuel and Joseph, who were ordered, by the Court, to divide the estate according to the will. Isaac had marsh at Hog Island, Mary had £20, and Elizabeth, Abigail and Sary are mentioned.

The inventory was made 27 Dec., 1676, rendered 27 March, 1677, and amounted to £581 17 11. The debts were £83 11 7, leaving a net total of £498 6 4. Mention is made of "fowre rod of ground on meetinghouse hill, where the old house stood," "bed in the parlar" and "bed, bed clothes, with the bolster and pillows in the parlor chamber." — Probate, File-envelope, 9367.

Ephraim Fellows, Ruth Fellows, widow, administratrix of Joseph Fellows' estate, and Samuel Ayers, of Newbury, assignee and attorney to Samuel Fellows, of the same town, in the division of the real estate of their father William Fellows, formerly of Ipswich, quit claim to Bro: Isaac land— westerly by stake by the river, northeast side upon Samuel Ayres about 69 rods. The witnesses were William Fellows, Jarvas (or James) Ringe, 30 March, 1702.

Ephraim, Samuel and Ruth Fellows, widow of Joseph, conveyed to William Fellows, of Ipswich, 7 Jan., 1694 or 5, for £5, a house-lot, four rods [or roods] of ground, on the northeast side of Meeting-house Hill, which we understand to be the John Woodum lot mentioned in William of Portsmouth's sale to Daniel and Nathaniel Warner, by a clause in his deed of sale to Maj. Symonds Epes. See William, No. 10. Samuel acknowledged the deed at Rowley, 10 March, 1710; Ephraim acknowledged it, at Plainfield [Conn.], 3 Oct., 1710. Ruth did not sign it. Joseph Fellows, eldest son of Joseph, 5 Nov., 1711, gave a separate deed of "the commonright that was my grandfather, Wm. Fellows' to my kinsman William Fellows now of Ports-

By another deed, Isaac and Ruth Fellows and Samuel Ayers convey their titles to Ephraim Fellows. Ruth signs to all but 8 acres conveyed to her husband by Ephraim Fellows, — Feb., 1697. The witnesses were Thomas Manning, William Fellows, Jarvas (or James) Ringe.

These were their children:

2. Ephraim, b. in 1639; removed to Plainfield [Ct.] in 1709.
3. Samuel. Mr. Hammatt is probably wrong in saying that this Samuel settled in Salisbury.
4. Joseph.
5. Isaac, b. 1635(?).
6. Mary.
7. Elizabeth.
8. Abigail, m. Samuel Ayers, 16 April, 1677.
9. Sarah, b. 16 July, 1657.

KIMBALL, OR KEMBALL.

In the ship Elizabeth, of Ipswich, England, William Andrews master, which sailed, April, 1634, came Henry Kimball, aged 44, Susan, his wife, aged 35, Elizabeth aged 4 and Susan aged 1½, their children— Richard Kimball aged 39, uxor Ursula, age not given, and their children: Henry aged 15, Richard 11, Mary 9, Martha 5, John 3, Thomas 1.

The name on the Ipswich, Mass. townrecords is Kemball, Kimball, and Kimbole.

I.

Robert Rimball married 25 Oct. 1699, Alice Norton, sister of Dea Thomas Norton, and died in England, 27 June, 1703. His brother-in-law Thomas Norton was appointed administrator of his estate 24 Jan., 1703-4. His widow died in 1733. Her will, in which the Christian name is spelled "Allies" is dated 9 June, and was proved 25 Oct., 1733. The following is an extract from it: "To ye ministers of ye church of which I belong unto ten pounds (viz.) to ye Rev. Mr. John Rogers five pounds, & to ye Rev. Mr. Nathaniel Rogers, five pounds. also I give unto ye church ten pounds more." "I give unto my well beloved kinsman Thomas Norton son to my brother Thomas Norton all my plate (viz.) a silver Tankard, can, a pepper box, & two silver porringers."

A silver cup, belonging to the communion service of the First church has the following inscription, which, from the date, appears to have been a previous gift to the bequest in the will: THE-GIFT-OF-ALLIS-KIMBALL-TO-THE-FIRST-CHURCH-IN-IPSWICH-IN - PART - AND - OF-THE - CHURCH-STOCK-1730.

II.

Richard Kimball took the free-man's oath, in Boston, 6 May, 1635. He had a house-lot granted him 23 Feb., 1637, "adjoining Goodman Simons at the west end of the Town;" was a commoner, 1641; a Denison subscriber, 1648; had a share and a half in Plum Island, etc., 1664. He had a farm in the northerly part of the town, near Prospect Hill, having the farm that Thomas Emerson sold to Joseph Jewett, on the northwest. He also possessed a lot on the town hill. Thomas Scott, in his will, 8 March, 1653, calls him his brother. In 1650, Joseph Fowler sold him lands, in the deed of which he styled him "Richard Kimball, wheelwright, his father-in-law." His will was proved 28 September, 1675. He died 22 June. He mentions his wife without giving her name, and her children, Thomas, Jeremiah, and Mary; and there were "forty pounds due to her according to compact of marriage." His children mentioned in the will were Harry, the eldest son, born 1619; John, Thomas, Benjamin, and Caleb; a son-in-law, John Stevens (Severance of Salisbury); daughters Elizabeth, Mary, and Sarah. He mentions his "cousin" Hannah Bosworth.

The inventory of his property, 17 June, 1676, amounted to £986 6s. of which his house and 132 acres of land are valued at £370.

²Thomas, son of ¹Richard, born 1633, had a share and a half in Plum Island, etc., 1664; was one of the first settlers of Bradford, where he was killed by the Indians, 8 May, 1776, and his wife and five children—Joanna, Thomas, Joseph, Priscilla, born 15 April, 1673, and John were taken prisoners, carried forty miles into the wilderness, but returned 13 June, of the same year. He had in Ipswich, Hannah, born 21 Jan., 1661.

The General Court, in 1676, abated Mary Kimball's tax of "fower" pounds, of Bradford, because of the loss of her husband and "great part of their estate" carried off by the Indians.

³Caled, son of ¹Richard, was commoner and had a share in Plum Island, etc., 1664. He married Anna Haselton, 7 Nov., 1660; had Caleb, born 8 Sept., 1662; lost a son Richard 10 April, 1678; Anah, born 11 Dec., 1664; Elizabeth, born 8 Sept., 1666; Abigail, born — July, 1668; Abraham, born 29 June, 1675; Benjamin, born 27 March, 1678; Sarah, born 19 May, 1681.

³Caleb, probably grandson of ¹Richard, married 23 Nov., 1685, Lucy Edwards, daughter of John Edwards. They had Caleb, born 18 Aug., 1686; John, born 6 March, 1687; Thomas, born 1 Sept., 1691; Lucia, born 19 Sept., 1693; Anna, born 24 Nov., 1695. He subscribed 3d. towards the bell in 1699.

The will of Benjamin Kimball, blacksmith, was proved 4 Dec., 1704; it bequeaths all his effects to his brother Robert Kimball. In the inventory of the estate of Robert Kimball, dated 4 June, 1705, there is the item, "12 acres Land at Bradford rec d. pr. ye Decd. as part of portion * * amounting to £18." "Caleb Kimball husbandman and Robert Kimball mariner" join in a bond dated 1 Oct., 1702, in the first year of his Majesty's reign."

Jane Jordan in her will appoints Lt. Symon Stace and John Harris, Senr., overseers. She mentions "having paid Jno Kimball more than any of the rest," etc.

Sarah had "Benoy," a son, born 24 Dec., 1657, who died 24 Feb., 1657.

Hannah, widow of Sergt. Caleb Kimball, died 3 Jan., 1721.

The widow Anna died 9 April, 1688.

Sarah, widow of Richard, died 22 Dec., 1725.

The wife of John Kimball was presented "for wearing silk," 1659.

From the Massachusetts Observer copied into the Lynn News, 9 Feb., 1849:—

Richard Kimball (1) —. He was twice married. Margaret his second wife survived him; but died 1 March, 1676, the same year he died or the next following. She was the widow of Henry Dow, Senr., of Hampton, N. H., whose will is dated 4 8 m., 1659, and who died 21 April, 1659 (sic.) leaving three children, viz: Mary, born 1640. Thomas, born 1652 and Jeremiah, born 6 Sept., 1657.

Richard Kimball and the widow Margaret Dow were married 23 Oct., 1661.

THE DENNISON HOUSE.

The frontispiece is a picture of the house, No. 90, Revere Street, Bay View, Gloucester. The house is owned and now occupied by David Dennison, a lineal descendant of George Dennison, the man who built it in 1727. The farm that surrounds it is in the midst of the Bay View quarries, is good soil and well wooded. Mr. Dennison is now about 70 years old. In his younger days, he has been a vade mecum of the quarry-men, making many of the patterns or models by which they have worked. He made all the models for the stone of the present postoffice at Boston.

The following is the contract for building the ancient cellar and chimney:—

"Articles of agreement indented made and agreed upon between John Day, Jr., of Gloucester, in the county of Essex, in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, mason, and George Dennison of Gloucester, in the county aforesaid, mariner: That is to say that 1st John Day did engage himself to dig a cellar and stone it and underpin the house and point the cellar and the underpinning with lime, and also to build a chimney containing five smokes as large as the house will allow or the said Dennison desires them to be built; it is understood that the cellar is to be six foot and half deep, two stairways, stone one laid out and the other one laid in. The above said work to be done upon the above said Dennison's land where he shall direct; note, that the above said Day is to do all the above said work upon his own cost and charges, the work to be all completely finished at or before the twentieth day of — to be judged by men workmen.

In consideration of the above said work, I, the above said George Dennison, do oblige myself to pay to the above said John Day the sum of fifty-one pounds in payable money or bills of credit, to be paid when the above said work is finished and delivered, and the above said John Day do oblige himself to cart or haul the clay on the above Dennison land where the house is to be built and the brick. Whereunto we have interchangeably set our hand and seal this seventeenth day of March, Anno Domini 1727.

OBITUARY.

Miss Emily Louise Gerry, daughter of the late Elbridge Gerry, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and vice president of the United States, died at Hartford, Conn., December 29, 1894, at the age of 93 years.

Miss Gerry removed from Massachusetts 60 years ago, and had resided in the house built by Dr. Dana, one of the first clergymen of the New Haven colony. Her two sisters died several years ago, but Miss Emily lived and dispensed the hospitality for which her family were noted.

Forty years ago she was the most popular woman in New Haven society, especially with the boys and girls who are now grown, and they recall with pleasure her generosity.

A brother of the deceased was Capt. Gerry, commander of the sloop of war Albany, which was lost with all in board in the gulf of Mexico in 1853.

Elbridge Gerry of New York is a nephew of the deceased, and was also connected with the Townsends of New York and many of the prominent families of Massachusetts. She was the last of ten children: Catherine, wife of James T. Austin; Thomas Russell, who died in infancy; Eliza, wife of Major D. S. Townsend, U. S. N., Ann; Elbridge; Helen Maria; Thomas Russell, who married Hannah Goelit; Eleanor Stanford; James Thompson, Com. U. S. N.; and Emily Louise.

Miss Gerry's mother was Ann Thompson, only daughter of James Thompson, merchant, of New York City, and said to have been "the most beautiful woman in the United States."

51. Who was the emigrant ancestor of Gen. Francis Peabody, Jr., one of the candidates for mayor of Boston? M. S. P. G.

52. Wanted the date of the following letter:—

It was written "Wednesday forenoon," to a relative in Beverly, by Mary, wife of that Capt. Humphrey Devereaux who died in 1775, aged 75. From the fact that mention is made of Mrs. Emma-Blowers Charnock, of Beverly, who died 6 Oct., 1786, aged 83, one limit as to date is fixed. It runs:

"I suppose you received a Letter monday morning by Mr. Devereux * * * Benne wrote you a very lame account of the Effects of the Lightning in Col. Glover's house, but I shall not attempt to mend it, as you have doubtless seen a particular account in the Newspapers. I was exceedingly glad you were not here. I dont think it was so severe in any other place, in all m^y Remembrance I cant recollect anything like it.

Nabby Devereux has the Measles so bad that yesterday her life was despaird of; she is a little revived today, but not out of Danger; Humphrey is got thro' it. * * * All your near connections are well; Molly has been very poorly, indeed she was so ill on Sunday, that I greatly feard I should be deprivd the pleasure of hearing our Dear Parson improve the Awful Providence with which the Society is so deeply affected, but However I was blessd with an opperty of hearing it & Extremely pleasd therewith'.

If the "dear parson" was Col. Glover's son-in-law Rev. Ebenezer Hubbard, ordained Jan. 1, 1783, the period within which the letter was written is again limited. "Nabby" and "Humphrey" were evidently grandchildren of Capt. H. Devereaux, the boy living till Jan. 1, 1867, when he died in Salem, aged 88 years. I. J. G.

ANSWERS.

39. Capt. Benjamin Kimball, of Plaistow, accidentally killed by a gun-shot, in camp on the upper Hudson, Aug. 23, 1779, was probably identical with the Manchester soldier, in the Winter Hill camp, 1775.

J. R. K.

. In the May No. of the Register, page 80, a correspondent states that Ephraim Foster was son of Reginald. Ephraim Foster was my ancestor and my record says, that he was son of Abraham², (Reginald¹).

KNOWLTON.

John Knowlton was a commoner, 1641; a subscriber to Major Denison 1648; he purchased of Theophilus Wilson, January 28, 1646, land which Wilson bought of John Warner. In the deed Knowlton is styled "Shoe maker." His will is dated November 29, 1653, and was proved March 28, 1654. He leaves his house and land to his wife Margery, "for her use and bringing up of the children." His children were John, Abraham and Elizabeth. He mentions brothers William and Thomas.

January 28, 1646. Humphrey Bradstreet conveys to Thomas Knowlton, a "dwelling house and lott, situated between the dwelling house of Andrew Hodges, towards the southwest, and the dwelling of Stephen Jordan towards the southeast; having a highway leading down to the river on the west side."

November 18, 1678. The estate of William Knowlton, dec'd wh his brother Thomas Knowlton rec'd was £37 8 1.

John Knowlton², son of John¹, died October 2, 1684. The inventory of his effects was rendered October 8. He had a legacy from his brother Thomas, February 14, 1653. He was commoner and had a share in Plum Island, etc., in 1664. He had granted to him, February 22, 1669, privilege of fire wood, and feed for one cow so long as he follows ye trade of fisherman. In February, 1672, it was written:— "Granted to John Brown the like privilege of the common as other tradesmen as John Knowlton and Obadiah Bridges." And in January, 1671, John Brown and John Knowlton were both "forewarned" not to "neglect their occasions and spend time and expense in ordinaries." John Knowlton had children: Nathaniel, born June 29, 1658; Elizabeth, born March 1, 1659; Thomas, born May 19, 1662; Susan, born Aug. 15, 1669.

Thomas Knowlton married Hannah Green, November 24, 1668.

William Knowlton¹, brother of John Knowlton, was commoner in 1641. He styles himself "bricklayer," in a deed of land which he sells, February 28, 1643, to Edward Bragg. This is the description: "All my commonage with the appertainings belonging to the house lot which I bought of John Andrews who bought the same of Thomas Bishop, who bought the same of Robert Hayes, to whom the freeman of the Town of Ipswich did grant the same for a house lot, and whereupon there hath been a house built and upon occasion removed: the said land containing an acre: and it adjoineth to the other lands where I now dwell, which I bought of William Lampson and William Storey, having a lane leading towards the house of Joseph Medcalf towards the east, and Ipswich river towards the west." Farmer says on the authority of Felt, that he died in 1644, but it appears from a deed, dated February 8, 1648, that he at that time possessed a lot of land on Heartbreak Hill.

Thomas Knowlton¹, brother of John, was one of Denison's subscribers in 1648. His will is dated February 14, 1653. In it he mentions his sisters, Elizabeth Wilson and Margery Knowlton. He gives to John Knowlton twenty pounds, and the rest of his sister's children, ten pounds apiece, Elizabeth Knowlton, Abraham Knowlton and Seaborn Wilson; and to his brother Wilson's son Thomas, three pounds, and the rest for his mother's use during her life.

Deacon Thomas Knowlton² was probably son of William¹. He had a share and a half in Plum Island, etc., in 1664; was a voter in town affairs, 1679; tithingman, 1677. He with Sussannah his wife sold to Sarah Stone of Watertown, county of Middlesex, February 26, 1655, "land lying on a flat or field called pequitt Lotts, having Sargeant French's on the west, William pritchett east, the town river south, the town common north." In March 1657-8, he possessed a house lot on the north side of the river, adjoining Robert Peirse, near the river. His wife died November 20, 1688, and he died April 23, 1692. He married Mary Kimball, May 17, 1682.

John Knowlton³, probably son of John², had liberty of firewood and one cow on the common in 1644. With Sarah his wife he had a daughter Sarah born September 19, 1685.

Abraham Knowlton², probably son of John¹, "at a court held in May, 1664, is fined for playing cards." And January 18, 1673, he was one of "ten of the members of the young generation who took the covenant" and thereby joined the church.

Deacon Nathaniel Knowlton, had horses on the common in 1697. He married Deborah Grant, May 3, 1682. He had:— John, born December, 1685; Thomas, born November 8, 1692; Abraham, born March 27, 1699; Elizabeth, born September 15, 1702; David, born May 15, 1707.

Here Lies ye Body of Deacon Nathaniel
Knowlton who died
September ye 24
1726, in the 69
year of his age.

Deborah Knowlton, his wife, died April 25, 1743.

Thomas Knowlton and Margery his wife had:— Robert, born Sept. 7, 1693; Margery, born March 25, 1695; Joseph, born March 9, 1697; Deborah, born December 31, 1698.

Thomas Knowlton, sen'r., had lot 22; Thomas, jun'r, lot 21: John, jun'r, lot 11, each of 18 feet front, granted to them, lying between Samuel Ordway's shop and ye Town Bridge March 23, 1692-3.

Nathaniel Knowlton subscribed 12 shillings toward the bell, 1699.

September 28, 1675, Thomas Knowlton's wife "upon pr'st'ment for wearing silk & scarf fined 10 shillings and costs." Other women in the same condemnation were— Benedict Pulcifer's wife, Arthur Abbott's, Haniel Bosworth his two daughters, Obadiah Bridges wife, and Margaret Lambert.

Thomas Knowlton and Marcy, his wife, had a daughter Marcy, born August 7, 1694.

Joseph Knowlton married Mary Wilson, August 14, 1677, had a son born April 30, 1686; Joseph, born February 1, 1680; a daughter died April 1, 1693.

Joseph Knowlton takes possession of the farm that was Mr. Batchelder's dec'd, by purchase, February 17, 1684.

Samuel Knowlton married Elizabeth Witt, April, 1668; had— Elizabeth, born May —, 1669; Sarah, born Jan. 16, 1670; Elizabeth, born April 18, 1686; Ebenezer, born June 18, 1684.

Mr. John Knowlton, sen'r, shoemaker, died April 11, 1720.

Sarah Knowlton, wife of Abraham, died July 29, 1724.

Samuel Knowlton, husbandman; his will is dated Jan. 15, 1696-7, in which are mentioned his wife Elizabeth Knolten, and sons, Samuel the eldest, and Jonathan, (born March 16, 1678), and Ebenezer; also daughters, Sarah and Elizabeth. Witnesses: Isaac Woodberry, Jonathan Dik, John Witt.

Robert Knowlton, 1690, "being by God's providence in an Exposition against a potent enemy, where eminent danger may be," etc., makes his will, dated April 30, 1690, which was proved March 31, 1691. In this will are mentioned brothers Thomas and Ezekiel, and sisters Deborah and Susanna. He was probably in the Canada expedition under Major Samuel Appleton.

John Knowlton married Rebekah Young, May 29, 1703.

Nathaniel Knowlton married Reform Jewett, June, 1717.

John Knowlton died September 11, 1720, and left a wife Sarah, and sons Abraham and Isaac. He was a shoemaker.

Nehemiah Knowlton married Rebekah Jewett, May 3, 1682.

Isaac Knowlton married Mary Dear, Oct. 12, 1723. He owned the house next south of the town hall, and left it to his widow Mary. She sold it July 1, 1758, to Robert Choate, who soon afterwards married her for his second wife. Robert Choate gave it to his daughter, the wife of General Michael Farley; and later it passed successively into the hands of Aaron Wallis and Amos Jones. Last of all it was bought by the Heard's, who took it down. [The Town Hall now stands on its site, 1895.]

April, 1635, it was agreed and ordered by consent of the town that no man shall sell, lend, give or convey or cause to be conveyed or sent out of this town any timber sawn, or unsawn, riven or unriven upon pain of forfeiting the same or the price thereof to the use of the town.

That all houselots within the town are to be fenced by the first of May and such as fail to shall pay 2s. per rod beside the pain of doing it.

Granted to William Foster all the west end of little Necke except ten acres of upland ground lying next Goodman White, and five acres of marsh ground lying of each the upland.

The Record of the Land granted in Ipswich, entered according to an order of Court, by four men chosen for that purpose by the freemen of the town.

There was given and granted to Thomas Dudley, Esq., in October, 1635, one parcel of ground containing about nine acres lying between Goodman Cross on the west and a lot intended to Mr. Broadstreet on the east upon parcel of which nine acres, Mr. Dudley hath built an house: Also there was granted to him twenty-five acres late Goodman Mussey's lying between John Shatswell, and a lot late Goodman Cross, now Mr. Saltonstalls. Also a ten acre lot in the Reedy marsh. Also one hundred acres of meadow and one hundred acres of upland at the "farr" meadow where he would choose it and which he has since chosen, all these parcels lying and esteemed to lie in Ipswich. All which premises aforesaid with the houses built thereon and the paling set thereon the said Thomas Dudley, Esq., hath sold to Mr. Hubbard and his heirs, &c.

Granted to Wm. White an house lot bounded on the south west by the river, on the Northwest by Mr. Saywells house lot, on the northeast by Goodman Hassell's house lot, on the south east by Mr. Easton's house lot. Also there was granted to him a place to set a house, bounded on the south by John Whiteyear's house lot, on the north by the High street, on the west by Goodman Goodhue, on the east by a street that goes to the mill. Also there was granted to him twenty acres of land part meadow, part upland lying on the east side of the Town on the southeast side of the highway that leads to the great neck, on the west side of Mr. Bressey's land. Also there was granted to him two hundred acres of land, lying at the futher Chebacco bounded on the southeast by a creek that lies between it and Mr. Coggs-well's land bounded on the north by "a great bare hill without trees."

There was granted to John Shatswell, about six acres of ground upon parcel whereof the said John Shatswell hath built a house, lying between Mr. Wade's house lot on the east and Mr. Firman's on the west, having Goodman Webster's lot on the northeast. Also a parcel of land part marsh and part upland containing twenty-five acres in the whole lying between Mr. Dudley's lot towards the south and Humphrey Broadstreets toward the north. Also a farm containing two hundred acres lying beyond the North, commonly called Egypt River adjoining to the bounds of Newbury.

Granted to Jonathan Wade two hundred acres of land at Cheboko having Mr. Winthrops farm on the northwest, Mr. Samuel Dudleys northeast, and a creek called Cha-

IPSWICH LAND GRANTS.

Given and granted unto Anthony Shorte a portion of land lying next unto John Musseys northward in 20 rod broad and unto the aforesaid path leading towards Merrimack River in equal length with Robert Musseys and others, unto his sole and proper use forever.

Given and granted unto Robert Mussey a portion of land lying next unto Anthony Shorte northward in 40 rod broad and unto the aforesaid path leading towards Merrimack River in equal length with Henry Shorte and others, unto him his heirs and assigns.

Given and granted unto Henry Short a portion of land lying next unto Robert Mussey northward in 40 rod broad and unto the aforesaid path leading towards Merrimack River in equal length with John Satchwell and others, unto him his heirs, or assigns.

Given and granted unto John Satchwell a portion of land lying next unto Henry Shorte northward in 60 rod broad and the aforesaid path leading towards Merrimack River, in equal length with Henry Shorte and others, unto his sole and proper use forever.

"For all the wayes of God are the truth and mercy both."

Given and granted unto Mr. Wary [] Mr. Fawn and to Philip Fowler and to Goodman Andrews and to Christopher Osgood, a hill of ground cont. 30 acres of land unto each of them 6 acres of land, and unto theirs heirs forever.

Given and granted unto Wm. White twenty acres of land lying on the south side of this river at the west end of Mr. Spencer his land, unto his sole and proper use forever.

Given and granted unto Daniel Clarke six acres of land, more or less, lying upon this neck of land, in equal share with John Manning and others, unto his sole and proper use forever.

Given and granted unto Mr. Nicholas Easton, a great Hill of land lying towards a cricke coming out of the River of Chebacco with such conveniences of land adjoining, as shall amount unto three hundred acres, unto him his heirs or assigns. If 300 acres of land be not found on that side of the River, it is to be laid out upon the other side of the River to make up 300 acres.

Given and granted unto Mr. John Spencer three hundred acres of land lying next unto land of Mr. Easton towards the River of Chebacco unto him his heirs or assigns.

April 20, 1635.

At a meeting this day held by the Town it was agreed, that if any timber or clapboards shall at any time hereafter be carried out of this town without the consent of the town, all such timber or clapboards shall be forth with forfeited to the town.

At a meeting upon the 20th day of bacco creek on the southeast. Also commonly called Labor-in-vain a six acre lot of planting ground lying next the meadows by a creek onstall and Mr. Denison.

THE PEARL HOUSE.

SEE FRONTISPIECE.

A picture of the ancient relic is the frontispiece of this number. It is made from a photograph and is a correct view. "The old Pearl place," says Perley's "Dwellings of Boxford," "was a tract of two hundred acres laid out to John Sandys, in right of his father Henry Sandys, in 1667. It was bounded on the southwest by 'Mr. Nelson's Great Farm,' of two thousand acres, and came into possession of Joseph Dowding, a merchant of Boston, who sold it to Cornelius Browne, a farmer of Reading, for £70, Sept. 10, 1703. Mr. Browne probably came here the following spring and built the present house. His wife Susanna died here in 1734, at the age of seventy-four.

"In 1738, the place was sold by Mr. Brown to Richard Pearl, of Bradford, housewright. Mr. Brown retained half the house and barn. The farm then consisted of one hundred and forty acres. Mr. Pearl's father was John Pearl from Skidby, Yorkshire, England, a miller by trade, and his mother was Elizabeth Holmes, daughter of Richard, of Rowley. Richard was born in what is now Groveland, in 1702. He built the original mill, in connection with another man, that occupied the site of the first factory of E. J. M. Hale, in South Groveland. Richard lived first in Andover and came to Boxford as above. About that time he erected in the rear of his house the first grist-mill that existed in the West Parish. Richard died in 1793, at the age of ninety-one; his wife Sarah died seven years before. His daughter Elizabeth married Lt. Ebenezer Peabody, who resided in the Benjamin Peabody house; his son Richard died of small-pox, in 1760 at twenty years of age.

"Mr. Pearl's son John succeeded him on the place. He was born in 1738, and married Eunice Kimball in 1765. He had a family of eleven children, the youngest of whom was Peter Pearl; another was Simeon Pearl, the grandfather of J. M. Pearl.

"After Mr. Pearl's death, his son John came into possession of the place. He was born in 1768, and in 1794, married Mehitable Hall. He died in 18—. Their son Rufus died in the summer of 1797, aged one year. The following is his epitaph:

'Fresh in the morn, the summer rose
Hangs withering ere 'tis noon
We scarce enjoy the balmy gift
But mourn the pleasure gone.'

"His son George Pearl was the next proprietor of the ancient homestead. He was born in 1798, and always resided there. When the old meeting-house in that parish was taken down in 1843, Mr. Pearl purchased the porch, and annexed it to the east end of his house where it still remains. He died in 1878, and his widow survived him several years. His family still resides upon the place. This is also the home of James H. Webster, Esq., a son-in-law of Mr. Pearl. Mr. Pearl was a prominent man, being the representative of the town to the state legislature in 1857."

OBITUARIES.

MRS. SARAH N. ADAMS, widow of Charles Adams, died at Newburyport, Saturday night, Nov. 24, 1894, aged 92 years. She was one of the oldest residents of Newburyport. For fifty years she had been a member of the Old South Presbyterian church.

MRS. SARAH G. JONES died at the home of her daughter Mrs. Henry Center, of Gloucester, 30 Oct., 1894, at the age of 94 years, 26 days, having been born 4 Oct., 1800. Her father was Capt. Benjamin Edwards, of Newburyport, who was a prisoner with other Newburyport mariners, during the war with Algiers, and held as a slave for two years. Her mother was a Gardner of Newburyport, and Mrs. Jones was the last of their children to depart. Mrs. Jones' husband, Samuel Jones, was a spar-maker, in Gloucester. His death occurred, 4 June, 1865, in his sixty-eighth year. Two sons died—Edward, a mate in the merchant service, 13 Aug., 1889, at sea, aged 54; and William, who succeeded to his father's trade of spar-maker, after removing to Newburyport, 14 March, 1890, in his sixtieth year.

Her serene, peaceful, and intelligent old age was the fruitage of a parental home of culture and refinement and the practice, in mature life, of benevolence, charity, and hospitality. She was very helpfully identified with the Independent Christian Church. She leaves three daughters, Sarah, the wife of Luther D. Pettingill, of Swampscott; Frances; and Almira, the wife of Henry Center, city-auditor of Gloucester.

CHARLES W. STOREY died in Brookline, of pneumonia, 27 Dec., 1893. He was born to Capt. Charles W. and Elizabeth-Burnham Storey, in Newburyport, 18 July, 1816, the oldest of six children, of whom only two sisters, Miss Lydia M. Storey, of New York, and the wife of Rev. John R. Thurston, of Whitinsville, are living.

Mr. Storey fitted at Philips Exeter Academy, graduated at Harvard College, studied and practiced law in Boston, and retired some years ago from a lucrative profession in ill health.

Mr. Storey was intimately acquainted with Oliver Wendall Holmes, James Russell Lowell, Longfellow and other intellectual celebrities, and his home was the center of the most cultivated and select literary people of Boston and vicinity. Very intelligent, of the gentlest manners, extremely polished, in every word and movement he was most thoroughly a gentleman of ability, rare intellectual gifts, and conversant with art, poetry, letters and history,

He was a member of the Society of the Cincinnati, being a worthy descendant of his honored ancestor, William Storey, prominent in Revolutionary annals. In 1842, he married Elizabeth Moorefield, a lady of great merit and rare gifts, who died some years ago. Three children survive their father, Moorefield Storey, high in the legal profession in Boston, and two daughters, Misses Marianna and Susan Storey.

QUERIES.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

53. Mr. Editor: In the November REGISTER, is a valuable article entitled Gov. and Mme. Bradstreet. Cannot this family record be continued in giving the record of the births and marriages of the children of this family? If this meets your approval, the following may be the beginning:

"John Bradstreet was born July 31st 1652. Hanna married June 3d, 1659, Andrew Witkin. The above are from the records of Andover, Mass.

"The above Witkin is probably a misspelling of Wiggin. Who will follow with the record of any other of the births or marriages? A. B. W O. Clifton Willcomb has just issued a Handbook of Ipswich History," illustrated with twenty-seven fine engravings, ten of which are beautiful half-tones. The history is chronologically arranged and includes lists of town-officers, clergymen, and the soldiers against the Rebellion. It is a very handy volume for reference, and as a souvenir is not equalled considering the price. By mail, 50 cts.

BOOK.

REV. CHRISTOPHER SARGEANT.

A PAPER READ AT THE 165TH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE METHUEN
CHURCH, JANUARY 8, 1895.

BY C. H. T. MANN.

The sources from which we can obtain any knowledge of the first Pastor of this church are very few. We have his grave, the record of the church, which he faithfully kept from the beginning to the end of his long pastorate, his record of baptisms, and what we can gather from his genealogical tree, and the same rule which governs other trees applies to this, that, "A good tree bringeth forth good fruit."

At his grave, which is a little to the left of the entrance to the old burying ground on Meeting House Hill, we find a large stone with this inscription.

Sacred to the memory of the Rev. Christopher Sargeant who died March 23d, A. D. 1790 Æt. 86.

And Susanna, his wife who died May 3d, 1785 Æt. 73.

Quali erant dies ista indicabill. i. e.*
Here they lie in expectation of the Judgement day. That day will declare what manner of persons they were.

This is rather discouraging.

We cannot think that any one but the old Pastor himself would have furnished just such an epitaph for his tombstone, but as we are actuated by a better motive than idle curiosity, we trust he will pardon us for trying to find out something about him without waiting until that great and dreadful day.

The distance between the head and foot stone of the grave shows that he was a tall man and the long life indicates good health and a strong constitution.

Mr. Sargent, was a descendant, in the fourth generation, of the Common Ancestor of the Amesbury branch of the Sargeant family, one William Sargeant who was born in England in 1602 and died at Amesbury in 1675, and is buried there in the old Ferry Cemetery. He is said to have been a midshipman in the Royal Navy and made voyages with Capt. John Smith and that he came with him to Jamestown, Va., in 1614. He was one of the first settlers of Newbury. In 1635 he removed to Hampton, N. H., and from there to Amesbury in 1655. Our own beloved Dea. Sargeant is of the seventh generation from the same ancestor.

The book of records begins

"Methuen Church Book 1730

The first regular entry in a good plain handwriting, perfectly legible now, after 165 years is this:

"Church Records. Oct. 29, 1729 was kept a Day of fast preparatory to ordination at wh. The Rev. Mr. Winget preached from 2-Cor. 8-16 at wh. time Rev. Mr. Philips gathered ye Church. At the same time this Covenant was concented to and signed by the following persons."

The Covenant is followed by 24 names, all men, and then the record goes on:

"This was done and at the same time the Chh. called me to the pastoral office in the presence of Saml. Philips.

John Barnard.

Joseph Parsons.

Pain Winget."

Arrangements were then made for the ordination, "Accordingly Nov. 5, 1729 the aforesd. chhs. appeared by yr. Revd Elders and Messengers and the work was performed as follows: (viz) Mr. Brown made the first prayer. Mp. Rogers preached from 2-Cor.3-5 Mr. Philips gave the charge. Mr. Barnard gave the Right hand of fellowship and they four Laid on Hands and Mr. Parsons made the last prayer."

"Lord's Day, Nov. 30, 1729.

"The aforesd. Covenant was publicly concented to by the following persons."

There were 35, most of them women which completed the 59 original members of the church.

The meeting house was a plain little building 40 feet long, 30 feet wide and 20 feet high. The rude production of the broad axe and pod augur, and every nail used in its construction was forged out by hand. It contained only one pew and that was for the use of the minister's family. In course of time it was well filled. It was a church on the frontier. The churches on the north bank of the Merrimack, at Haverhill, Dracut and Methuen were on the extreme boundary of civilization. With the exception of a little clan of Scotch Presbyterians at Londonderry, the unbroken forest stretched far away northward to the St. Lawrence.

The congregation came from homes scattered all over this town and Salem, N. H. Fifteen years later nearly one-half of the voters of the town came from north of the present N. H. line and another church was established, to which 27 members of this church removed, now the Congregational Church at Salem, N. H.

Mr. Sargent was a graduate of Harvard College. He was 25 years old when called to this church in the wilderness, and for 57 years was its faithful pastor, spending the whole of his long life here in the service of God and your forefathers.

That he was a man of rare wisdom and good judgment no one can doubt, his firmness and decision, his love of truth and justice are plainly read between the lines of the records he so carefully kept. Cases of discipline were frequent, and the church and pastor were often called upon to interfere in quarrels, and troubles of various kinds, which will creep in, even among the very elect. Nothing that was not closely and intimately connected with the affairs of the church is to be found in the records, and nothing that does belong to them, even though it spares not his own son, is left out.

At one time a church meeting was called and specific charges preferred against the Pastor by some disaf-fect members who had been called to account for absenting themselves from the word and ordinances. The Pastor's orthodoxy was called in question on the doctrines of Predestination and Effectual Calling. To the first he replied, "I could mean only this:" "that predestination is founded upon foreknowledge according to the text, "Whom he did foreknow, them he did predestinate," for this is my opinion. To the latter, he denied saying that in effectual calling, or the new birth, man is as passive as Lazarus was in being raised from the dead, and said further "Man is wholly passive in the new birth, but considered as a reasonable being, not as a dead man is passive in being raised to life." The Church sustained the Pastor and promptly voted the charges unjustifiable and offensive and contrary to the Christian Covenant and obligations of those who made them.

From 1774 to 1784 covering the period of the Revolution the yearly record is very brief and the only hint we have that there was any trouble in the Country is in the increased cost of providing for the Lord's Table, owing to the depreciation of the currency. In 1775 the cost was £14 12s 6d; in 1779, £42; and in 1780, £153 10 shillings. The excitement preceding the Revolution began early in this town. In the fall of 1774 a drill club of 66 members was formed. When the war broke out at Lexington 102 men responded to the alarm. 63 of our men were at Bunker Hill; 6 at Dorchester Heights; 34 in Col. Wigglesworth's Regiment to the northward; 5 at Burgoyne's surrender; 32 in the winter of '76 marched to New Jersey, under Col. Timothy Pickering to reinforce Washington. In '77, 23 men were in the regular army for 3 years to the credit of Methuen.

In a levy of 9 men for 6 months service 4 are boys of 16 and 3, of 18 years old. Heavy drafts were made for provisions for the army and the privation and suffering in many families were very great, some were even reduced to an allowance of food.

So many men taken away from their usual, peaceful avocations, the suspension of business, so little money and that of so little value, impoverished the people until the General Court was obliged to afford them aid. In all these dreadful years the old Pastor, now more than three score years and ten, seems to have been too much occupied with other affairs to write in his church record. His time was fully occupied with the Master's business, and no doubt his prayers were long and fervent for the success of the Continental Army. And now, if you please, we will try and get a glimpse of Mr. Sargeant at home. It appears between the lines that it was a home of culture and refinement, and that he was a most affectionate husband and father.

THE FELLOWS FAMILY.

2. EPHRAIM FELLOWS was 32 years old in 1671; he was a voted in town affairs 1679, commoner in 1678, had a seat assigned him in the meeting-house in 1700; a "surveighour" of highways in 1669, and 1670 might fell trees "for a hous. 16 feet square and for 300 rayles." In 1673, "the flo,cks at Goodman Potters shall have liberty to go over the plain on this side Goodman Fellows his house." He could fell three pine trees in 1676, and in 1678 was surveyor of highways from Windmill Hill to Haefields bridge, and the highway from Goodwife Fellows to Chebacco Falls, He was of Plainfield, Conn., Oct. 3, 1719, where he signed a deed.

His wife Mary died 23 Feb., 1671. His children, Elizabeth and Anna, were by his second wife Ann. Children:

- 10.* William, who removed to Portsmouth, N. H.
- 11.* John, who removed to Plainfield, Ct., and d. in 1749.
- 12.* Ephraim, who removed to Plainfield.
13. Mary, m. Israel Lathrop, of Norwich, and d. abt. 1744.
14. Elizabeth, b. 14 Sept., 1685; m. Henry Stevens, of Stonington.

15. Amy, [Anna or Ann], b. 26 Feb., 1693;
m Thomas Stevens, of Plainfield.

3. SAMUEL FELLOWS, sen., husbandman, lived "for many years, with his loving brother-in-law Samuel Ayers, Sen., of Newbury" and was "provided for by him." Samuel Ayers and his two sons, Samuel Jr. and John agree to keep him through life and he gives them all his lands in Ipswich, "which were given me by my honored father, William Fellows, late of Ipswich," in his will dated 29 Nov., 1676, by deed dated 23 May, 1701, witnessed by Cutting Noyes, Stephen Pearson, Henry Short. In a conveyance, dated 23 July, 1702, Ephraim Fellows, speaks of brother Samuel Ayers, and our father, William Fellows.

Samuel Fellows, 14 April, 1712, "aged and weak of body," "give all my estate, viz: goods and chattels and sheep, with whatsoever appertaineth unto me in any ways"—"I give my loving sister Abigail Ayers and Samuel and Jno. Ayers my cousins, and constitute them jointly and severally my executors." They were to care for him and after his death divide the remainder of the property equally.

Samuel and John Ayers, 11 Dec., 1713, relinquished all under the will to their mother Abigail.

Samuel Fellows, of Rowley's, estate was appraised by John Hartshorn, Richard Walker and Joseph Jewett, 14 Dec., 1713. Among the items are 1 horse 20s.; ox 3p.; 3 cows 5p.; sheep 40s.; swine 20s.; 2 old guns 12s.; cutlass and belt 3s. 2d.; mare and colt and grindstone £2 10 0. The total was £33 07 00.

4. JOSEPH FELLOWS married Ruth Fraile, 19 April, 1675. He was commoner 1664, and had John Ayers' right of commonage, was voter 1679, freeman 26 May and 11th Oct., 1682. He died in 1693. The probate value of his estate rendered by Ruth, Nov. 7, 1693, was £791, 15s. In 1697, the real estate was £451; personal £235, 15s. In the division, the widow had a third of the real, £151 6s 8d., personal £85 11s 8d; Joseph had real £85 18s., personal £48 8s.; the others, real $42 19s., and personal, £24 8s. The widow Ruth, April 15, 1697, took the guardianship of Sarah, Abigail and William, and charged £15 for keeping the three children 3½ years.

"Joseph Fellows, deceased, wheelwright"—The widow had in her third "together with the Leantoe on ye backside of ye westerly end of ye house sd, Ruth built, leaving ye end shee built yt ye leantoe is joined to be disposed by her to her son or children." She was to have "half ye orchard and trees below ye gate yt leads into ye mansion house that she to improve 14 years." She had "15 foot of the east end of the old barn and the leantoe she built adjoining thereto." Her third was set off by Jonathan Wade, John Dane, James Burnham, James Fuller, and Nehemiah Jewett.

The widow was advised to remove the new part of the house and of the barn to the thirty acre lot, for William when he became of age.

His probate inventory was made, Oct. 25, 1693, by Thomas Wade, Robert Kinsman and Nathaniel Rust, and mentions "40 bu. malt at the mill, a third part of 4 rods of land on meeting house hill, £1 0 0 and a total of £780 0 6. "Ruth, relict, widow, of said Joseph" presented the inventory Nov. 7, 1693.

Joseph Fellows paid the Selectmen for one acre of land £4 in current money of New England which was towards the payment engaged for Mr. Hubbard to Mr. Hull's administrator. They do hereby convey the same as it is bounded by Major Saltonstall's land and the south east side land of John Low and some that said Fellows changed with him southwest,—by the Common northeast, and northwest by stones and stakes, this being $\frac{3}{4}$ of an acre. The other quarter being an angle bounded by his own land near his house southwest. The northeast side by the common land one end $4\frac{3}{4}$ rods wide being about 18 rods 12 feet to an old stub in the fence all the said within land as bounded be it more or less, to have and to hold into the said Fellows May 21, 1685.

John and Mary Brown, daughter of Joseph Fellows receipt to Mother Ruth and Bro. Joseph for portion in Father Joseph's estate.

Samuel and Ruth Waite receipt for their share of Joseph's estate.

Sarah Harden, of Middleton, in Essex County, widow, receipted for 2-5 of 2-3 of William Fellows' homestead and 2-5 of 2-3 of the building. Harden acknowledged a deed at Danvers, Nov. 24, 1755.

Ruth Fellows died an "ancient widow," 14 April, 1729. Her will was made 17 Feb., 1728-9. Joseph had 5s.; William, the house, barn, all buildings, all quick stock, farming utensils, all household goods, all movables, indoors and out. Her daughters, Mary Brown, Ruth Wait, Sarah Harden and Abigail Low had 5s. each. Her son William was executor and Benjamin Patch overseer of her will; Elizier Foster, Benjamin Patch and Elizabeth Cross witnessed it. Foster and Patch proved it 13 May, 1729. Their children:

ESSEX COUNTY IN THE ABOLITION OF SLAVERY.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The American Colonization Society was organized in 1816, in Washington, and auxiliary societies were formed in most of the states. In its principles it was hostile to abolition. Its purpose was to colonize the free blacks in Africa. It was a plan of the slave holder to get rid of the free negro. It embraced from the beginning many men of high rank and eminent talents as members, Henry Clay being perhaps the most prominent. A woman by the name of Ann Mifflin had proposed the idea, intending that it should be international, shortly after the year 1800. Presidents Jefferson and Monroe approved of it. What the colored people themselves thought of the movement can be seen from the following letter originally published in the New York Courier in the winter of 1816-17:—

"Miffler Printer,

"I underftand dere be great fufs in a city of Wafhington, for make people of color go back to he own country, wat he nebber fee. Miffler Clay and miffler Randolph, he berry forry poor people of color can't marry wite gal. I too. But he no matter. He can marry color gal plenty, and color gal anfer berry well. But Miffler Clay fay, color people mufs go to Africa, den he berry happy; den he marry wite gal, if he can find him. I tink Miffler Clay he got berry cunnin way for help color man get wite gal; caufe he can't get him wen he done.

"No matter—color people mufs go to Africa. Wat he mufs go dere for ecaufe wite people he fteel he fadder, dere, agin he will, and bring he here, and now he children mufs go back agin he will, ecaufe he fadder come agin he will. Dis berry cunnin in Miffler Clay.

"Now I ax Miffler Clay fmall question. Miffler Clay, how you like leave Kentuck, and go lib in Africa? Not berry well I tink—for wat you no like it, ha? O Africa be no fo good country like dis—De land be berry poor—de fun be berry hot—and he ole country full of wile neeger. Well I tink you berry rite Miffler Clay. Now I ax you, wy you wifh fend poor color people dere? ha! to ftarve on de poor land? to roaft in de hot fun? to fight all time for he life and he poor land, wid de wile neeger? ho! Ah Miffler Clay, I guefs you petty cunnin feller. I guefs you want to get rid of color people—and you don't care much where he go, if he only go away.

"I tink, miffler printer, he Nited State berry good country—better, great deal, den Africa. And I like e wite people company, better, great deal, den a wile neeger. Some time tame neeger he bad enough. But wile neeger wat fteel one an nuder, and fell em, he must be de dabble. I guefs you no cibilize him berry quick. I guefs e wite man do he best, and he got tuff match. But color people go dere, is all nonfense.

"Miffler Clay tink he great humanity, fend color people to Africa and let e wite people tay. Berry well. He bad rule if he cant work bote way. So I make Miffler Clay propofial. Let e wite people go to Africa, and let e color people tay here! Wat you fay Miffler Clay? Miffler Clay fee color people d——d first. Aha! Miffter Clay I cotech you. You dont like you own humanity wen mufs take him yourself—jufs like a doctor, wat nebber take he own medicine, if he can help hefelf widout.

“No—no—miffter Clay—I tay here—dis my country. I born here—brought up here—all my relation he lib here. De country he full liberty—white man he ufe me berry well—fometime he crofs—but den he good agin, I got plenty work, and ebberry ting elfe.

“But miffter Clay fay—O but you fadder come from Africa—fo Africa he you country. Well miffter Clay, you fadder, or grandfadder or fomeboddy, were he come from? From Englan, I pofe. Berry well. Den I fay, you Englifhman. Englan he you country. De people of color call meeting, and he fend miffter Clay back to Englan. What you fay miffter Clay—you go? miffter Clay mad—fulky—he fay you brack rafcal, you try fen me back to Englan, I break you brack head for you. Well but miffter Clay, Englan he better country than Africa. But miffter Clay he wont go. Aha! miffter Clay I cotech you agin.

“Miffter printer, pleafe fend dis letter to miffter Clay, and fend what he fay to him. SAMBO.”

Rev. Wm. Bentley, editor of the Salem Register in 1818, suggested that Hayti would be a much better place for the negroes to go to than Africa.

In the spring of the same year several philanthropic ladies of Salem, desiring to adopt some measures for the improvement of the character and condition of the colored people of the town, many of whom were living degraded lives, formed a Sunday school for women and children, and opened it April 19th of that year. It was divided into twenty-one classes, each having an instructress. The scholars varied in number from seventy to ninety, very few of whom had ever been to any religious service, and some of them seemed to be destitute of any religious or moral feeling. There were then in Salem about two hundred colored people. Learning the need of a broader work, the ladies formed the Clarkson Society, its object being the general elevation of the colored people of all ages and sexes.

The state of Georgia in 1819, banished all negroes who had not been regularly emancipated, and ignorant, poor, and degraded, many sought to find a home beyond the Ohio. The question of Missouri Territory being admitted into the Union arose at this time, and an attempt was made to abolish slavery therein as a term of admission. The country was greatly agitated, and many public meetings were held in every state, at which resolutions were passed and memorials ordered to be sent to Congress.

The representative to Congress from the district which then formed a large part of Essex County was Hon. Nathaniel Silsbee. A communication from the citizens of Danvers was addressed to him, assuring him of their gratification at finding him, and most of the delegation from this state opposed to the extension of slavery; and expressing their belief that it is criminal to be silent under such circumstances; and that they fear that the evil may become perpetual; and that they earnestly hope that every practicable exertion will be made to hasten the time when the republic shall witness the complete abolition of the system, asserting that Congress has power to act, and trusting that they “possessed the will and inclination to act rightly," adding,—

"May we not, Sir, be permitted to indulge the hope, that the cause of humanity will ultimately prevail; that ere long this infernal traffic in human flesh, will be completely and entirely abolished? With the highest satisfaction we have witnessed the efforts that have been made and are now making in the European world to effect this most desirable of all objects. And shall the United States, emphatically a land of boasted liberty and equal rights, be backward in a cause so noble, and so good? In a cause that most forcibly appeals for aid to every principle of patriotism, of humanity, and of religion. Forbid it Heaven! Forbid it Justice!"

They ask Mr. Silsbee to excuse the warmth of their language, saying: "On subjects of this kind, it is not easy at all times to keep within the bounds of moderation." The address was signed by Edward Southwick, William Sutton, Thomas Putnam, Andrew Nichols, and John W. Proctor. Mr. Silsbee returned a suitable reply.

The people felt that the action of the current Congress would fix the attitude of the country toward slavery for all future time, and that therefore, the question was national rather than local in its determination.

At a public meeting held in the State house in Boston, on Friday, Dec. 3, 1819, which was largely attended, a committee of nineteen was appointed to draw up resolutions against admitting Missouri as a slave state. Among the committee were Hon. William Gray, Stephen White, jr., of Salem, Hon. Benjamin Pickman, and David Cummings of Salem.

On Tuesday, Dec. 7, an enthusiastic meeting was held in Salem, with Willard Pelee in the chair. The speaking was by Col. Benjamin Pickman, Squire Dunlap, and Judge Storey, and it was listened to with great attention. The following resolutions offered to the meeting by Hon. B. Pickman, were unanimously adopted:—

"Resolved, That in the opinion of this meeting, it is the duty of the people and Government of the United States, by all practicable means, to prevent the extension of so great a political and moral evil as Slavery; and for this end, that it is Constitutional and expedient to prohibit the introduction of it into such States as may hereafter be established in any territory of the United States, without the original limits of the said States.

"Resolved, That the thanks of this meeting be given to the Hon. Nathaniel Silsbee, the Representative of this District in Congress, for his endeavours at the last session of Congress to introduce into the bill for the establishment of the new State of Missouri, a provision to prohibit Slavery in that State, as had before been done by Congress in the States of Ohio, Illinois and Indiana, a provision which has been found as beneficial to those States, as it is conducive to the honor and interests of the U. States."

It was voted that the Selectmen, with the Hon. Benj. Pickman, Judge Storey and Jos. Peabody, Esq. be a Committee to transmit the Resolutions to Mr. Silsbee.

The Colonization Society established a colony on the African coast in the winter of 1819-20, which was not as successful as the projectors of the scheme or the sable members anticipated. The natives would not give up their lands, but were not reluctant to appropriate to their own use such chattels as they could get their hands on.

COL. JOHN APPLETON HOUSE.

NORTH MAIN STREET, CORNER CENTRAL STREET, IPSWICH.

SEE FRONTISPIECE.

Following President Waters, of place this house on the land that The Ipswich Historical Society, we was comprised in the original grant of a houselot to Christopher Osgood, in 1635. The descent is as follows:—

In 1650, Christopher Osgood devised his houselot to his son Christopher.

Christopher Osgood, of Andover, in 1636, sold to Thomas Metcalf, for £75, dwelling-house, barn, etc., and four acres of land, in which Thomas Waite now dwelleth, "neare to the brook running into the Mill River," bounded by the street on the south-east, by Wm. Waite's land on north-east, etc.,— which, easily identified by the boundary, though called "a messuage, or tenement, with land adjoining about six acres," Thomas Metcalf, in 1699, sold to Jacob Davis, by trade a potter.

In 1707, Davis divided the property and sold a portion of it for £33 to Col. John Appleton—"a certain parcel of upland ground, land that was formerly Thomas Metcalfe, on ye side of ye meeting-house hill, about an acre and a half and four rods, having ten rods and eight links on the front next ye stone wall by ye highway, on ye south-east, and on ye south-west, north-west and north by land of said Jacob Davis, and on ye north-east land of Col. John Wainwright which was formerly John Sparks, where Thomas Smith, in-holder, now lives."

The remainder of his estate, Davis sold, in April, 1710, for £350, to Beamsley Perkins, the five and a half acres with the buildings—"with the houses, also all bricks * * * and whatever else was prepared in order to finish ye dwelling-houses and fence," etc.

Had there been a house on the Appleton purchase, the chances are a thousand to one that the deed would have stated it; besides, the small price paid, compared with the price of the Perkins purchase, indicates the purchase of only land.

An ancient map of the locality made in 1717, when Col. Appleton's son Daniel occupied the premises, makes Perkins and Appleton contiguous neighbors.

Abraham Hammatt, the antiquarian referred to on p. 77, vol. 1, resided here and prepared the following

"HISTORY OF OUR HOUSE.

"The house was possessed and probably built by the Hon. Col. John Appleton, son of Samuel Appleton, who was born at Little Waldingfield, England, 1586, and came to America, and settled in Ipswich with his father, Samuel Appleton, in 1635. He was married, Nov. 23, 1681, to Elizabeth, daughter to John Rogers, President of Harvard College. He died Sept. 11, 1739, aged 87. His widow died in 1754, aged 91. By his will, dated Feb. 8, 1734, he bequeaths to his wife Elizabeth (besides various other property) "the Mansion house and all the buildings and land adjoining, which is my orchard, during her natural life." He bequeaths to his son Daniel the mansion house after his wife's decease, and makes him residuary legatee.

"Col. Daniel Appleton, son of John and Elizabeth, died 1762, intestate. He married, in 1715, Mrs. Elizabeth Berry, of Cambridge, who became his administratrix. In the appraisal of the estate, the mansion house and homestead with other buildings are appraised at £266. 13. 4 d.

"Jan. 18, 1768, John Walley, of Boston, Clerk [gospel minister], and Elizabeth, his wife; Mary Appleton, of Ipswich, singlewoman; the said

Elizabeth and Mary being the children and heirs of Daniel Appleton, late of Ipswich, deceased, convey to Daniel Noyes, of Ipswich, in consideration of £256. 13. 4 d.; John and Elizabeth one-half; Mary, the other half; a peice of land in Ipswich, containing two acres, more or less, with the buildings thereon, bounded; viz., Southeasterly on the street; south-westealy and northwesterly, on land of Benj. Dutch; northeasterly, on land of Daniel Rogers, to first mentioned bounds. And Elizabeth Appleton widow, in consideration of five shillings, quits all right of dower, etc.

"The house was of three stories when Daniel Noyes, Esquire, bought it, and much decayed. He reduced it to two stories and put it in thorough repair—making new windows and frames, new sills and splicing the posts. From the degree of decay at that time, there is reason to infer, that it could not have been less than eighty or ninety years old; or that it was built about the time John Appleton was married in 1681.

"When in 1838, I repaired the house, putting in new windows and frames, clapboarding the whole house and wood-house and building a portico at the front door, the parts which Noyes had put in were quite free from decay. The northeasterly parlor and the chamber over it, the front entry and stair-case are, I presume, as they were when the house was built. The southeasterly parlor appears more recent. When I purchased the place in 1835, the southeasterly chamber had never been finished. The chamber over the kitchen I refinished and made the passage to it from the front stairs, in 1838."

Either of these dates dissipates the beautiful romance that this house was, at one time, the refuge of "the regicides," Goffe and Whalley; for Whalley had died before 2 April, 1679, according to correspondence between Goffe and his wife bearing that date, and it is not probable that Goffe was east of Hadley after that date.

QUERIES.

54. Wanted the parentage of Martha Marsh of Bradford who married Jonathan Wallingford, in 1741-2, and also of Mercy Rea who married Francis Nelson of Rowley, in 1702.

ANSWERS.

11. N. N. S. says that the Haverhill records show that Robert Swan and Hannah Stevens married 1708-9, and had a son Robert, born Mar. 2, 1711-12; that Robert Swan, Jun., and Eliz. Story married and had a son Robert, born May 28, 1686; that Robert Swarn and Eliz. Acie had a son Robert, born May 30, 1657.

They were probably direct descendants of the first Swan in Haverhill, and undoubtedly moved from Haverhill as I find no further mention of the name here for some time, when two Swans from Methuen married widows from Haverhill.

I think your questioner must have been mistaken as to the age, as there was no other Swan family in Haverhill who had the name Robert.

39. S. P. Sharples, Esq., says in reference to the "Hammatt Papers," "John Kimball of Ipswich did not marry Mary Jordan; it was John Kimball of Newbury and Amesbury. John Kimball of Ipswich married Mary Bradstreet.

39. Capt. Benjamin Kimball of Manchester, had for his wife, Joanna; his children:— Elizabeth, born March 21, 1756; Oliver, born May 16, 1757; Ebenezer Raymond, born Mch. 5, 1759; John, born Oct. 22, 1760; Katherine, born Aug. 6, 1762; died Aug. 24, 1787; William, born Feb. 2, 1764; Polly, born Aug. 17, 1769; Raymond, born Aug. 24, 1771; Benjamin, born April 30, 1773.

Capt. Benjamin Kimball of Plais-tow, was born Aug. 5, 1741, and married Sarah Little; had children Benjamin, Jonathan, Tamar, Elizabeth, Benjamin, Abigail and Sarah. His widow Sarah received half pay in accordance with a resolution of Congress. This Benjamin was not killed in battle but accidentally shot, not on the Upper Hudson but at Tioga, Penn. See history of Sullivan's expedition against the Indians, for the manner of his death. As you will see, the above entirely disposes of any idea that the two Benjamins are identical.

No. 3.

JOHN HOOD GOULD.

BY GEO. FRIS. DOW.

In whatever town or city the numerous descendents of Zacheus Gould may reside, none have escaped the searching genealogical investigations of John Hood Gould of Topsfield, or "Singer John," as he was oft-times called. That natural desire to learn the history of one's descendants, developed into an all absorbing passion with Mr. Gould, and has produced in connection with a most able co-laborer, Dr. Benjamin Apthorp Gould of Cambridge, a family genealogy, which for exact data and exhaustive completeness seldom has been equalled.

John Hood Gould was born in Topsfield, January 30, 1824, in the old Gould homestead under the hill. He was the son of Zacheus and Annie Hood Gould, and one of ten children. The education for after life he gained in that bulwark of New England's institutions—the public school, and when broadened by travel aided by a most retentive memory, he became a man whose friendship was highly prized, a genial companion, whose fund of knowledge was practically inexhaustable particularly in the way of historical and genealogical lore.

A natural love for historical investigation, led him to carefully treasure every fact, even though it seemed of transitory value; while his patience and good nature unearthed many a family tradition, and half-forgotten bit of documentary evidence of by-gone life and customs.

The early years of his life were spent in Topsfield in the occupation followed by his ancestors—cultivation of the soil; but wishing for a broader view of life, when twenty-two years of age, he went to Baltimore, Md., where his elder brother Zacheus had been located for several years. Here he obtained a position in the office of the Baltimore American, but after a short time he severed relations with the American and became attached to the Baltimore Daily Sun, as one of the staff. His assignments were principally Marine Journal and City Locals, and during the War of the Rebellion many opportunities presented themselves in that hot-bed of the Confederacy, in which he rendered valuable assistance to the loyal cause. He was present on Pratt street on that memorable 19th day of April, 1861, when the Sixth Mass. Infantry was fired upon by the mob of rebel sympathizers.

In 1854 he married Mary Frances Revere, a native of Baltimore. Three children were the fruit of the union, all of whom died in childhood, while Mrs. Gould did not long survive the birth of her last child.

His fine bass voice gained for him a position in the choir of the Baltimore Cathedral, and in time his musical talent caused him to be much sought after in other cities. In 1866 Mr. Gould abandoned newspaper work, and became a member of the Caroline Richings Opera Company, traveling with her for several years and visiting all the larger cities of the United States; and in 1870 he joined the Opera Company of which Clara Louise Kellogg was the head. In 1873, after having sung in opera for seven years, he became tired of the roving life and came back to his ancestral acres in Topsfield on which he lived till the close of his life.

He was elected town clerk in 1881, and after ten years of service, he retired from the office at his own request; he also served the town as assessor and treasurer. He was a member of the Essex County Agricultural Society, the Danvers Historical Society and the Topsfield Historical Society. In politics he was an ardent Republican, and for many years his tall form, with its crown of flowing white hair, was a prominent feature of the County and State Conventions in which his native town was represented. He held for many years the commission of Justice of the Peace, and latterly settled many of the estates of his deceased townsmen, while at the time of his death he was a trustee of several very large properties.

He was an upright and honest man, conscientious and faithful to the confidence intrusted to his keeping, and had the respect of his fellow citizens who will long revere his memory.

John Hood Gould died February 11, 1895.

REV. CHRISTOPHER SARGEANT.

A PAPER READ AT THE 165TH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE FIRST CHURCH IN

METHUEN, JANUARY 8, 1895.

BY C. H. T. MANN.

Concluded from Vol. 2, page 20.

Susanna, his wife, was the daughter of Nathaniel Peaslee, a wealthy citizen of Haverhill, who gave one of the Flag-gons belonging to the Communion set.

She was eighteen years old when the young Pastor brought her here to occupy that one pew in the meeting house, to listen to his long sermons, to join her sweet voice, long since with the angels, in hymns of praise to God, to be his loving helpmeet through fifty-six eventful years, the light and joy of his home and the dear mother of his twelve children. The pastor kept another book which he called "A Record of Persons Baptised." It contains the dates of the baptism of your ancestors from 1729 to 1786, nearly 1500 names, and giving the name of child and its father in full. There are a few notes in it which show that he was a close observer, for instance. In 1739 he wrote "Whole number baptised on this record to this time, which contains just 10 years is 251, whereof 126 are males and 125 females."

The record of the baptism of his own children begins with this entry:

Nov. 29, 1730. Nathanael Sargeant, my own son.

The baby lived but a few months for on Nov. 7, 1731 the name of another little boy is entered, as "Nathanael Peaslee Sargeant, my son." This one is named a little stronger for his maternal grandfather than the other one was, and he had a stronger hold on life. He was dismissed from this church to the Church in Haverhill in 1759. He was a lawyer and in 1775 appointed an associate justice of the supreme judicial Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and appointed Chief Justice in 1790, being the third chief justice after the Revolution, succeeding John Adams and Wm. Cushing, and being followed by Parsons, Shaw and other eminent men. April 4, 1734, with fatherly pride the pastor writes, "Abigail, my own daughter, and March 28, 1736, Susanna, named for her mother." Abigail married Ezekiel Hale of Newbury, Susanna married Symonds Baker* of Methuen. The next is May 28, 1738, Moses, who was closely followed by Elijah, January 27, 1739. Both of these sons were among the minute men who responded to the Lexington Alarm, the former in Capt. Jones' Co. and the latter in Major Samuel Bodwell's Co. Elijah was chosen a deacon in 1778 and continued in office until his death. His wife was Lydia Swan, daughter of Deacon Francis Swan of this church. Moses married Esther Runnels of Boxford. The next child was named Persis, baptised May 9, 1742, followed Dec. 11, 1743, by Mary, who married Ward Bailey of Bridgewater, and she Oct. 9, 1748, by my son Christopher Sargeant." There is another record of him on a mossy old stone next to his father's which reads, "Sacred to the memory of Christopher Sargeant. A. M., Attorney at law, aged 30 years.

The first little Persis died and on Jan. 6, 1750, another little Persis was baptised. She became the wife of Dr. Isaac Thom, and her children were Christopher Sargeant Thom, baptized Nov. 4, 1770.

Persis, baptized Dec. 18, 1774, died. Persis, June 11, 1779. Susanna, May 6, 1781.

Dr. Thom was an eminent physician who practiced in Derry, N. H. He was also the a magistrate, the first Postmaster of Derry, a charter member of the N. H. Medical Society, and one of the original proprietors of Andover Bridge.

In the spring of 1753 another little son who was christened Thomas, was added to the good man's family. His pilgrimage was short. He was succeeded July 25, 1756, by another son who, after the old time custom was also named Thomas. He grew to manhood, studied medicine with his brother-in-law, Dr. Thom, and practised in Chester, N. H. from 1777 to 1819 when he removed to Hartford in Canada. In addition to his own twelve children the pastor also baptized Elizabeth, Susanna, Christopher, Hannah, Moses and Asa, the six children of his son Moses, and Nathanael, Isaac Fox, Abigail, Lydia, Dorcas, Christopher and Elijah, the seven children of his son Elijah, and Nathanael, Symonds Epes, and Susanna, the three children of his daughter Susanna. These with the four little Thoms make twenty grandchildren, thirty-two in all of his own family whom he baptized in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost.

*It was Dr. Symonds Baker, who was for many years a physician in the South Parish of Andover. He died in 1815 at the age of eighty-two.

The years roll on—The Pastor is growing old. Of the fifty-nine members who started with him at the beginning of his ministry but few remain. The years weigh heavily upon him and at last he opens negotiations with the parish relative to his leaving the sacred desk. These negotiations seem to have dragged along through several years, for it was not till 1786 that he made his last entry in the records and his successor was ordained.

His discharge to the parish is a model document of its kind.

"In consideration of one hundred pounds lawful money this day granted to me, the subscriber, by the first Parish in said town, and relinquishing one-half of my estate from public taxes during my natural life, I do hereby discharge myself of any claims to my salary, or any part thereof, for the future, on account of my being the Gospel Minister of said Parish, and I do also relinquish my right in the Parsonage lands in said Parish, and do here signify that I will by no means obstruct the settlement of another Gospel Minister in said Parish after a regular manner, and upon such settlement will relinquish the Pastoral office if desired. So wishing you Divine direction in such an important concern, and that you may again be happily settled in peace, under the care of a Godly, faithful minister of Jesus Christ, which is the prayer of your loving Pastor,"

CHRISTOPHER SARGEANT.

No other document of any other pastor of this church ends in this way.

He was a loving pastor.

His spirit was like that of the Master and the beloved disciple, and this pastoral love, which neither time nor death can change, the precious possession of the forefathers, is the blessed heritage of this church to the end of time.

ANNISQUAM CHURCH NOTES.

By BERT EMERSON.

There is nothing to tell where the different pastors were born, educated or died, excepting the two who died during their ministry here.

The original church building, dedicated in 1828, stood till its condition was such that, at a meeting held March 31, 1730, it was voted, "that the sense of this meeting is that this meeting house be taken down and a new one built on its site by proprietors."

A new one, the present building, was erected, and Jan. 5, 1831, was dedicated. "The pews were all sold without exception in about two hours," Jan. 1.

The parish as first set off, included not only Annisquam, Bay View, and Lanesville, but the whole of this end of the cape, taking in "Sandy Bay," now Rockport; and taxes for the support of preaching were assessed on the real and personal property as now for town purposes.

There have been several seasons of longer or shorter duration, when there has been no stated supply.

The following is a list of the pastors with length of ministry:—

Benjamin Bradstreet, from 1728 to 1762, when he died May 31.

John Wyeth, from 1766 to 1768.

Obediah Parsons, from 1771 to 1779.

John Rogers was not settled but preached a year or two as a supply from 1780.

Here follows a period of unrest.

Ezra Leonard, now known as "Father Leonard," from 1804 to 1832 when he died April 22.

Here follows a period of varied supply.

John Harriman, from 1834 to 1837.

Geo. C. Leach, from 1837 to 1840.

Here follows a varied supply.

Maxy Barton Newell, 1842 to 1845.

J. A. Bartlett, 1845 to 1847.

B. H. Clark, 1847 to 1848.

Ezekiel W. Coffin, 1848 to 1853.

N. Gunnison, 1854 to 1857.

Emmons Partridge, 1857 to 1858.

L. L. Record, 1859 to 1862.

J. H. Tuller, 1863 to 1864.

J. H. Willis, 1865 to 1867.

Frederick A. Benton, 1868 to 1870.

William Hooper, 1871 to 1875.

Henry C. Leonard, 1876 to 1879.

Now come several years when the pulpit was supplied during the warm season by pastors from the Gloucester churches and others.

J. Harry Holden (of Tuft's Divinity School), 1887.

Prof. Harmon, (of Tuft's Divinity School), 1888, occasionally.

L. O. Williams, (of Tuft's Divinity School), 1889.

Geo. W. Penniman, 1890 to 1895.

REV. SAMUEL WIGGLESWORTH.

"Ipswich, September 3, 1768. Departed this Life, the Reverend Mr. Samuel Wigglesworth, in the 80th Year of his Age, and the close of the 54 of his Ministry—a Gentlemen of uncommon Powers of Mind—a quick and clear Apprehension, lively Fancy, fruitful Invention, sound Judgment, and tenacious Memory—was enriched with a great Treasure of valuable Knowledge, especially that with which the Pastors after God's own Heart are to feed their Flocks—was mighty in the Scriptures—an enlightening and animating Preacher of the Truth as it is in Jesus. He thoro'ly understood the Doctrines of Grace; believed them firmly, taught them clearly, and Holiness and good Works in Connection with, and as necessarily resulting from the cordial Entertainment of them. And he not only preached the Truths and Duties of Christianity, but exemplarily exhibited them in his Life—And it was no small Part of this worthy Gentleman's Character, that he managed and administered the Affairs of the Church and Congregation over which he presided with great Wisdom and Prudence—His Conversation was peculiarly pleasant, instructive and entertaining—his Friendship cordial, Steady, and lasting—in his domestic Relations, was a careful and tender Husband, a wife as well as affectionate Father.—On Account of these and other known Branches of his Character, he lived much esteemed, and his Departure is most justly as well as generally lamented.—His Remains were interred on Tuesday after his Death with great Decency and Respect. We can with nothing better for the bereaved Widow, than that she may find her Maker to be her Husband; and for the Children, which are four Sons and four Daughters, than that they inherit much of the good Spirit which was in their Father and in their other pious Ancestors."—Essex Gazette, Sept. 6-13, 1768.

KINGSBURY.

Henry Kingsbury was commoner in 1641, and one of Major Denison's subscribers, 1648. He came with Gov. Winthrop in 1630, and appears to have been one of his family. In writing to his wife "From aboard the Arabella, riding at the Cowes, March 28, 1630," Gov. Winthrop says: "Henry Kingsbury hath a child or two in the Talbot sick of the measles, but like to do well." After their arrival, in writing to his son John from Charlestown, July 23, 1630, he again mentions him. He seems not to have remained long in Ipswich. He sold a farm of thirty-two acres to Thomas Safford, February 8, 1648. He possessed a six acre lot which he sold to Edmund Bridges, who sold the same to Anthony Potter and Elder John Whipple, April 4, 1660.

KNIGHT.

Mr. William Knight was a commoner, 1641; received a grant of two hundred acres of land in 1639; began to preach in Topsfield in July 1641; and died, it is supposed, in 1655.—Farmer.

Alexander Knight possessed land in 1636, (See Samuel Hall;) was a commoner, 1641; his will is dated February 10, 1663, and proved March 29, 1664; witnesses, John Whipple, James Chute, (who wrote the will,) and Robert Lord. He bequeathed his house and houselot and planting land, &c. to his wife during her life. The house with thirty-two acres of land was appraised at £129. Total estate £137, 18, 11, by Walter Roper and Francis Wainwright. The will bears a seal.

The will mentions a son Nathaniel, (born October 16, 1657,) his wife, Hannah, and three minor daughters, Hannah, Sarah, Mary. He appoints his wife and William English of Boston, executors.

Robert Knight and Abigail his wife had Joseph born Feb. 27, 1690.

KENDRICK.

John Kendrick married, according to Farmer, Lydia Cheney, November 12, 1657. He had a share in Plum Island, &c., 1664, and had a seat assigned to him in the meeting-house, 1700. He was fined six shillings "for his offense in the thick woods," June, 1674. He had Hannah born Sept., 18, 1661, died Dec. 20; Sarah, born July 11, 1666; Lydia, born Dec. 4, 1669, died Dec., 1689; Katharine, born June 16, 1674; John, born Dec. 7, 1678; George, born May 1 1681. Granted to John Kindricke to fell 8 white oaks, June 17, 1661.

KILHAM.

Austin Kilham took the freeman's oath in Boston, June 2, 1641. His will, in which the name is written Killim, is dated June 2, and that of widow, Alice, July 3, 1667.

Their sons were Daniel, who had a wife, and Lot; daughters, Elisabeth Hutton, Sarah Fisk, and a granddaughter, Mary Killim.

Thomas Fisk, probably a son-in-law was witness to his will.

Daniel Kilham², son of Austin¹, was a voter in town affairs, 1679. He was a member of the artillery company, 1645. He had the style of "senior" in 1679, and also in 1707, when his name was spelt "Killum"; he is on a list of commoners.

Daniel Kilham³ had a seat assigned to him in the meeting-house in 1700. He was called "junior," March 10, 1673, when his daughter Mary was born. He had also, William, born July, 1680, and Hannah, born Jan. 15, 1682.

KENNING.

Jane Kenning, lately deceased, December 1, 1654, when she possessed "a dwelling house and about half an acre of land, being near the meeting-house, having John Knowlton, south west, Goodman Prichett, north west side; John Wyat northeast end of it."

KENT.

Cornelius Kent had the fifth lot of 18 feet front granted to him by the town, "between Samuel Ordway's Shop and ye Toun Bridge," March 23, 1692-3.

Mary Kent, wife of Cornelius, died April 25, 1671.

KEERKE.

Henry Keerke "hath liberty to settle in the Toun and make use of his trade of a Currier," February 14 1664.

THE NAME OF CROSS.

"The Queen's ships, fourteen in number, Capt. Sir Walter Raleigh, 600 tons, War-spice. Repulse, 700 tons, Capt. Sir Wm. Monson, with the Earl of Essex on board. Swiftsure, 400 tons, Capt. Sir Robert Cross."

"Every captain sailed with sealed orders, which were not to be opened until after they passed Cape St. Vincent, and this is the first record in history of English ships receiving such orders. On being opened the general rendezvous was found to be CADIZ."

"A dash into the harbor being determined on, a contention arose curiously who was to lead the way. Asserting his commission, the Earl of Essex claimed the honor."

"It was ultimately arranged that the next morning, the ships that were the fleetest sailors, and drew the lightest draught, under Lord Howard, Raleigh, Southwell Vere, Carew and Cross, with a few others should dash in and perform this service by driving from its moorings the Spanish fleet of fifty sail which lay across the bay."

Camden whose name is on our arms, says "there were sixty English gentlemen who were knighted for bravery on this occasion." Of course, one of the sixty was Sir Robert; and this same Earl of Essex knighted

"The deeds of long descended ancestor

Are but by grace of imputation ours."

Chas. R. Cross of the Mass. Institute of Technology, Boston, writes:

"You will be interested to know that I visited Charleage (now Charlewich) a few years ago, 1888, for an afternoon. The little village is about five miles from Bridgewater. The old church, dating from the 13th century or earlier, is situated at the very top of a steep hill, close by the Rectory. Unfortunately the Rector was away so I could not talk with him. The church is of stone ivy-covered, with a painting copied from the one in the National Gallery over the altar. A list of the Rectors was on a memorial slab; among them the name of Francis Cross, 1654. I found in the church-yard the tomb of Wm. Cross, the father of Sir Robert, also of this Francis. There is this inscription:

Here lies buried with W.
 Son Francis Cross on earth beloved of me, and by Gods grace hath now a place w Christ.

Wm.'s son Robert is buried elsewhere. There are no persons of the name on the Parish-list.

FIRST AMERICAN CASTING.

The first piece of iron casting made in America is a crude looking iron kettle, which hangs on a crane in the city hall of Lynn.

It is represented in the accompanying cut reproduced from Cassier's Magazine.

The kettle was cast at the Saugus iron works in 1642, probably in the autumn, and was given to Thomas Hudson, as the consideration for 60 acres of land, comprising a portion of the iron works property.

This Thomas Hudson was, undoubtedly, the younger brother of that name, of Henry (Hendrik) Hudson, the eminent English navigator.

The kettle was kept as an heirloom in the direct descent from Thomas Hudson for over a century, when it passed into the female line, and thence back into the possession of John E. Hudson of Boston, a direct descendant, who presented it to the city of Lynn.

. PERLEY.

At Ipswich, Nov. 19, 1858, died Miss Sarah Perley, aged 85 years, 11 months, 8 days. She was the survivor of a family of eight children, whose united ages amounted to 636 years, the average of which is about 80 years. The first and last three died on Friday and were buried on the Sabbath. All of them spent their lives in connection in agricultural pursuits. There were four sons and four daughters, and all except one son, spent their lives in Essex County, Mass.

QUERIES.

54. Wanted the parentage of Martha Marsh of Bradford who married Jonathan Wallingford, in 1741-2, and also of Mercy Rea who married Francis Nelson of Rowley, in 1702.

55. Did the first Thomas Howlett (Ensign Thomas Howlett) live and die in Ipswich? If so, in what part of the town was the house and land which he owned at his death located?

Marietta Clarke.

NEW BOOK.

The History of the Kimball, Kimball, Kymbould Family, an octavo volume of 800 to 1000 pages is expected to go to press soon. A few more subscribers are needed. Address Prof. S. P. Sharples, 13 Broad st., Boston, Mass.

Prof. B. A. Gould, Cambridge, has just published a complete and exhaustive history of the Gould Family from Zacheus Gould the immigrant. It is highly complimented by those acquainted with such works for its deep and critical research.

ESSEX-MERRIMACK BRIDGE.

A CHAIN-BRIDGE, THE FIRST OF THE KIND IN THE COUNTRY, TWO BRIDGES SIDE BY SIDE.

Sometime ago there came into the possession of the Boston Globe a copy of a very rare and therefore valuable book, printed in Charleston, S. C., in 1794, by Harrison and Hume, for the author, John Drayton, a citizen of that city. Mr. Drayton toured through New England, and made the following comment about this county and "Chain bridge." The engraving is also a product of the same book. Mr. Drayton says:—

"The whole way from Boston to Portsmouth is a thickly populated and well cultivated country. The road is perhaps one of the finest in the United States. You pass from farm to farm, from village to village, and from town to town in quick succession. Some few miles from Boston is a small village called Lynn, celebrated for the vast quantities of shoes made there for exportation. The shoemakers' shops are almost equal to the number of dwelling houses in the town. The road leads through the towns of Salem, Beverly, Ipswich and Newburyport, which for riches and commerce have a right to be considered as some of the most respectable towns in America.

"Two or three miles beyond Newburyport is a beautiful wooden bridge of one arch, thrown across the Merrimac river, whose length is 160 feet, and whose height is 40 feet above the level of high water. For beauty and strength it has certainly no equal in America, and I doubt whether as a wooden bridge there be any to compare with it elsewhere. The strength of the bridge is much increased above the common mode in use by pieces of timber placed upon it and shouldered into each other. They run upon the bridge in three lines parallel with the length of the bridge and with each other, so as to make two distinct passageways for carriages. These braces are some feet in height, and are connected on the top by crosspieces, affording sufficient room for carriages to pass underneath without inconvenience. It is said that the upper work has as great a tendency to support the weight of the bridge, as the sleepers upon which it is built. I had not time to stay there longer than five minutes, so must be excused in a sketch which I have taken of it, and that was not done upon the spot, but only by recollection. If in so doing I should persuade others to inquire more particularly respecting it, and to adopt what may be good in its mechanism, my object will be gratified. The river over which it is built is subject to freshets; it is therefore high from the general current of the water, and as being proper for that, I apprehend would not be unsuitable to similar rivers in Carolina".

It is a little strange that the gentleman did not notice the chain support of this bridge. It may be that the chains were covered from view to protect them from the weather; it may be that his only view was from the inside of his stage-coach, and very much circumscribed.

The following is the initial history of the structure.

THE SUBSCRIPTION TO STOCK.

"Newbury Port, May 30, 1791.

"Whereas a bridge over the Merrimack River from the land of the Hon. Jonathan Greenleaf in Newbury to Deer Island and from said Island to Salisbury would be of very extensive utility by affording a safe Conveyance to Carriages, Teams, and Travellers at all Seasons of the year and at all Times of the Tide."

"We the subscribers, do agree that as soon as a convenient Number of Persons have subscribed to this or a similar writing. We will present a petition to the Hon'ble General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, praying for an act incorporating into a body politic the subscribers to said Writing with liberty to build such bridge and a right to demand a toll equal to that received at Malden bridge and on like terms and if such an Act shall be obtained, then we severally agree each with the others that we will hold in the said bridge the several shares set against our respective names the whole in two hundred shares being divided and that we will pay such sums of money at such times and in such manners, as, by the said proposed corporation shall be directed and required."

To this paper were the following signers:

S. L. Tyler, 20 shares; Dudley A. Tyng, Newbury, 15; Stephen Hooper for Miss Sarah Roberts, Newbury, Nath'l Carter, Jr., Tristram Dalton, Timothy Dexter, Edward Rand, George Searle, and Joseph Tyler, each of Newburyport, and M. Brown, 10 each; Andrew and B. Frothington, and Thomas Cary, Newburyport, and W. Combs, 6 each; Wm. Wyer and Stephen Hooper as guardian to Thomas W. Hooper, Newbury, 5 each; Richard Pike and Joseph Swazey, Newburyport, E. Sawyer, James Prince, Thomas White and Sam Bailey, 4 each; Joshua Toppan, Joseph Cutter and Hannah Dummer, Newburyport, 3 each; Elizabeth Boberts, Wm. Teel, Wm. H. Prout, Wm. H. Prout, Jr., Tristram Coffin and Steph. Cross, of Newburyport, Nathaniel Healy, Hampton Falls, True Kimball, and Samuel Gerrish, Newbury, and Jacob Brown, 2 each; Moses Hoyt, Daniel Horton, Rob't Long, Wm. Ingalls, and John Mycall, Newburyport, S. Emerson, E. Wheelwright, E. Titcomb, J. Burroughs, Jere. Pearson and Jon. Marsh, 1 each.

Here are the requisite 200 shares. A petition was sent to the General Court in 1791, and notice was served on the town of Newbury June 13. Nov. 4, the town voted to oppose its construction, and Nov. 30, reconsidered the vote and Dec. 15 reconsidered the reconsideration, and Newbury's representative was instructed to oppose it. The charter, however, was granted and in seven months the bridge was completed, Nov. 26, 1792. Timothy Palmer, of Newburyport, a native of Boxford, was the engineer.

This bridge was built as the "Essex-Merrimack Bridge," but has been known far and wide as "Chain-bridge." The one crossing the river near the present railroad bridge was the "Newburyport Bridge;" was chartered in 1826 and finished in 1827. Both bridges became public highways Aug. 4, 1868.

The frontispiece, the favor of the Boston Globe, is a good representation of the bridge when it was not quite a year old. The Salisbury side has been replaced by a new modern structure, the Newburyport end is a chain bridge still, and an object of much curiosity.

KINSMAN.

Robert Kinsman had a house lot of one acre, granted him, near where the South Meetinghouse now stands, in 1637. He was commoner, 1641; one of Major Denison's subscribers, 1648; a commoner entitled to a share in Plum Island, &c., 1664. His will is dated January 25, 1664, and he died three days later,—January 28, 1664. He left a son Robert; five daughters, Mary, wife of Ursewel Wardwell, Sarah, wife of Samuel Younglove, Hannah, Martha, wife of Jacob Foster. Tabitha, who in 1666, married William Howard. He also mentions Isaac and Sarah Ringe (who were the children of his daughter, Mary Wardwell, by her first husband, Daniel Ringe;) and his cousin Richard Nicholls. He purchased June 7, 1642, of John North, a house and lot on the south side of the river; also a planting lot upon the neck, near Labor-in-vain, so called.

27th day of July, 1638. Memorand, that: Richard Lumpkin hath sold unto John Tuttle one house and a house lot, with certain other lands, one house lot lying near the great cove of the town river, having a house lot now in possession of William Avery on the South west; Robert Kinsman's house lot on the north west; the town river on the south east; a house lot now in possession of Samuel Hall on the east, also upon the said lot one dwelling house formerly built by Richard Brown now of Newbury and by him sold unto Mr. Richard Saltonstall, by whom it was sold unto the said Richard Lumpkin.

Robert Kinsman², son of Robert¹, has the title of Quartermaster. He was appointed to that office in 1691, in a company of which Thomas Wade was Captain and Samuel Ingalls, Lieutenant. He took the Freeman's oath March 31, 1674, with ten young men of the town. He had one and a half shares in Plum Island, &c., in 1664; was a voter in town affairs in 1679. He came into full communion with the church, February 22, 1673; was selectman, 1675; tithingman, 1677; had horses on the common, 1697; had a seat appointed to him at the table in the meeting house, 1700.

Mr. Robert Kinsman had the sixteenth lot of 18 feet laid out between Samuel Ordway's shop and ye Town Bridge, beginning by ye Bridge and so by ye River side, March 23, 1692-3. He subscribed 18 shillings towards the bell. 1699. He died 1712, February 19. He had Mary, born Dec. 21, 1657; Sarah, born Feb. 19, 1659; Thomas, born April 15, 1662; Joanna, born April 25, 1665; Eunice, born Jan. 24, 1670; Joseph, born Dec. 20, 1673, Pelatiah, born Nov. 10, 1680; Margaret, born July 24, 1668.

LANGTON.

Roger Langton took the freeman's oath at Boston, March 4, 1634-5, where the name is spelt "Lankton." He was commoner, 1641; and subscriber to Major Denison's Compensation, 1648. He possessed a house in Brook Street in 1655.

LAKEMAN.

Richard Lakeman was commoner in 1707.

William Lakeman died January 24, 1707.

The inventory of the estate of William Lakeman, February 24, 1706-7, gives a total of £454, 9, 3. Among the items were "a house bought of Major Francis Wainwright, £45. Fishing Shallop, £60, 10. Housing and one acre and half belonging, £105."

The will of William Lakeman is dated Dec'r 11, 1706, and was proved August 24, 1707. He bequeaths to his wife Margery, the use of all his estate during her widowhood. He gives to his eldest daughter, Anis Roberts, five pounds, "having given liberally unto her before;" to his son Richard, twenty shillings, in consideration of what I have formerly given him; to his daughter, El'sabeth Downs, and her children, five pounds; to son John, twenty shillings, having been at the charge of a trade for him; son William, ten pounds, he having no trade; sons Jonas(?) and Hercules, to each five pounds, in consideration that I have given them trades; son Silvanus, five pounds when of age; son Solomon, thirty pounds in case he will live with his mother and abide under her jurisdiction until he arrive at ye age of twenty-one years, but if he will learn a trade, then ten pounds. He bequeaths a legacy to his youngest daughter, Sarah, if she arrive at ye age of eighteen years, and to each of his grandchildren that are now born, ten shillings.

NOTED AND QUOTED.

The following quotation from preached Before King Edward VI," Bishop Latimer's "First Sermon March 8, 1549, is a good illustration of the meaning of this word and shows the primitive manners and customs of those times:

"My father was a yeoman and had no lands of his own, only he had a farm of 3 or 4 pound by year at the uttermost, and hereupon he tilled so much as kept half a dozen men. He had walk for 100 sheep, and my mother milked 30 kine. He was able and did find the king a harness, with himself and his horse, while he came to the place that he should receive the king's wages. I can remember that I buckled his harness when he went unto Blackheath field. He kept me to school, or else I had not been able to have preached before the king's majesty now. He married my sisters with 5 pound, or twenty nobles apiece, so that he brought them up in godliness and fear of God. He kept hospitality for his poor neighbors, and some alms he gave to the poor. And all this he did of the said farm, where he that now hath it payeth 16 pound by year or more and is not able to do anything for his prince, for himself nor for his children, or give a cup of drink to the poor."

C. W. Woodhouse of Burlington, Vt., has received from the estate of his father, the late Dr. Charles Woodhouse, of Rutland, the original letter written by Ethan Allen announcing the capture of Fort Ticonderoga.

John Briant had Mary, born 12 May, 1746; Jonathan, born 13 January 1748; Elizabeth, born 10 Nov. 1749; Sarah, born 14 May, 1753; Lydia, born 15 June, 1755; Benjamin, born 6 October, 1757.

ANDOVER CHURCH.

IPSWICH AND ROWLEY INTERESTED.—BOTH AIDED IN THE WORK
250 YEARS AGO.

Andover may seem distant to us, but in the days of yore it was next door neighbor; it was the western boundary of Agawam—the Eve-mother of the teeming thousands of northern and middle Essex county.

It was generally stipulated when a plantation was assigned, that a church should be organized and edifice built within a stated period. The church was the prime object; all other organizations must subserve it, and all good men and neighboring sister towns were called upon to aid in the ceremony.

Thus we find in this case Ipswich and Rowley not only assisting, but actually doing the work upon their own soil and with their own men.

The North church of North Andover and the church at Haverhill, says the Boston Globe, were organized on the same day, October 4, 1645; and the exercises for the two were held at Rowley. John Woodbridge was ordained pastor for Andover and John Ward for Haverhill.

The settlement of Haverhill had begun about 1641, and that of Andover shortly after. In September, 1644, the new towns were so far established that each desired to organize a church. A meeting of the ministers and delegates from the neighboring churches with the proposed members and the two pastors elect was held at Rowley.

A part of the proceedings consisted of questioning the proposed members as to their religious faith. As most of the colonists who were to sign the respective church covenants had previously been members in good standing of other churches, they objected to such questioning, and were so strenuous in their opposition to it that the assembled ministers refused to proceed and nothing was accomplished.

The difficulty was but temporary. The excitement of the parties subsided; the members either withdrew their objections or the ministers became more indulgent, and in October a year later the organization was effected

Andover and Haverhill in 1645 were frontier settlements, difficult of access, and with scanty accommodations for entertaining any large number of people. Rowley had been settled for six years, and had a meeting house suitable for the ordination principal compiler of the code of laws adopted by the colony in 1641, and known as the Body of Liberties, and the author of one of the famous books of the time, entitled "The Simple Cobbler of Agawam."

John Woodbridge, who was to be settled at Andover, was the nephew of that celebrated minister, Thomas Parker, of Newbury. He was the son-in-law of Thomas Dudley, gov-services, and moreover was a central point. Though distant some 15 miles from Haverhill, and somewhat more from Andover, it could be reached comfortably from Ipswich and Newbury; and it was from these places that most of the ministers and guests were to come.

John Ward, who was to be settled at Haverhill, was the son of the Rev. Nathaniel Ward, of Ipswich the error of the colony for the third time in 1645. He was brother-in-law of Mistress Anne Bradstreet, the wife of Simon Bradstreet, then one of the principal magistrates, and afterwards governor of the colony.

That gathering at Rowley in October, 1645, must have been a brilliant one. Besides the near relatives of John Ward and John Woodbridge, one may be sure that Benjamin Woodbridge was there, a younger brother of John, and one of the first graduates of Harvard in the class of 1642. Possibly Gov. John Winthrop was also there, for he was a cousin of John Ward.

John Woodbridge continued as pastor only two years, and then returned to England, where the success of Cromwell and parliament had opened an inviting field for Puritan preachers.

The first meeting house, which is supposed to have stood near the old North burying ground, lasted about 25 years. It was superseded about 1669 by a more pretentious one, having galleries and a bell.

The second minister was Rev. Francis Dane, whose pastorate lasted for nearly 50 years, 1648 to 1697. During the pastorate of Mr. Dane Andover became a town of note in the colony. Among the distinguished parishioners of Mr. Dane were Simon Bradstreet and his wife and their son, Col. Dudley Bradstreet.

In 1662, when Charles II was restored to the throne, Simon Bradstreet, then a resident of Andover, and a member of the church, was selected to go to England with Rev. John Norton to treat with Charles and secure his favor toward the colony.

In the time of the witchcraft delusion, 1692, Mr. Dane was one of the persons suspected, one of his daughters was sentenced, and three of his parishioners were hanged.

The third pastor was Thomas Barnard, who, settled first as a colleague with Mr. Dane, after his death continued as sole pastor until 1718. It was during his ministry in 1709 that the South parish was organized and a new church established there.

The third meeting house of the North parish was erected about 1711, not far from the site of the present one.

From 1707, the parsonage having burned, the residence of Rev. Thomas Barnard, as well as that of his successors, Rev. John Barnard and Rev. William Symmes, until about 1807, was in the Bradstreet house. This house, it is believed, was erected about 1667, by Simon Bradstreet.

After the death of Mrs. Bradstreet, 1672, and the removal of Simon Bradstreet to Salem, the house was the home of their son, Col. Dudley Bradstreet. It stands a short distance from the old burying ground, and not far from the old parsonage lot.

The fourth meeting house was built about 1753, and after standing for more than 75 years was succeeded by the present house of worship, erected in 1836. The clock, which was the gift of Mr. Benjamin Barker in 1762, was saved and repaired and placed in the new edifice.

Under the ministry of Rev. Bailey Loring, 1810-1850, the church became Unitarian in its faith, and has so continued.

The later ministers have been Rev. Francis C. Williams, 1850-1856; Rev. Chas. C. Vinal, 1857-1870, and Rev. John H. Clifford, 1871-1883.

The present pastor, Rev. Charles Noyes, ordained in 1884, is a descendant of Rev. James Noyes of Newbury, who doubtless assisted at the organization of the church in 1645.

His will is dated June 12, and the inventory of his estate is rendered in July, 1671. He left a wife named Anne, and two sons, John and Joseph, who were his executors. The Rev'd William Hubbard and the Rev'd John Rogers were the witnesses. He appoints his friends, Major Denison and Mr. William Hubbard, overseers. He gives the income of his property, which consisted principally of farming lands, to his wife, with reversion to his two sons, with the exception of a legacy of £20 to Mary Hungerford, who appears to have been a domestic servant, to be paid her on her marriage, provided she remains with his wife until that happens. The will is in the hand writing of Mr. Hubbard the historian. The seal contains the device of a martlet, and a motto which is illegible. In it the name is spelt "Leigh"; but in the inventory, which was rendered by his sons, it is "Lee."

1648. Granted that John Lee shall enjoy all the profits of the highway and all the common ground lying at the foot of Heartbreak hill to him and his heirs forever, he or they always maintaining the highway from Rocky Hill to William Lamson his lott.

Thomas Lee with Alice Lee, his wife, sell land to Symon Tompson, May 2, 1659. He had previously sold commonage to John Lee. He signs the deed with a mark. His will is dated March 19, 1661, and he died March 23. He was eighty-two years old at his death. The following is extracted from his will: "My mind and will is that Alice, my beloved wife, shall have the sole disposing of my farm and the rest of my estate upon these considerations, that is to say, That my grandson Richard Lee shall live and abide with her until he shall be two-and-twenty years of age; then my whole estate be divided and Richard shall have an equal share with my wife, only my wife shall have the use of my now dwellinghouse during the time of her life, unless she shall be willing that they both may live together. But if my wife should marry, my mind is that she shall have five pounds every year out of my estate during the time of her life, and the above mentioned Richard to have my estate at the age of twenty-and-two. My mind also is that if my wife shall continue a widow and enjoy such a share of my estate as is aforesaid, that after her decease, my aforesaid Grandchild shall inherit all that estate she shall leave, twenty pounds being excepted which I give and bequeathe to my Daughter Susanna now in England, or her children if any of them shall be here to demand the same within ye space of seven years from this present time.

"My will is that Richard, my grandchild, shall not have liberty to Alien, sell or bargain my farme, or any part thereof, but that it be reserved entire to him and his heirs.

"If my wife shall not think meet that Richard my Grandchild should abide with her for the pSENT, shee shall have liberty to dispose of him to some good service till he shall come to bee at the age of two and twenfy."

The witnesses of the will were Richard Brabrook and James Gregory.

It was signed with a mark and seal.

1674, June. The selectmen are informed that some fences are set up at or about Richard Leighs land web enroach on the common.

At a meeting of the seven men the 13th of March, 1650, it was granted to Thomas Leigh that the land that is laid out to him by Thomas Bishop and Simon Tomson in exchange for another part of his farm he shall enjoy to him and his heirs.

AN IMPORTANT HISTORY.

Miss Frances M. Caulkins' History of New London, edition of 1860, was first published in 1852, and only a part of the edition bound up at that time. In 1860 the remaining sheets were bound, with additional matter, bringing the work to that date. The merit of the book attracted the attention of the best historians and genealogists of the day. It also proved popular with the reading public. The edition was soon exhausted, and for thirty years such rare copies as could be picked up have furnished the supply. Numerous instances of refusal to sell at $25 have been known. The book is rich in genealogical data, and early church history and customs in New England have been faithfully portrayed.

Among the noteworthy chapters are the accounts of the Rogerene Baptists, the burning of New London by Benedict Arnold, the battle of Groton Heights and the massacre of the heroic garrison, and the history of whaling at this port—ranking second in the world in this enterprise.

There are several references to Ipswich and Rowley in the work and extended notice of the younger Winthrop, the Denisons, the Pequots, matters of lively interest to all readers.

It is a reprint, revised and enlarged; seven hundred and twelve pages, octavo, bound in extra cloth. Price in cloth, $5; buckram $5.50. H. D. Utley, Publisher, 153 State street, New London, Conn.

AHATON, William, a Christian Indian who lived at Punkapog in 1675, and was a principal man of that station. In the consternation that then prevailed, the Punkapogs were ordered to leave their dwellings and repair to Dorchester. Capt. Brattle with an armed force was directed to see the order executed. This done, "the court, after which they had spoken with William Ahaton, and others of their principal men, received such satisfaction from them that they were all returned back to their habitations, except three or four men that were suspected." He was 70 years old in 1672. [Mss. of Hon. D. Gookin]. —Drake's Indian Biography, p. 11. See Notes; p. 24. See Nahaton.

ANDREW, known also by the name of Pooky John, lived in the vicinity of Amesbury upon the Merrimac, 1677. He belonged to a small party of about twenty, who made daily inroads upon the inhabitants about in this quarter. As this party was led by one Symon, the particulars will be found under that head. —Ms. doc. (Drake says), —Drake's Indian Biography, p. 20.

BLACK, William, called also the Manatahqua, was Sachem of Sagus, now Lynn, and vicinity, when the English settled about there in 1630. His father lived in Swampscot, and was also a Sagamore, but probably was dead before the English settled in the country.* A traveler in this then [1633, Mr. William Wood; who wrote the N. England Prospect] wilderness world, thus notices William, as possessing Nahant: "One Black-william an Indian Duke, out of his generosity gave this place in general to the plantation of Saugus, so that no other can appropriate it to himself." He was a great friend to the whites, but his friendship was repaid, as was that of many others of that and even later times. There was a man by the name of Walter Bagnall, "a wicked fellow", who had much wronged the Indians,† was killed near the mouth of the Saco river, probably by some of those whom he had defrauded. This was in October, 1631. As some vessels were upon the eastern coast in search of pirates, in January, 1633, they put in at Richman's island, where they fell in with Black-William. This was the place where Bagnall had been killed about two years before, but whether he had anything to do with it, does not appear, nor do I find that any one, even his murderers, pretended he was in any way implicated, but out of revenge for Bagnall's death, these pirate hunters hanged Black-William.* On the contrary it was particularly mentioned† that Bagnall was killed by Squidrayset and his men, some Indians belonging to that part of the country.

*HISTORY OF NEW ENGLAND [Hubbard], p. 32.

†WINTHROP'S JOURNAL, I, 62, 63.

It is believed that this chief married a daughter of Passaconaway. See that head.—Drake's Indian Biography. p. 57.

FAVOR OF WELLINGTON POOL, ESQ.

Dear REGISTER: Yours in relation to "Epitaphs in the Fairfield Cemetery" is at hand. In 1878, I copied them and they were published. I send you a rescript:—

"Here lies buried ye body—of the Honourable William Fairfield, Esq:—sometime speaker—of the House—of Representatives;—and for many years—a Deacⁿ of ye church—in Wenham, and Repr—esentative for s^d Town—who died Dec^r 18th, 1742—in ye 81st year of his age.

Here lyes ye Body of—Mrs Esther Fairfield,—wife to Mr William—Fairfield, Aged about—55 years, Dec^d Jan^y—ye 21st. 1722-3.

Here lyes ye —Body of William—Fairfield, who—died October—ye 24th 1691, Aged 7—Days.

Here lies ye —Body of John—Whatley who—died Septem^r ye —15th 1716 Aged—18 months.

Here lies buried—the body of—Sarah Fairfield—who died—Feby 6th 1705—in ye 18th year—of Her Age.

Here lyes ye—Body of Tabatha—Fairfield who—Died October—ye 7th 1717 Aged—21 years.

Lydia the—Daughter—of Mr Benjamin—and Lydia—Fairfield who—died August—15th 1748 Aged—five years.

Here lyes ye Body of—Mrs Eunice Fairfield—Wife to Mr. Josiah—Fairfield, Dec^d July—ye 25th 1730—In ye 27th year—of her age.

Here lies Buried—the Body of Mrs—Lydia the wife of— Mr Benjamin Fairfield—who died Sept^r 6—1752 in the 40th—year of Her age.

The foregoing are all of the epitaphs to the Fairfield family.

The oldest inscription in town known to me is the one in memory of William Fairfield who died “1691 Aged 7—Days”— The stone has fallen down since the inscription was copied and now lies upon the ground broken into four pieces.

There are several other graves (of the Woodbury family) enclosed with stone posts and chains in a small oblong rectangle.

In 1811, Benjamin Fairfield and others sold the farm to David Woodbury “With all the privileges except the burying ground on the homestead farm, that being disposed of by Dea. William Fairfield by will with a passage way to and from said Burying ground. as occasion may require.”

There is an old Tomb in the Fairfield Burying ground in which are said to have been deposited the remains of Benjamin Fairfield and his two wives, his sister Mrs. Griffin and his son Joseph.

The inscriptions to the Woodbury family above named are as follows, viz:

“Sacred--To the Memory of—Harriet Matilda,— Wife of—Mr. William Bomer,—and Daughter of—Mr. David Woodbury—who died—Dec. 12, 1836,—Aged 27 years.”

“Sacred—To the Memory of—Mark Stanwood—who died May 25, 1795, on—his passage from Jamaica —to Newbury Port, aged 25.—Maria Woodbury,—died May 25, 1802, aged 10 mos.—Sally P. Woodbury,—died Mar. 24, 1816, aged 9 mos.—Charlotte Woodbury.—died March 2, 1817,—aged 19 years.—Betsy Woodbury,—died June 4, 1832—aged 57 years,—wife of Mr. David Woodbury,—Abel Symons, who—was supposed to have been lost—October 1831, on his passage—from Boston to Barbados.—aged 29 years.”

“David Woodbury
Born
Feb. 8, 1776
Died
Feb. 16, 1853.”

Only three inscriptions can be found in the “Old Burying Ground” in Wenham (bearing the name of Fairfield) they are as follows, viz:

“Here lyes ye body of—Sarah Fairfield—Wife to Walter—Fairfield decd Dec^r —ye 18th 1710—in ye 71st year of her age.”

[This is the oldest inscription to be found in the “Ground”. The stone is very badly cracked and will last but little longer.]

“In Memory of—Mrs. Sarah Fairfield—Relict of—Doctor William Fairfield—who died—Feb. 7, 1814 Æt, 81.”

ANSWER.

54. The name Rea is an error. She was Mercy, seventh child of John Roy and his wife Elizabeth Phipps of Charlestown, Massachusetts, and was baptized January 7, 1675.

Roy was a native of Scotland. His inventory in his will shows a handsome estate. His wife Elizabeth, born 23 April 1643, was the first child of Solomon and Elizabeth Phipps of Charlestown. Mrs. Roy was admitted to the church 30 January 1669-70.

Solomon Phipps was admitted to the church 15 November 1641-2. His wife Elizabeth was admitted 15 March 1642. She died 25 July 1671, aged 52 years; see Wyman's Charlestown Genealogy, pages 696 and 826.

NO. 6.

THE PERLEY HOUSE.

The interest that attaches to the house, shown in the frontispiece, is awakened by the knowledge of the fact that John Perley, Esq., who by his will bestowed liberal gifts upon the town of Georgetown and Linebrook Parish in Ipswich, was born there.

The house was no doubt built by Samuel Perley, whose father was Samuel, of Essex, and whose grandfather was Allan, the immigrant ancestor of the Perley family and proprietor of a house-lot now occupied by the residence of Thomas Banner, Washington street, Ipswich.

Mr. Perley occupied the land where the house stood (a little west of the present residence of David Eri Perley in Rowley) previous to his marriage with Miss Cummings, in 1694. The house, then, was built probably during the period 1690-4, and was ready furnished for the business of housekeeping, at the time of his marriage. There were born Serjeant David Perley in 1702, and his son John in 1737 and the latter's son John, the liberal donor, in 1782.

The house is faithfully shown in the picture as it appeared only a few days before it was razed in 18—. It would be well for the present owner of the historic site to erect some suitable monument to commemorate the place of the notable birth. The following is quoted from Perley's Ipswich history in "History of Essex County," 1888:

"The notice of this (the Linebrook) church would be very incomplete without reference to the society's liberal benefactor, John Perley, Esq. He died May 11, 1860, and by will placed in trust '$7000 as a perpetual fund, the income of which shall be paid to the Orthodox Congregational Society, Linebrook Parish in the towns of Ipswich and Rowley, for the support of preaching and a Sabbath school in said society annually, while said society has a settled minister.'

"Mr. Perley was born September 3, 1782, in Rowley. Becoming of age, he went to live with his uncle (afterwards Deacon) Philemon Foster, in Ipswich-Linebrook, where he plied his trade of cordwainer. Upon breaking ground for the Newburyport Turnpike, he opened a shop in connection with his trade. The enterprise was a success, and he there laid the foundation of his subsequent wealth. He never married. He devoted most of his estate to public benefactions, eleemosynary, educational and religious, among which was an annuity fund of $3,500, for the worthy poor of Georgetown, another of $7,000 for the Orthodox Congregational society where he worshipped, and another—the residue of his estate—to found a free school in Georgetown.” The foundation amounts now to $100,000 or more, and the school will soon be begun.

“This man’s body has long since returned to its mother earth, but he still lives. So long as wealth has value, and learning is sought, and charity is kind, his name will be mentioned with praise, and his life will be fresh and fruitful as the dew, and as redolent as the lily upon the bosom of crystal waters.”

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The colonies of the Colonization Society in New Brunswick and Africa were constantly insubordinate. Their location was repeatedly changed, and sickness prevailed sometimes to a fearful extent. The names of Liberia, Loch Mond, Montserado and Monrovia will remain indicative of suffering and sorrow.

The support of this society, according to its own statement, which is indeed too true, was chiefly in the clergy and churches of both North and South. Free Masons also helped the cause in their associated capacity.

In 1825, Rev. S. M. Worcester, then an instructor in Amherst College, but afterwards pastor of the Tabernacle church in Salem, wrote, with others, over the name of “Vigornius” a series of articles for the Boston Recorder and Telegraph, which were republished the next year in pamphlet form under the general title of “Essays on Slavery.”

The Abolition societies continued to exist, and, in 1826, the American convention for the Abolition of Slavery was held at Baltimore. Benjamin Lundy, a Quaker of the South, visited the Eastern States, in May, 1828, in pursuance of the work of Abolition. At Boston, he says, he could hear of no resident who was an abolitionist. In the house where he boarded he met a young man, however, whose future work excelled all of any other individual and all of Boston’s labor in the cause. This young man was William Lloyd Garrison, then twenty-three years old. He was born in Newburyport, Dec. 12, 1805, and learned the art of printing, becoming an editor at twenty-one. He was first connected with the "Free Press" of Newburyport; then with the "National Philanthropist" of Boston, a temperance journal; and at the time of meeting Mr. Lundy, he was with the "Journal of the Times", published at Bennington, Vt. Mr. Lundy had heard of young Garrison's fearless attitude on the subject of temperance, and who had from time to time touched upon the slavery question, favorably noticing Mr. Lundy's paper, "The Genius of Universal Emancipation."

In the midst of the dearth of interest which he met in his trip North, Mr. Lundy found in Garrison a most welcome and congenial spirit. Though he did not at that time enlist himself fully to the cause of the slave, he helped Mr. Lundy in procuring subscribers to his paper, and in arranging anti-slavery meetings. Mr. Lundy returned home, with a lingering desire to have Garrison turn his attention fully to the cause of emancipation.

In the autumn, with the purpose of persuading him, if possible, to take hold of his paper in the zeal and fire of youth, Mr. Lundy again came North, and succeeded in drawing Garrison into his own favorite field of work. Garrison agreed to join Lundy as soon as his engagement on the "Journal of the Times" was out. The contract was carried out the next summer, and Garrison entered into the editorial management of the "Genius of Universal Emancipation" in Baltimore. The conduct of the paper was radically changed. No longer the Quaker sheet which amused oftentimes the slave-holding readers, the words of the new editor were like arrows piercing to the very heart of the conscience-condemned reader. He would not be restrained by Lundy's persuasions to be more pacific, and persecution and imprisonment for libel brought about the dissolution of the co-partnership.

While engaged on the "Genius of Universal Emancipation", at the Fourth-of-July celebration in Boston, in 1829, Garrison delivered the address, and Rev. John Pierpont and Hannah F. Gould of Newburyport wrote for the occasion two of the three hymns that were sung. Garrison was not reported in the papers to his satisfaction. In a letter to the Courier, he speaks of the reporter of the American Traveller, saying:—

"I acknowledge, sir, that the gentleman has accurately described my appearance. It was certainly 'quite youthful'—the fault was Time's, not mine. My suit (singularly strange as it may seem) was 'black,' and (still more strange) my shirt-collar was made of 'linen.' * * * *

"My address was an exposition of the Dangers of the Nation. It contained no panegyric. It was plain truth told in a plain manner. From my heart I believe, that the moral and political tendency of this nation is downward; and the cause I trace, among other evils, to that torrent of flattery, artfully sweetened and spiced, which is constantly poured out for the thirsty multitude to swallow. It is that thriftless prodigality of praise, that presumptuous defiance of danger, that treacherous assurance of security, that impudent assumption of ignorance, that pompous declamation of verity the lying attestation of falsehood, from the lips of our tumid orators, which are poisoning our life-blood.

"We are a vain people, and our love of praise is inordinate. We imagine, and are annually taught to believe, that the republic is immortal; that its flight, like a strong angel's, has been perpetually upward till it has soared above the impurities of earth, and beyond the farthest star; and, having attained perfection, is forever out of the reach of circumstance and change. An earth-quake may rock all Europe, and engulf empires at a stroke; but it cannot raise an inch of republican territory, nor disturb the composure of a platter on our shelves. The ocean may gather up its forces for a second deluge, and overtop the tallest mountains; but our ark will float securely when the world is drowned.

"The editor of the Traveller says, that I accused the people of substituting 'profligate persons in office, for men conscientiously religious.' These were my words:

"It is an alarming fact, so great is the profligate sensibility of our land, that a religious profession is the meanest recommendation of a candidate for office; and still more alarming that humble petitions for relief, although emanating from almost every religious sect, are able to conjure up the most horrible spectres and injurious apprehensions. I am not, my friends, advocating a union of Church and State,—that bugbear, which threatens to turn the nation into an insane hospital. But I wish to see men stand up in the dignity of the creatures of God. I wish them to read, compare and judge for themselves, as accountable beings. I wish to see a full ballot-box of unbought, intelligent votes, on every, the most trivial election. I wish a good moral character to be an indispensable qualification in the selection of candidates for office, from a Town Clerk to a President of the United States. I wish the "voice of the people" to mean something more than the echo of an evening caucus or a petty committee. The republic does not bear a charmed life: our prescriptions, administered through the medium of the ballot-box,—the mouth of the political body,—may kill or cure, according to the nature of the disease, and our wisdom in applying the remedy.' *****

"The editor puts the following ungracious epithet into my mouth: 'I detest that piety,' &c. I give you what I did say:

"I suspect the reality, and deny the productiveness of that piety, which confines its operations to a particular spot,—if that spot be less than the whole earth,—nor scoops out, in every direction, new channels for the waters of life. Christ-charity, while it 'begins at home,' goes abroad in search of misery. It is as copious as the sun in heaven. It does not, like the Nile, make an occasional inundation, and then withdraw; but it perpetually overflows, and fertilizes every barren spot. It is restricted only by the exact number of God's suffering creatures."

THE FIRST CHURCH IN METHUEN.

BY C. H. T. MANN, ESQ.

The First Church in Methuen was a plain frame building forty feet by thirty with ten feet stud, and three houses of worship. The first open to the rafters. Rev. Christopher Sargeant preached in it over discussion over whether so much fifty years, Six years after his carnal gratification would not be death it was replaced by the second detrimental to the worship of God. house which was raised May 19th, This house was taken down, re-1796. LEEDS.

Kimball; he kept the cow herd with

John Leeds had a share in Plum Haniell Bosworth in 1669. He was a Island, &c., 1664, as a tenant of John soldier and probably died in the Canada war, in 1700; for we find that Joseph Hunt was appointed administrator on his effects, January 29, 1700-1. He is entitled, "A Souldier in ye Country's service." His property consisted of £1, 4, 4 wages received, and £1, 4, 4 wages due.

In 1671, it is recorded:— "Haniel Bosworth is allowed 30s for good-wife Leeds enter't in his house for ye time past & until May day."

LONG

Philip Long or Longe was one of Denison's subscribers 1648; he mortgaged to Mr. William Norton, September 4, 1648, a house and land, also a planting lot on the north side of the hill.

Samuel Long was one of Denison's subscribers, 1648.

Giles Long purchased of Thomas Boreman, January 27, 1647, a house and lot of two acres, being in common fields on the north side of the river.

LADD.

Daniel Ladū had a grant of six acres of land, 1637.

LOCKWOOD.

Mary Lockwood was of Ipswich, September 30, 1652, when there was a contract of marriage between her and Jeremiah Belcher.

LUFKIN.

Thomas Lufkin was a commoner, 1707, and with his wife, Sarah, he had:— Sarah, born December 11, 1693; Thomas, born September 30, 1695; John, born November 28, 1697; Jacob, born December 9, 1698.

LUMPKIN.

Richard Lumpkin was admitted freeman, 1638; and was Representative the same year; a commoner, 1641; had land granted to him "at that place called pye brook," which is the part of the town since called Topsfield. He was "lately deceased" March 26, 1645.

27th day of July, 1638, Memorand: Richard Lumpkin hath sold unto John Tuttle one house and a house lot with certain other lands; one house lot lying near the great cove of the town river," &c.

In 1651, Sarah Lumpkin, (probably the widow of Richard.) administered on the estate of Sarah Baker, her kinswoman,— September 30, 1651.

LORD.

Katharine Lord, widow, was a commoner, 1641.

Robert Lord took the freeman's oath at Boston, March 3, 1635-6; was one of Denison's subscribers, 1648; had a share in Plum Island, &c., 1664; was a voter in town affairs, 1679.

He was on the committee with Richard Saltonstall, Daniel Denison, Samuel Appleton, Richard Jacob and John Payne, empowered to grant house lots to the settlers, 1645.

In 1639, he had a house lot on the High street, next last from Mr. William Bartholomew, which property yet remains a possession of his descendants.

He was Town Clerk, and Clerk of the Court, and Register of Deeds, for many years till his decease.

He was selectman. 1661, and for many years after; Representative in 1638.

He died August 12, 1683, in the eightieth year of his age. His will is dated June 28, and was proved September 25, 1683. In it he mentions his wife Mary, with whom, he says, "by God's good providence, we have lived comfortably together in a married condition almost fifty-three years." He bequeaths to her all his estate during her life.

In an account book, under date of 1660, he mentions his "Sister fift."

In his will he gives legacies to his eldest son, Robert; to his daughter, Sarah Wilson; to his sons Nathaniel, Thomas, (who removed to Charlestown); Samuel, (who removed to Charlestown); to the children of his daughter Chandler, deceased, viz., Mary, William, Joseph and Samuel; and to his daughter, Susannah Osgood, Abigail Foster, and Hannah Grow, (wife of John Grow,) and to his grandchild, Robert Lord.

His house lot on High street was granted to him February 19, 1637. It was adjoining one belonging to Mr. Humphrey Vincent.

Robert Lord², son of Robert¹, married Hannah Day. He had a share in Plum Island, &c., 1634; he was a voter in town affairs, 1679; he was one of twenty-four of "the young generation," who joined the church by taking the covenant, between January 18, and February 1, 1673; he was Marshal of the Court as early as 1669; and is usually designated as "Marshal Lord."

He died November 11, 1695, and left a widow, Hannah, who possessed the rights of commonage and had horses on the common in 1697. At his death he left the following children:—Robert, born December 26, 1657; John; Thomas; James, born January 27, 1676; Joseph, born January 8, 1674; Nathaniel, born April 30, 1681, a minor over fourteen years old, 1699.

Robert Lord³, son of Robert², was born December 26, 1657. In 1697, his name is on the list of such as have horses on the common, when he had the title of "Serjeant;" he subscribed towards "procuring of a bigger bell for ye good of ye town, 1700," and was one of the selectmen in 1707. He married Abigail Ayers, June 7, 1683, and had Hannah, born July 18, 1685; Susanna, born October 7, 1687; Robert, born March 6, died May 14, 1689; Samuel, born April 14, 1691, who married and removed to Dunbarton, N. H.; Abigail, born June 17, 1693; Ruth, born September 9, 1695; Ebenezer, born August 25, 1697, died July 28, 1698; Ebenezer, born May 16, 1699.

John Lord³, son of Robert², married December 9, 1695, Elisabeth Clarke, and had John, born October 8, 1696, who left no issue; Elisabeth, born December 12, 1698; Thomas, born July 19, 1703; Robert, born 1712, removed to Boston.

Thomas Lord³, son of Robert², married Mary Brown, May 24, 1686, and had Mary, born March 21, 1691; Robert, born April 2, 1694; Thomas; John; Jonadab.

He died September 26, 1694. His heirs had the rights of commonage in 1708.

James Lord³, son of Robert², had James, Joseph, (who left no issue,) and Nathaniel. He was commoner in 1708, and had a seat assigned to him in the meeting house in 1702. Mary Kimball, his wife, died April 11, 1724.

Joseph Kimball³, son of Robert², removed to New Jersey.

INDIANS OF ESSEX COUNTY, MASSACHUSETTS.

CALEB, a Punkapog, was of those called praying Indians, but had become disaffected, as was often the case among those professing Christianity. This Caleb being detested for attempting to run away to join the Narragansets with another man's wife, about the commencement of Philip's war, fled into the woods, and was taken soon after, and delivered to the English, who closely confined him; his fate is unknown, but doubtless the fate of a slave in a distant land was his.—Drake's Indian Biography, p. 70.

DRUMMER, "a noted Indian that lived near Taunton," taken at the same time with Caleb (which see), doubtless shared the same fate.—Drake's Indian Biography, p. 97.

EGEEREMET, an eastern Sachem, with five others of like quality, was seized by the English when they came into Pemmaquid fort to treat with them. Dgeremet and another were killed. This was February 16, 1696*. Their seizure cannot be outdone by the greatest barbarian, for faithlessness; and we shall learn that its author paid for it in due time with his life. We are not disposed to add to transactions which are in themselves sufficiently horrid, but we will venture to give the account as we find it in Dr. C. Mather's decennium luctuosum.†

"Let us before the year be quite gone see some vengeance taken upon the heads in the house of the wicked, know then, reader, that Capt. March petitioning to be dismissed from his command of the fort at Pemmaquid, one Chub succeeded him. This Chub found an opportunity, in a pretty chubbed manner to kill the famous Edgeremet Abenquid, a couple of principal Sagamores, with one or two other Indians, on a Lord's day. Some that well enough liked the thing which was now done, did not altogether like the manner of doing it, because there was a pretence of treaty between Chub and the Sagamores, whereof he took his advantage to lay violent hands on them."

Thus the manner is seen in which this horrid and cold blooded act is related!! Few are the instances that we meet with in history, where Indian treachery, as it is termed, can go before this. The reverend author adds, "If there were any unfair dealing (which I know not) in this action of Chub, there will be another February not far off, wherein the avengers of blood will take their satisfaction." By "another February" he means to intimate the fate of captain Chub in that month.‡

* * * * *

We must now inform the reader of the wretched fate of Capt. Pascoe Chub. It was not long after he committed the bloody deed of killing the Indian Sagamores, before he and the fort were taken by the French and Indians. He was exchanged and returned to Boston, where he suffered much disgrace for his treachery with the Indians.§ He lived at Andover, Mass., where the Indians made an attack in February, 1698, in which he was killed. It was not thought they knew of finding him there, but when they knew they had killed him, it gave them as much joy, says Huchinson, "as the destruction of a whole town, — Here follows a whole page relating to EGEREMET, but which has no relation to CHUB.

§Harris' Voyages, II, 305, (ed. 1764), says CHUB was arrested by Col. GEDNEY, who was sent east with three ships of war on hearing of the surrender of the fort, and that no French or Indians could be found. Then after he strengthened the garrison he returned home.

because they had taken their beloved vengeance of him for his perfidy and barbarity to their countrymen." They shot him through several times after he was dead.

The most favorable account given of the conduct of Chub, and indeed the only one, follows: "An Indian Sagamore's son appeared with a flag of truce, and Capt. Chub went out to them without arms, man for man. An Indian asked for rum and tobacco, the captain said no. It is the Sabbath day. They said, We will have rum, or we will have rum and you too. Two Indians laid hold on the captain. Then he called to his men, to fall in, for God's sake. Then he made signs to his men to come from the fort. One of the English had a hatchet under his coat, took it out and killed an Indian; and then ours killed two more Indians, and took another alive, and wounded another, supposed mortally. Then many of the enemy came near the English, who retreated all safe to the fort. ||—Drake's Indian Biography, pp. 98-101.

||Mss. letter in Lib. Mass. Hist. Soc., written the following month. As it was written at a great distance from the place, and from a report of the day, little reliance can be placed upon it. It may have been CHUB'S report of the case.

QUERY.

58. I write for further information regarding the Potters, &c. I desire to get a good colonial record if possible. For this purpose I send the line, in hopes that some of the names may be familiar, and their Ipswich history. It seems to me that some of these families must have had something to do with making Massachusetts.

1. Anthony Potter m. Elizabeth Whipple, dau. Dea. John and Sarah.

2. Edmund Potter m. Abigail Wells, b. 1662, dau. of Nathaniel and Lydia.

3. Nathaniel Potter, b. 1686, d. 1754, m. Sarah Graves.

4. John Potter, b. 1730 d. 1800, m. Sarah Patch.

5. John Potter, b. 1754, died Nov. 28, 1808, m. Abigail Brown, 14 July, 1781.

John (5) took part in the Revolution, and I desire to ascertain if the others, or the ancestors of their wives, were prominent in any of the earlier wars, or in civil life.

E. W. J.

Dear Sir:

THE ESSEX ANTIQUARIAN, in a certain sense, takes the place of the ESSEX COUNTY HISTORICAL AND GENEALOGICAL REGISTER, published at Ipswich, Mass., to which you were a subscriber.

The Register in July, 1895, suspended publication with the sixth number of Volume II. The subscription lists have been transferred to us and all subscribers will receive THE ESSEX ANTIQUARIAN to complete their subscriptions to the Register.
